REICH DEFENSE LEADER DEFIES MINISTRY FOES

COUNTRY'S WELFARE HELD ABOVE PARTIES

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Gen. Wilhelm Groener, head of all German defense forces, answered threats against the government today with a terse declaration of determination "to make the reich's interests prevail against all parties."

Thus, directly after the Harzburg demonstration of the Nationalist opposition, which called for an overthrow of the present German regime yesterday, Gen. Groener met the challenge of Adolf Hitler and Alfred Hugenberg, opposition leaders.

Gen. Groener's utterances were significant, for the police powers, as well as the military, are in the hands of this last quartermaster general of the former imperial army as a consequence of his appointment by Chancellor Heinrich Bruening to the dual cabinet post of minister of defense and minister of the interior.

"The dire distress which threatens the life of the German people can be overcome if all political forces unite under a clear, purposeful leadership for constructive work in behalf of the Fatherland," Gen. Groener said.

Declares Cooperation Necessary.

"This work can be accomplished only on a basis of law and the constitution, and the state's organs of enforcement must together serve this purpose.

"In no country is such concentration of powers as necessary as it is in Germany, for none is so threatened by the machinations of Bolshevism, while, on the other hand, Germany has been disarmed to an extent unparalleled in history.

"I now take over the post of minister of the interior besides the ministry of defense.

"I do it with the firm intention to conduct jointly the Reich's organs of enforcement at the command of these two ministries, to safeguard the unanimity and even-handed justice of the executive within the whole Reich against partisan influences and make the interests of the Reich prevail against all parties.

In this way the conditions will be fulfilled by which Germany can be strengthened internally and approach the task of reconstruction."

Reds Demand Hitler's Arrest.

Berlin, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—The arrest and prosecution of Adolph Hitler and other militant leaders of the newly united "Nationalist opposition" of Germany, on charges of high treason, was demanded tonight by Communist leaders in the Reichstag.

The Communist party decided to submit to the Reichstag, which convenes tomorrow for a bitter struggle against Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's government, a motion calling for immediate arrest of Hitler, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Maj. Frantz Seldte and Lieut. Col. Theodore Duesterberg.

All of the Nationalist leaders were at the front of the united Fascist and Nationalist party congress and demonstration yesterday at Harzburg, when war was declared on the Bruening regime. Dr. Schacht, former head of the Reichsbank and one of Europe's best known economists, was condemned by the Communists, the government and by various newspapers for his speech charging the cabinet had concealed the full extent of Germany's financial "catastrophe" from the people.

Schacht Causes Sensation.

Dr. Schacht's speech caused a nation-wide sensation because of his known ability and his former position in international banking affairs.

Coming on the eve of a vital struggle for power in the Reichstag, it was condemned as a dangerous outburst which embarrassed the government at a critical time for the nation. The Communist party motion charged that it was aimed to precipitate a new inflation in Germany, robbing the small depositors of their savings and depreciating wages and salaries

MacDonald Pleads Cause of Reelection

Prime Minister Asks Miners to Send Him Back to House of Commons to Aid in Nation's Rehabilitation.

Easington, Durham, England, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—In one of the most eloquent appeals of his career, Ramsay MacDonald tonight asked the Durham miners to send him back to the House of Commons as a common laborer to help build the dam against national and world chaos.

"Who dares point the finger of scorn at me" the prime minister demanded.

Whether Mr. MacDonald won the support of the nearly 2,000 miners and their women folk only those who know the minds of the grim north country men could say but, judged from the applause, he carried his audience with him.

The prime minister made this speech to his own constituents, whose Labor party organization has repudiated him, on his 65th birthday. Hecklers interrupted him, but he silenced them with strong words.

"You be quiet, my friend," he told one of the interrupters. "You'll be a wiser man."

"I wish people would say hard things to you instead of saying smooth things to keep their popularity with you," he declared at another point in his speech.

The prime minister bared Great Britain's problems to his simple hearers, warning them especially of the dangers of currency inflation. He reduced the complex problems of national and international affairs to "simple problems of housekeeping—government housekeeping."

"Unless you make ends meet, you are going to chaos and destruction," he said.

To an audience of chalky-faced men, who live their working lives in the bowels of the earth, tearing from rich seams the coal which is Great Britain's industrial wealth, Mr. MacDonald said things he never said before on a campaign platform.

Under the lash of criticism to which he has been subjected since he formed the national government, the prime minister, with passion and eloquence that roused bursts of applause, declared his loyalty to the cause of labor.

"I haven't changed a single iota of my principles," he declared.

His birth dictated those principles, he said. They were in his bones and, "I shall be labor at my death."

"But I have a mind and conscience of my own, and I will not

Machado to Convert Short-Term Debts to Long Loan.

PROPOSALS READY FOR WALL STREET

Havana Government Slashes Budget and Salaries to Pay All Obligations.

Ambassador Orestes Ferrara, of Cuba, and the chief of the Cuban delegation to the fourth Pan-American Commercial Conference, Dr. Viriato Gutteriez, will shortly begin negotiations with Wall street financiers for the immediate conversion of $100,000,000 short-term Cuban obligations into long term bonds, it was revealed here yesterday.

This operation is believed to be supplementary to the recent stringent decrees of President Machado in an effort to meet the fixed charges of the Cuban budget. These decrees have lopped off 10,000 federal employes from the pay rolls, and have reduced the salaries of the others by as much as 60 per cent.

Ambassador Ferrara denied that the Cuban government intends to follow the example of such countries as Argentina, Brazil and Chile in seeking financial relief by means of a moratorium.

Statement by Ambassador.

Ambassador Ferrara declared yesterday:

"Cuba is ready to fulfill her international obligations in payments, and we are not contemplating any moratorium. Cuba has already taken the most drastic measures of economies in reducing her budget with the object of paying her obligations in foreign countries. Cuba is satisfied with two things in her economic life. The first is that she paid her war indebtedness to the United States to the last cent; second, in this period of a general impossibility of paying foreign loans she is paying all installments and coupons due."

The cost of putting down the recent revolution in Cuba is believed to have added to the already heavily burdened Cuban budget. The first workings of the Chadbourne plan have yet to be felt in improving the condition of the Cuban sugar market, although there has been some slight amelioration in the price to the Cuban growers.

Dr. Gutteriez will confer with Chadbourne with regard to future improvements on the plan, should the price in Havana have any tendency to improve. The basis of the Chadbourne plan is a general agreement among all nations signatory to restrict their exportations in certain specified degrees. Only when the world price of sugar shows a tendency to improve, another clause of the agreement provides for the release from reserve of a certain percentage of the sugar.

HOOVER'S PLAN TO BOOST RAILS IS TAKING FORM

Proposal for Strengthening Bond Values Expected Soon.

REVOLVING FUND FOR LOANS SEEN

Insurance Companies and Banks Hit by Drop in Road Earnings.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's plan to buoy the value of railroad bonds is nearing completion.

Some officials expect an announcement within a few days. Others, however, disagree, explaining the intricacies of the problem and its many ramifications may cause some delay.

Word came yesterday from high administration quarters that Mr. Hoover has a number of other plans under consideration to inject new life into the sluggish veins of industry. One was said to involve the general mortgage situation.

Would Aid Small Banks.

The President has been at work on a proposal to strengthen the finances of the railroads and help hundreds of small savings banks since his project was launched for improving credit conditions by the establishment of a $500,000,000 private corporation.

No definite agreement has yet been reached, but one is looked for shortly. Whatever is decided upon, it is likely congressional action will be required.

A railroad revolving fund from which loans would be made to the carriers is one of the proposals under consideration. Suggestions have been received both for private subscription of funds and for Government appropriation. No decision has been reached.

Holders Are Hit.

Both savings banks and insurance companies owning rail bonds have been affected by the decline in railway earnings. Unless conditions improve materially, the bonds may be removed from the list of securities which State laws make eligible for savings bank and insurance company investments.

Some improvement, however, already has been obtained through State banking departments enabling the banks to retain the bonds and write off losses over a period of time.

The relief proposal was said in administration circles to depend to some extent on the Interstate Commerce Commission decision on the application for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates. A decision is expected at any time.

Information that the railroad plan was expected shortly came from two high officials.

Difficulty Surmountable.

One said the position of the railroads was by no means one of insurmountable difficulty. He expressed the opinion the railroads despite bus competition would continue to handle the bulk of traffic. He added the buses could stand further regulation.

This official, who has much to do with business affairs, said he did not believe the Federal Reserve act would be amended to permit rediscounting of mortgages. President Hoover has announced he would recommend to Congress that the basis of rediscounting privilege be broadened.

In this connection, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, yesterday wired Senator Glass, of Virginia, that he had "no intention of giving approval to any plan which, I believe, is calculated to un-

FIRST LADY NAMES AIRSHIP

TOKYO MEETING RAISES HOPE OF PEACE DECISION

League, Ready for Test of Kellogg Pact, to Act Today.

U. S. TO BACK COURSE TAKEN BY 14 NATIONS

Stimson's Promise Held Hastening Influence in Negotiations.

JAPANESE DISCOUNT THREATS BY CHIANG

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

First rift in the war clouds hovering over China and Japan was sighted yesterday when cabled advices were received at the State Department that China and Japan had finally arrived at direct negotiations. Foreign Minister Shidehara and Chinese Minister Chiang Tso-pin are conferring in Tokyo on the problem of Manchuria which has virtually brought the two countries to the verge of war.

Word was immediately conveyed to President Hoover and Secretary Stimson that the Sino-Japanese negotiations had begun. This is the outcome, it is believed, of unexpected action of the United States in announcing its intention to back up the league in peacemaking overtures.

Fourteen nations are meeting today in Geneva solemnly to summon China and Japan to renounce their warlike demonstrations and settle difficulties over Manchurian sovereignty by peaceful means. The United States is represented by the American "observer," Prentiss Gilbert.

Fourteen Nations Involved.

Vigorous action that the league was expected to take at this meeting undoubtedly hurried the decision of the two countries to begin their discussions. Statesmen from practically every capital in Europe have answered the summons of Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league.

Foreign ministers of the following countries will mobilize world opinion today in a supreme effort to make the present Tokyo conversations the basis for prompt adjudication of the Manchurian incident: Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Panama, Guatemala, Peru, the Irish Free State, Norway, Poland, Jugoslavia and the two countries now on the brink of war, China and Japan.

Japanese Ambassador Debuchi was a caller at the State Department yesterday and reiterated his belief that his government will go to the most extraordinary limits before resorting to war. He said, "War between China and Japan is almost unthinkable."

Situation Held Full of Powder.

Nevertheless, the Secretary of State, the Undersecretary, William R. Castle, jr., and the chief of the Far Eastern Division of the department, Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, consider the situation fraught with potential gunpowder.

Unprecedented action of Secretary Stimson in forwarding assurances to the league that the United States will back up its decision with regard to the Chinese-Japanese matter, gives additional significance to today's meeting in the league quarters. For the first time in history the American government has virtually placed itself in the position of underwriting the decisions of the league.

The State Department has notified the league it will continue to maintain its independence of action in the Far Eastern crisis. Reports from the two American observers, George Hanson and Laurence E. Salisbury, continue to flow into the department from the troubled zone.

*So long as the league has been entrusted with the task of bringing the dissident countries together, Secretary Stimson will await the result of league intervention before taking any of the steps he outlined in his note to the league on October 9. At that time the Secretary said:

"On its part the American Government . . . will endeavor to reinforce what the league does and will make clear that it has a keen in-

FAMILY OF 4 SLAIN IN MARYLAND HOME

Farmer, Wife and Their Two Children Killed With Ax; Suspects Arrested.

Berlin, Md., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A farmer, his wife and their two daughters were found dead in their beds in their farmhouse late today, their heads battered in by an axe and the bodies saturated with coal oil.

The discovery was made by poultry farmers near by who had missed the family since Saturday. A Negro farm hand, Orphan Jones, 60, who was discharged Saturday, was arrested a few miles away and held for questioning.

The dead are Green Davis, 55; his wife, Iva, 48, and their two daughters, Elizabeth, 15, and Mary Lee, 13. The older girl was a junior in the Berlin High School, and her sister a freshman. The family had been living in this section about six years.

A further examination of the bodies showed they had been shot as well as battered. A large crowd that gathered about the home was dispersed and the Negro was taken to the county jail at Snow Hill.

A Negro woman, Martha Harmon, 80, of Ocean City, whose place Jones had been known to frequent, told officers she was awakened early Sunday morning and saw Jones on the front porch cleaning an automatic shotgun. The gun was recovered and identified as the property of Davis.

The Davis farmhouse is located 2½ miles west of Berlin, on the Ocean City road, at a place known as Taylorsville. The section is isolated and communication in that part of Maryland is difficult.

The Negro, according to officers, had $70 in his pockets when arrested at Ocean City and a pocketbook and several rings identified by friends as the property of the Davis family.

The body of the farmer and his wife were found in one bed on the second floor and the two girls in another bed on the same floor.

The bodies were found by Charles Johnson and S. E. Howell, who live nearby. The shades on the house were drawn and there had been no activity about the place for two days. The discovery was made shortly after 4 o'clock. The door of the house was battered down.

Several burned rags were located beside the bed of the man and his wife to which officers pointed as evidence the perpetrator of the crime had sought to destroy evidence by burning the house and contents.

The ax, believed to have been used to batter the four to death, was found on a back porch. The authorities immediately locked the house and the investigation was begun by the county and State police. An inquest set for late tonight was postponed until tomorrow.

The Negro had been employed by Davis for three weeks at the time he

3 GUNMEN SOUGHT IN $3,000 HOLDUP

Victims Kept Theft Secret 40 Hours; Trio Thought Imported for Job.

Three armed bandits, presumed to be from New York, are sought for the robbery of $2,500 in cash and a diamond ring valued at $450 from three Washington men in the Cecil Apartments, 1026 Fifteenth street northwest.

Knowledge of the holdup and robbery was withheld from police for 40 hours until headquarters detectives yesterday located the victims, one of whom had been struck on the head with the butt of a revolver when he tried to block entry of the thugs.

The victims of the robbery are William Melton, 33 years old, of 1215 Geranium street northwest, who was robbed of the ring and approximately $700 in cash; his brother, Fred "Fritz" Melton, of 1330 Floral street northwest, and Charles Schwitzer, from whom was taken about $1,800 in cash.

Detective Sergts. Joseph Waldron and Thomas Sweeney are searching for a man who is believed to have known that the Meltons and Schwitzer had at times large sums of money in their possession, and imported the three gunmen to carry out the holdup.

The robbery came to light after Detective Sergts. Waldron and Sweeney, in their investigation of the rumored holdup, contacted William Melton, and he admitted that the robbery had occurred. He had intended reporting the incident to police, he told the detective, but was confined to bed Sunday after the blow on his head.

Comparatively few people knew their business place, Melton told the detectives, most of their dealings being transacted by telephone. This led to the belief that some one, with a knowledge of their habits planned the robbery and imported the gunmen.

The robbery, according to William Melton, occurred about 6:30 Saturday night. A knock was heard at the door, Melton said, and when he opened it slightly, he saw three men standing in the hallway with drawn guns. One of the men shoved his foot inside the door.

The three bandits shoved their weight against the door while the foremost reached through the opening and struck William Melton. They forced their way into the room and lined the men against the wall, taking their money and jewelry.

Melton was treated by a private physician for a gash on his head. Asked by Inspector Frank S. W. Burke why he had failed to report the holdup, William Melton is reported to have said: "I was thinking about it, but didn't get round to it."

All of the men spoke in typical underworld jargon, Melton said.

Precautions Are Taken as Council Resumes Its Religious Study.

Madrid, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—State troops and police were guarding churches and convents in several provincial towns tonight in anticipation of possible trouble when the National Assembly resumes consideration of the constitutional provision on the relations between the church and the state tomorrow.

Public interest was at a high pitch everywhere. Police guards were maintained at Cordoba, Seville, Coruna and many other places. Dispatches from the town of Balaguer, in Catalonia, said police were guarding religious houses following an attempt this morning to bomb Catholic schools.

The newspaper La Nacion today predicted that President Alcala Zamora would resign if the present religious clause proposed for the constitution was approved.

Steamship Standing By Leaking Sailing Vessel

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The Coast Guard reported tonight that the Munson liner Munlisto was standing by a schooner off Cape Cod, from which the sails had been blown away and which was leaking badly. The Coast Guard boats from Boston were sent to the schooner's assistance.

The Coast Guard also reported that the steamship Jefferson picked up a fishing yacht 2 miles off Asbury Park at 2 p. m. and had taken it to the Coast Guard station there.

Lady Astor Is Opposed Only by Labor Delegate

Plymouth, England, Oct. 12 (A.P.). Lady Astor had only a Labor opponent, George Ward, when her campaign for reelection to the House of Commons opened in the Sutton division today.

The Liberals announced they would not nominate a candidate against the American-born M. P., while the Conservative candidate for whom opponents within her own party have been seeking has not yet appeared.

Former President Leading Peru Vote

Eight Precincts in Callao for Sanchez Cerro as Leguia Reaction.

Callao, Peru, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—First returns from Sunday's elections in Peru, giving a partial count of the vote for eight precincts in Callao, showed Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, former president, leading other candidates for president by a substantial margin on the relatively small count.

The vote announced was: Sanchez Cerro, 647; Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, 328; Jose Maria de la Jara y Ureta, 51; Arturo Osores, 42.

Former President Sanchez Cerro represents the strongest reaction against the late Leguia regime which was charged by its opponents with having been "too international," especially in its financial policies.

243 Members of Mafia Are On Trial In Italy

Palermo, Sicily, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A gang of 243 men, accused of membership in the Mafia Society, went to trial in Palermo today, and authorities hoped to remove from circulation the last remnants of that notorious terrorist band. Most of the prisoners sat in a huge cage in the courtroom, heavily guarded by police and the local militia.

They were charged with virtually every crime associated with racketeering—extortion, murder, blackmail, arson, assault and robbery. More than 300 witnesses had been called and the trial was expected to last more than a month.

CANNON CASE GIVEN JUSTICE SPOTLIGHT

Probe Begun to Sift Rumors Goldhurst Took Blame to Spare Bishop.

(Associated Press.)

Whether a New York stock broker, guilty of fraud, was let off lightly because of his connection with Bishop James Cannon, jr., yesterday became the subject of a Justice Department inquiry.

Harry L. Goldhurst, the broker who handled the account of the Southern Methodist churchman, was sentenced to five years in Atlanta Penitentiary in October, 1929, pleading guilty to using the mails to defraud. The Federal parole board recently ordered him released next April.

A charge that a "blameworthy agreement" involving Department of Justice officials won the guilty plea from Goldhurst to protect Bishop Cannon was brought to the attention of Attorney General Mitchell by Senator Glass, of Virginia. Under the alleged trade Goldhurst would have received a light sentence and early parole, and Cannon would not be forced to testify on his stock market transactions.

Glass, writing to Mitchell, pointed out that the broker did receive exactly the treatment which the story of the trade would have given him. The senator held that while this was not evidence of impropriety it was a coincidence warranitng study. Today the Attorney General ordered a review.

Goldhurst was one of several prisoners transferred from Atlanta to Fort Wadsworth on Staten Island, some time ago.

An investigation by the Department of Justice revealed some of these had paid to be put in more comfortable quarters than Atlanta. The prisoners were sent back South, but now Goldhurst is at Fort Meade, near Washington. His name was not listed among those proved to have paid for the transfer.

The broker's fraudulent transactions were involved in the operations of Kable & Co., of which Goldhurst was the principal partner. Charles W. Kable, who represented himself as a figurehead, received a suspended sentence. The company went bankrupt in 1928.

Bishop Cannon's transactions with the firm were gone into to some extent by the Senate's lobby committee and now are before the District of Columbia grand jury in connection with the churchman's alleged

MRS. HOOVER NAMES GIANT FLYING BOAT

"American Clipper" Takes Diplomats and Officials on Flights Over Capital.

Before a colorful group of 5,000 persons, including practically the entire Diplomatic Corps, together with a score of high Government, Army and Navy officials, assembled yesterday afternoon at the Naval Air Station, Mrs. Hoover named America's greatest heavier-than-air plane, a new 56-passenger Sikorsky amphibian, "The American Clipper."

Following the ceremonies, which were attended in a body by the delegates to the fourth Pan-American conference, now in session here, high diplomatic and Government officials were taken on a half-hour flight over the city in the huge four-engined transport.

Speakers at the christening exercises included Walter F. Brown, Postmaster General; Francis White, Assistant Secretary of State; Senor Don Orestes Ferrara, Ambassador from Cuba; Representative Will R. Wood, of Indiana; Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, and Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways.

A network of more than 100 stations of the National and Columbia broadcasting companies carried the ceremonies throughout the United States and South America. A description of the inaugural flight was broadcast direct from the plane and each South American envoy gave his impressions of the ride and the view of the Capital in his own native language, this being specially broadcast to his country.

Following the first flight, two more trips were made on which members of the "little cabinet" and other officials saw Washington from the great ship, which will soon fly on the Caribbean run of the Pan-American Airways and also be used for experimentation work to determine the feasibility of the further extension of over-ocean air travel.

The following representatives of 22 countries, together with United States Government officials, were passengers on the first flight of the "American Clipper":

Senor Dr. Don Pablo Campos-Ortiz, first secretary of the Mexican Embassy; Commander Paolo Sbernadori, air attache of the Italian Embassy; Senor Don Orestes Ferrara, Cuban Ambassador; Maj. Georges Thenault, air attache of the French Embassy;

Al Capone's Wardrobe Cost Fortune, Trial Witnesses Say

Gangster Example of Expensively Dressed Racketeer, Spending Thousands for Clothes and Gifts to His Friends at Christmas.

Federal Building, Chicago, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—What the well-dressed gangster wears, including a $135 custom-made suit and $275 diamond belt buckle, was brought out in full detail today at Al Capone's trial on income tax evasion charges.

Also, the prosperous gangster is expected to do his Christmas shopping early, extensively and without stint, the testimony of a dozen Chicago department store clerks indicated. Capone, for instance, was said by the clerks to have selected such gifts for friends as $400 silverware sets, $150 overcoats and $20 beaded bags by the score.

Capone, biggest gangster of them all, was said by the clerks to wear ordinarily about $700 worth of fine raiment. His customary dress, according to the testimony, included a $27.50 shirt with $1 monogram; $4.95 tie, $2 collar, $135 suit, $150 overcoat, $275 belt buckle, $10 suit of silk underwear, $20 hat, $20 shoes and $2 socks.

Because he usually was busy with pressing affairs—which the prosecutors charge were gambling, liquor and vice—Capone bought his fine quality suits by the half dozens and his expensive shirts in even larger numbers, the clerks said.

When the testimony was completed for the day, it was revealed that Capone started out in life at a rather lowly position—tending bar in a saloon at Coney Island. That evidence was given by Henry E. Keller, of Miami Beach, Fla., who built a boat dock on Capone's winter estate, and often lunched with "Mr. Al."

The testimony appeared to interest Al not at all. He stared moodily at the ceiling or into space, drummed on the counsel table and ate candy mints.

The troubles of his bodyguard,

Boy of 16 Given Life for Murder

Lad Smiles Broadly When Sentence Is Passed on Plea of Guilt.

Crown Point, Ind., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Life behind prison bars today was meted out to Perry Swank, jr., 16 years old last Tuesday, for the confessed slaying of Eugene Duckworth, aged filling station owner of Lowell, Ind., during a $45 robbery.

When his case was called, the youth changed his plea from not guilty to guilty. In jail the boy had shown little concern over his deed and its possible consequences, but he was visibly frightened when, before sentencing him, the judge said:

"If all killers were electrocuted, we would have fewer crimes like the one to which you pleaded guilty." When he heard his fate was life imprisonment, the boy grinned broadly. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Swank, appeared dazed.

Bomb Aimed at Theater Misses, Blast Shakes Loop

Chicago, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—A powerful bomb tossed from an adjoining skyscraper, exploded tonight before it hit the roof of the Monroe Theater, in the midst of Chicago's Loop.

The blast broke windows in nearby structures, including the First National Bank Building across the street, and caused a near panic among patrons in the theater and homegoing pedestrians.

Had the bomb not exploded prematurely, said police, it undoubtedly would have wrecked the roof of the theater and perhaps killed or injured some 300 members of the audience.

As it was, the blast sent showers of glass on the thronged sidewalks at Clark and Monroe streets, one of Chicago's busiest corners, and shook the whole Loop with its vibrations. Automatic printer machines were jolted in the United Press office two blocks away.

The blast was the twelfth in the strife between movie machine operators and independent exhibitors who locked them out in favor of nonunion operators because of salary demands. The eleventh blast occurred only yesterday when two bombs were thrown at the Argmore Theater in the fashionable Rogers Park district. One of the bombs exploded, stunning a patrolman. He recovered sufficiently to snuff out the fuse of the second bomb an instant before it would have killed him and caused widespread damage.

TROUBLES IN ORIENT LAID BEFORE LEAGUE

Council to Convene Today to Hear China's Side of Situation.

Geneva, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—League of Nations leaders congregated here tonight to devise measures to prevent a Sino-Japanese war and to save the league from the reproach of impotency.

Strengthened by the presence of the foreign ministers of Britain and France—Lord Reading and Aristide Briand—the council convenes in extraordinary session at noon tomorrow to hear again China's persistent plea for intervention in Manchuria "to safeguard the peace of nations."

International leaders took courage from many proofs that the United States is lending full moral support to their efforts to restore Pacific relations between the Japanese and Chinese governments.

Conflict More Menacing.

Since the council adjourned a fortnight ago after admonishing the two disputants to restrain their troops and to avoid aggravating the situation, the Manchurian conflict has assumed much more menacing proportions.

But the council that meets tomorrow will be composed of far more responsible statesmen than the council that recently adjourned, and assurances of cordial American cooperation in the work of peace have nerved the league's chiefs to a more determined attitude.

With the influence, prestige and—some commentators declare—even the life of the league at stake, high officials tonight testified to the supreme gravity of the situation and to the necessity for proof of the vitality and efficacy of the Geneva institution.

Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese spokesman, has remained in Geneva throughout the interval since the recent council meeting, having refused the post of Chinese foreign minister in order to devote himself completely to the work of pressing for league intervention.

Japan Envoy Returns.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japan's representative, returned today and discussed the situation with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league.

Lord Reading and Viscount Cecil of Chelwood conferred with Sir Eric during the afternoon. M. Briand and Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, as well as the German representative, were expected tonight.

Meanwhile, the attitude of the Chinese and Japanese spokesmen constituted an apparent deadlock. Dr. Sze still asks the council to take steps to get Japanese troops out of the parts of Manchuria into which they have gone without sanction of treaty rights.

M. Yoshizawa, on the other hand, maintains that the Chinese are continuing to provoke bloody encounters in Manchuria and are inciting anti-Japanese agitation throughout China, and Japanese lives and property still are endangered.

Stimson Note Pleases.

The receipt of Secretary of State Stimson's note, declaring that the United States would work independently to reinforce the league's efforts to bring peace to Manchuria, gave the greatest satisfaction to anxious league officials. The United States Consul General, Prentiss Gilbert, has been in frequent conference with Sir Eric today and yesterday.

Miss Lambie to Speak Tonight.

Miss Margaret Lambie, Washington attorney, will speak tonight at a meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Alexandria, at 7 o'clock, in the George Mason Hotel. Miss Eleanor Watkins, membership chairman, is in charge of the program, assisting Mrs. Albert M. Briggs, program chairman.

Japan and China Yearn For Front Page Honors

By JOHN J. DALY

UNLESS something is done about it, Japan and China are getting ready to stage a show of their own on the other side of the world.

Jealous of all the space allotted by newspapers to George Bernard Shaw, the Sunday parades in London, Mahatma Gandhi, and Dino Grandi (Mussolini's head man in foreign affairs), China and Japan want recognition.

Publicity-seeking is something new for China, always inclined to look toward the past rather than toward the future; but the world being what it is, China at last is getting on the band wagon.

THE Japs, forward-looking people, once they got into the swing of showmanship, were not long in adapting themselves to ultramodern conditions.

Any spectacular show staged by these two peoples will be worth while watching. Here will come into conflict all that is old in the oldest civilization, aside from the Egyptians, who have about given up the ghost, and quite a lot that is new in the realm of mankind.

While the Japs are not exactly newcomers on the scene, they are not quite so antiquarian as the Chinese. It is still difficult, for instance, to imagine a Chinaman piloting an airplane.

• • • •

STILL, the Chinese have become air-minded, what with the recent bombings in Manchuria, where the Japs are said to have worked a bit of aerial jiu-jitsu on the contested railroad properties.

All of these new developments—radio, television, and the like—are putting China on the qui vive, and if the younger of the two civilizations in the Orient gets too gay the world is liable to see the greatest show ever staged in that part of the world. The Chinese come from a long race of magicians. They believe, fundamentally, in The Book of the Dead, but they have an eye, too, on the pages of Life.

From the days of the old-line mikados, when Japan was Dai Nippon, and before the constitutional monarchy came into being, to this catch-as-catch-can scheme of existence, the Japs have come a long, long way; but they have landed right in the front ranks of the nations of the world. So, anything they do is watched with keen interest by all the powers, ever jealous of their own prestige. The Japanese and the Chinese, in the language of the theater, are "trying to steal the show."

• • • •

OF course, it may all prove to be a tempest in a teapot. The Chinese, even with all the modernism surrounding them, have never quite forsaken the tendency of Taoism toward quietism and self-abnegation.

"Recompense injury with kindness," said Lao-tse, who introduced into China the first system of speculative thought, advocating the soft answer that turneth away wrath, to which Confucius is believed to have answered, "Recompense kindness with kindness, but recompense injury with justice."

It remains to be seen just how far philosophy can go in preventing foolhardiness, for even if George Bernard Shaw, the hit-and-run drivers, the Gandhis, the Grandis and the Spanish grandees, pretenders to the throne, are run completely out of the newspapers, their columns given over to war dispatches from the Orient, no one in this country will be quite able to keep up with the news from the Eastern front; unless, of course, they change the names of some of the Japanese and Chinese leaders and towns outside of Nanking and Tokyo.

terest in the matter and is not oblivious to the obligations which the disputants have assumed to their fellow signatories of the pact of Paris as well as in the nine-power pact, should a time arise when it should be advisable to bring forward those obligations."

The Manchurian situation is one of the most complicated problems in international diplomacy, due to many factors, including the traditional friendship of the United States and China, the growing influence of Japan in the Far East and an additional factor which plays a large part in the attitude of Secretary Stimson, the Soviet interest in Manchuria.

Soviet Incident Recalled.

Endeavors of the American State Department to bring the two countries to an understanding by direct negotiation have failed because of reluctance of the Chinese government to enter into a personal meeting and to, the failure of the Japanese to evacuate the territory of Manchuria to their line of military occupation, justified by treaty, along the South Manchurian Railway.

Two years ago when a similar incident had been provoked by conflicting claims of China and Soviet Russia to the Chinese Eastern Railway, Secretary Stimson in a personal note delivered through the French Ambassador at Moscow urged the Soviet government to a reconsideration of its obligations under the Kellogg Pact.

The reply of Maxim Litvinov, then acting commissar for foreign affairs, was an unequivocal rebuke to the American Secretary of State for his interference. The Chinese Russian commission that has been sitting in Moscow arranging the claims arising out of that incident is still in existence.

Russia to Back China.

From a Chinese member of that commission came a report to the Chinese Legation here today, that could not be verified at the Soviet Information Bureau, that assurances had been given China by the Soviet foreign office that "Soviet Russia regarded the Chinese position in the Chinese-Japanese situation with friendly interest and that a partial mobilization of some of the troops of the Soviet Far Eastern army had been ordered as a movement of sympathy."

While it was generally discounted that such a categoric promise had been made, no doubt was expressed that the government at Moscow is closely watching events in Manchuria where Soviet sovereignty over northern Manchuria may possibly bring further complications.

Chiang Threatens War.

Nanking, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—War against Japan was threatened by President Chiang Kaishek of China today, if a "just settlement" of the Chinese-Japanese controversy over Manchuria is not obtained by the League of Nations council which convenes in Geneva tomorrow.

The Nanking government, Chiang said, hoped the league council would take measures to prevent almost inevitable war.

The Chinese president also expressed hope that the league would "properly punish" Japan, on the ground it occupied Chinese territory in Manchuria without justification and refused to abide by decisions of the league.

Addressing the Chinese government's weekly memorial service, Chiang made the following pronouncement:

"I hereby declare that the National government's patience has been tested to the last degree.

Speaks as Generalissimo.

"China respects the league covenant and the Kellogg pact, but if the league and the Kellogg signatories fail to fulfill their solemnly undertaken obligations, China will not hesitate to make the supreme sacrifice—bankrupt the country for half a century and go to war to uphold the sanctity of international agreements and to safeguard the peace of the world."

Speaking both as head of the government and generalissimo of its army and navy, Chiang emphasized that China did not appear before the league as a supplicant seeking protection, but because as a member it was morally obligated to lay the matter before the international body as a peace measure.

The speech was believed to indicate Chinese officials were awaiting league action before taking further steps in the controversy.

Chiang's Talk Discounted.

Tokyo, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The threat of war made today by President Chiang Kai-Shek of China in a speech at Nanking was made known to Japanese and Chinese diplomats as they were engaged in private conference to consider the possibility of negotiations to adjust the Manchurian crisis. They continued their deliberations without commenting upon the belligerent declaration.

A spokesman of the foreign office, however, said the government did not take seriously Chiang's assertion that China would go to war if the League of Nations council meeting tomorrow did not obtain a "just settlement" of the Manchurian differences.

Asserting Chiang had made similar pronouncements heretofore without anything happening, the spokesman said Chiang was merely trying to force the League of Nations and the American Government to act in China's behalf.

Held Trying to Save "Face."

He intimated further that Chiang was trying to save his "face" with the Nanking government, which he heads.

The conference was between Chinese Minister Chiang Tso-Pin and Baron Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister, and lasted more than three hours.

Shidehara was understood to have explained the fundamental principles which Japan felt should be agreed upon before opening negotiations for adjustment of Manchurian troubles.

The principles he laid down were believed to contemplate the pacification to some extent of Japanese national feelings.

These conditions, it was said, may lead to Japanese evacution of territory at present occupied outside the South Manchurian Railway zone.

Japan Ready to Negotiate.

It was made clear that Japan was prepared to enter into negotiations with responsible Chinese representatives.

Minister Chiang Tso-Pin was understood to have named Chang Tso-Hsiang, chairman of the Kirin provincial government of Manchuria, and Wang Shu-Chang as Chinese army officers to assume responsibilities in Manchurian districts to be evacuated by Japanese troops. The minister expressed hope these two officers would be acceptable to Japan, but did not insist upon their selection.

Shidehara and Chiang Tso-Pin probably will meet again privately Wednesday after Chiang has communicated with the Nanking government.

Candidates to Speak at Barcroft.

Candidates for the House of Delegates and 15 candidates for the county board have been invited to address the voters at the third of a series of political mass meetings held under the auspices of the Barcroft School and Civic League, at the Community House tonight at 8 o'clock.

HOOVER AND LAVAL SUBJECTS CHOSEN

Exchange of Explanations Will Make Clear Positions of Nations.

Paris, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—When President Hoover and Premier Laval sit down in Washington October 22 to talk things over they will concentrate on three items—world finance, disarmament and an exchange of explanations designed to make clear the respective positions of the two nations on the international stage.

The program for their conversations, it was learned today, has been agreed upon in a series of interviews between American Ambassador Walter E. Edge and French officials.

As a result of these interviews, it was said, M. Laval and Mr. Hoover will know exactly how far they may dare carry their discussions.

Under the heading of finance will come consideration of war debts and reparations, Franco-American collaboration to maintain the gold standard and restoration of world credit.

In Paris the exchange of explanations—the third point on the program—is considered the most important. It is described here as principally a matter of psychology, and the French assert that, if properly taken care of, it will pave the way for more simple solutions to the problems of finance and disarmament.

The premier and the President have engaged to meet without having prepared definite proposals. The French say that is the reason why M. Laval's delegation of assistants appears like a who's who in disarmament and finance. The premier wants accurate information on these subjects at his finger tips.

The French expect no signed agreements as a result of the premier's visit, but they do hope for something of the sort through diplomatic channels later, when the government will be better informed on the American attitude toward debts, reparations and disarmament.

Grandi to Discuss Debts And Armaments in Capital

Rome, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—As the representative of Premier Mussolini, Foreign Minister Grandi will go to Washington next month empowered to discuss such important matters as armaments, debts and reparations.

But Signor Mussolini, it was said today in government circles, recognizes that the United States alone is qualified to assume leadership in a general movement to deal with the world's problems.

The visit of the foreign minister is viewed in Italy as a move of highest importance.

In government circles it was explained that the similarity of the views of America and Italy became evident when Secretary of State Stimson visited here this summer.

Italian cooperation in the Hoover war debt moratorium and American cooperation in Italy's recent armament truce proposal, it was said, emphasized the desirability of even closer cooperation.

Chinese Army Is Larger; Japan Stronger on Sea

Tokyo Has But 15,000 Men in Manchuria as Against 200,000 Opponents; Force, However, Is Efficient and Well Equipped.

(Associated Press.)

Latest statistics on comparative armaments compiled by the League of Nations estimated the strength of the Chinese army in January, 1929, at 1,800,000 men.

Effectives of the Japanese army were set at 210,880. The statistics also included under "effectives" 66,450 police.

Under the Chinese demobilization program the then existing forces were to be reduced to a total strength of 800,000 men.

China's naval strength was given a total tonnage of 40,292 tons. This was made up of six cruisers, twelve destroyers and 40 ships listed as "miscellaneous craft." Four of the six cruisers were constructed before 1900, while practically every other vessel noted in detail was constructed more than 20 years ago. There were no statistics covering China's naval personnel.

Japan's naval tonnage was placed at 798,394 tons. This was made up of 10 battleships and battle cruisers, 3 aircraft carriers, 37 cruisers, 91 destroyers, 66 submarines and 11 "miscellaneous craft."

Japanese Conscripts, 568,796.

Naval personnel was set at 75,000. The total number of conscripts under the Japanese conscription system, requiring all able bodied Japanese males from 17 to 40 years of age to serve, was placed for 1928 at 568,796.

The Japanese also have an extensive aviation expansion program looking toward 800 planes and a personnel of 6,000 officers and men for the army and 136 planes and two airships for the navy. Much of the latter program has been completed.

The Chinese air program contemplated expansion to be completed by 1935. Details were not given, although the Chinese have made extensive aircraft purchases in the United States.

(United Press.)

A well-armed, highly-trained army of 15,000 men is upholding Japan's interest in Manchuria amid Chinese forces estimated roughly at 200,000.

Since the outbreak of trouble between Japan and China, the Japanese have increased their Manchurian force by approximately 5,000 men. The usual strength is 10,400. These forces are maintained to safeguard the South Manchurian Railroad, running 400 miles north from Dairen to Changchun, and to protect Japanese life and property. Japan has a treaty right to keep approximately 16,000 men in Manchuria.

Some Outside Railroad Zone.

Of these forces, six battalions are strung out along the railroad proper, guarding stations, bridges and culverts. The remainder, one and one-half divisions, are concentrated in various cities. Some of them are outside the railroad zone.

In this fact lies the principal issue between Japan and China. Nanking insists that the troops shall be withdrawn immediately into the treaty zone. Tokyo replies that to do so in this time of stress would expose Japanese civilians outside the zone to mob attacks by Chinese.

According to reliable information here, most of the Japanese forces outside the railroad zone are in Kirin, to the east, and Chengchiatun, to the west of the railroad. There are other large concentrations in Changchun and Mukden, within the zone.

Japanese air forces recently departed from the railroad zone to bomb Chinchow, an important station on the Peiping-Mukden line, about 150 miles from Mukden and 70 miles from the nearest point in the treaty area.

Troops Well Equipped.

The Japanese troops in Manchuria, although few, are exceedingly well equipped. They have modern automatic rifles and efficient machine guns. Ground troops could be supplanted by a well trained Japanese air force now in Manchuria, its exact strength not known.

China has twelve times as many troops in Manchuria as Japan. They are said, however, to be deficient in training and equipment. China's air force is understood to be negligible.

Whether Manchurian troops could be quickly augmented by reinforcements from southern China is considered problematical. Presumably the reinforcements would have to be sent into Manchuria over a single railroad—the Peiping-Mukden line. For several hundred miles this line runs close to the shore of the Yellow Sea. To observers it seems probable that Japan would sent an aircraft carrier into the Yellow Sea and discharge planes to bomb the railroad, thus rendering it temporarily useless.

Russia In Background.

Meanwhile, in the background stands Soviet Russia, whose conduct in the event of a Japanese-Chinese war is unpredictable. At the present time there are said to be five small divisions, totaling about 40,000 men, of Soviet troops in the eastern border territory near Manchuli, where the Chinese Eastern Railroad, running east and west, crosses from Russian into Chinese territory. The presence of these troops is not considered alarming, as they are usually stationed near Manchuli to protect the railroad.

SOVIET FILM SUIT TO OPEN IN ROME

Appeal From Decision in $1,000,000 Case Asked of Italian Court.

Rome, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A $1,000,000 suit involving the Soviet government, the National City Bank of New York and an Italian motion picture millionaire, Giacomo Cibrario, of Turin, will be heard on appeal here tomorrow by the Court of Cassation.

The suit is now in its tenth year, having been first heard in New York in March, 1921. It has already been fought out in two other Italian courts.

In May, 1918, Cibrario, carrying on an extensive motion picture business in Moscow, contracted with the Soviet government to purchase a large amount of American movie equipment. He went to America, and the Soviet opened a credit of $1,000,000 for him with the National City Bank.

Cibrario bought some goods and shipped them to Russia. The Soviet government, however, refused them and brought suit against Cibrario for purchasing goods alleged to be inferior to those called for by the contract, and against the National City Bank for a return of the credit. The New York court dismissed the suit.

The court of appeals of Genoa decided it had no jurisdiction over the National City Bank, but that it did have over Cibrario. The court ordered him to make an accounting.

The case coming up tomorrow before the Court of Cassation is in the nature of a double appeal. Cibrario is asking for a reversal of the order for an accounting. The Soviet is asking for a reversal of the decision that the Italian courts have no jurisdiction over the National City Bank.

SCHOOL TEACHER MACDONALD'S RIVAL

William Coxon Declares He Will Beat Him With Own Methods.

Seaham, Durham, England, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—William Coxon, 47-year-old schoolmaster, of Seaham, who is the opponent of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in the latter's campaign for reelection to Parliament from Seaham Harbor, was confident tonight about his chances of defeating the prime minister.

Coxon sat before his fireplace and discussed a political situation which is fraught with consequences that extend far beyond the borders of this stretch of English country side, scarred with slag heaps of coal mines.

His radio outfit stood on an unpainted soap box in a corner of the room, in which there is one unshaded electric light. The fireplace itself is one of the kind common in English houses of the lower middle class, a combination cook stove, fireplace and water heater.

The cottage has five rooms and was built by the county council authorities. As head master of the elementary schools, Coxon earns £420 (about $1,600) a year. As a member of the House of Commons he would earn £400.

Mrs. Coxon is a frail, hard-working little woman who looks forward to moving to London. They have one son, 20 years old, who is preparing his work for a science degree at Nottingham University. He won his college colors for swimming and cricket.

Coxon himself was a star cricketer. Tonight he confidently predicted that the prime minister would lose his seat in Parliament.

Coxon was born in the south of England, but has lived in Durham 26 years. He has been active in Labor party politics for 25 years and now claims to be practicing the principles which Ramsay MacDonald preached. "If the world wants to recover," he said, "it must cancel the war debts—and nobody would be the loser." He said he has advocated this since he returned from the army after the World War.

Operatic Marriage Status Scrambled

Nobody Seems to Know If Defrere Wed Diva, or When or Where.

West New York, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The marital status of Hilda Burke, Chicago Opera Company soprano, and Desire Defrere, Belgian barytone, remained a jig-saw puzzle of denials and assertions tonight. In Baltimore the couple said they were married in West New York, N. J., last Thursday. But the license, maintained Assistant Town Clerk Harry Swenzen, is still in his office here.

The Rev. John Lehnert, who was said by the singer's mother to have performed the ceremony, denied he married the couple. But he added, "Call me up in two weeks and I'll tell you." Then he hung up.

Mrs. Walter J. Hopkins, the prima donna's mother, said in Baltimore she "knew" her daughter and the barytone were married by Mr. Lehnert, because, she said, she was there with her husband as witness. To cap it all, a William Murphy, who signed the license as witness, could not be found at the address he gave.

De Alvear Resigns Presidential Race

Argentine Candidate Says Need for Tranquillity Was His Motive.

His candidacy was annulled by the Argentine government last week on the ground that his selection was irregular. In resigning today he said the government's decision made his candidacy impossible and Argentina's need at present was "tranquillity and the resumption of normality."

Buenos Aires, Oct 12 (A.P.).—The resignation of Marcelo T. de Alvear as Radical candidate for president of Argentina was read today to a convention of the Radical party here. The convention adjourned until tomorrow afternoon, when it will hear a report of a commission appointed to advise about the party's future action.

Attitude of U. S. Cheers War Premier of Italy

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, war-time premier of Italy, who is visiting here with his wife and daughter, Mrs. Franco Bruno Everadri, said today he saw in America's "power and energy the greatest and surest promise of the future."

"The present hour," he said, "appears to be very difficult. It is of great comfort for me to realize that the sentiment of the American people agrees perfectly with that of the Italian people. They both long for peace with utmost sincerity, and therefore they also desire to promote the necessary way leading to peace—disarmament."

Workman Is Killed As Oil Well Burns

30-Foot Flame Roars in Newly Operated Field in Oklahoma.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A giant torch flared in the newly opened Oklahoma City oil field tonight as efforts were made to extinguish a flaming well, which ignited today and burned a workman to death.

Firemen worked swiftly in an effort to snuff out the 30-foot flame of the No. 2 Gustin producer of the Empire Oil & Gas Co., located a half mile south of the State Fair Grounds in the northeast edge of the great producing area. Because the burning well was on an isolated lease, no property of consequence was in immediate danger.

Charles Biddle, farm boss for Sedgwick Oil Co., an Empire subsidiary, lost his life in an explosion preceding the fire. Dragging Biddle's body from the fire area, A. M. Pasley, fire chief for an oil company, was burned slightly. One man working with Biddle escaped injury.

MACDONALD URGES LABOR REELECTION

Miners Asked to Send Him Back as Aid to Nation's Rehabilitation.

be a slave to the party caucus," Mr. MacDonald continued. "I had no qualms of conscience for the steps I took forming the national government. I should do it again, again and again."

Replying to those who have criticized even his early work for the Labor party, the prime minister mentioned his wife, who has been dead many years.

"In those days we had to pay for the postage of the Labor party," he declared. "We bought out of our own pockets—my wife and I—the very note paper upon which Labor's work was done.

"You borrowed our coal scuttles to sit upon at Labor meetings at our home. Now you criticize the men who exercised their will power and conscience in a time of national crisis."

Strength Is Proved.

The prime minister declared the formation of the national government proved to the whole world the strength of Britain's democracy in a time of emergency, and he appealed for another such demonstration October 27 when the voters go to the polls.

He said the national government must keep the budget balanced, must end borrowing, stabilize the value of the pound and, finally, correct Britain's adverse balance of trade.

"So far the behavior of sterling has been admirable," he continued. "There is no panic because the government has the respect of the whole world. If such respect and confidence goes, the result will be inflation."

He graphically described how the miners might have £20 a week wages but in reality would have less than a few pounds under present conditions.

"You don't eat pounds; you don't wear pounds," he said. "Your shillings are worth only what you buy."

The national government came into being to perform a fundamental task in the world crisis, the prime minister said, and after its work is done its members will separate.

This government, he continued, must pave the way for international conferences on war debts and reparations, but he warned against haste.

Recalling that the Hoover debt moratorium—which he described as an act of great courage—had been put through in a hurry because European nations were cracking one after another. The prime minister said French opinion was not ready for it and before France decided to accept the beneficial effects had seriously ebbed.

Asks for Return.

"I want you to return me to the House of Commons to pave the way to international conferences and to make them successful," he declared. "Men and women of humble circumstances, you who have never been forced to deal with these great problems, I want you to go out as apostles to the coal pits, the street corners and home fireplaces to explain the situation."

During part of his speech, which held his hearers hushed, Mr. MacDonald referred to his age. The village vicar in introducing him had already congratulated him on his birthday.

"My active life is not for long," the prime minister said. "I can see the end of my work."

But when a young heckler suggested he should retire and let a younger man take his place, Mr. MacDonald fired back at him:

"Perhaps you'd be willing to take over the job. In fact, my youth is being renewed by my reception here. During the last few weeks I have worked harder than ever, exhausted a half dozen assistants and am still going strong."

The prime minister arrived at Seaham in a buoyant mood to begin his three-day campaign. On the way to Durham, from where he motored to Seaham, he said he didn't expect an enthusiastic reception but would give the miners "something to think about" in his outline of national problems.

After they have digested his statements, he said, he believed there would be no doubt about the outcome of the election.

Tomorrow he will begin a round of speech-making through the mining villages, explaining in detail such problems as the balance of trade and international issues. He said he anticipated no difficulty whatever in obtaining unity of the national government on the international issues which must be dealt with during the coming months.

Seville Police Break Up Riots by Unemployed

Seville, Spain, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Police broke up demonstrations of unemployed here today after several hundred persons had attacked and looted food shops.

A dozen arrests were made and headquarters of the unemployed were padlocked because of alleged threats against the mayor.

The bakers were on strike and military authorities supplied the city with bread.

UNION CONFERENCE DISCUSSES TRADE

Mexicans Ask Americans to Use Spanish-Speaking Salesman.

(Associated Press.)

Troublesome points in Mexican-American trade relations were discussed frankly yesterday as business men of both nations met around a table at the fourth Pan-American commercial conference.

Free from the glare of publicity and the restraints of official representations that attend formal conference speeches, the men compared notes.

After two hours they emerged from their discussion with resolutions:

Urging cooperation in the completion of the Laredo-Mexico City highway; a study of rail and water rates between the United States and Mexico with a view to equalizing them as between countries; the learning of Spanish by American salesmen and branch plant operators in Mexico, and commending the press for its services in dissemination of Latin American information, at the same time asking further cooperation in suppressing sensationalism.

Question of Highway.

The question of the Laredo-Mexico City highway completion loomed large in the discussion. Mexico needs several millions of dollars for her work on this road, which the group agreed would be an important link in commercial intercourse.

While the group announced no conclusion as to where this money should come from, the suggestion that American money might be profitably used was clearly indicated.

Illustrating the desire for equalized freight rates between the countries, the Mexicans said transportation costs on paper products from Vera Cruz to New York are three times as high as on the same commodity from New York to Vera Cruz.

Several Americans present spoke approvingly of the willingness of Mexican merchants to meet bills when granted reasonable terms.

Urges League Action.

Minister Bellegarde, of Haiti, told delegates to the Fourth Pan-American Commercial Conference he believed participation of the United States in the League of Nations an essential contribution to world peace.

Bellegarde said he believed the time had come for the United States to alter its policy of isolation with regard to European affairs and recalled that in 1922 he had urged that the United States, Germany and Russia join the league.

Reserve Bank Member.

Bellegarde was preceded by Charles S. Hamlin, member of the Federal Reserve Board, representing the Carnegie Endowment. Hamlin referred to President Hoover's plan now being carried forward by the Nation's bankers as a "beacon light."

Chairman Sebastaio Sampaio, of Brazil, was chosen to respond at the final conference session tomorrow to the remarks of Vice President Curtis.

Police of 3 Cities Speed Man to Brother's Side

Newark, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Police of three cities tonight furnished a motorcycle escort to rush Samuel Bernstein, of Detroit, to the United Israel Zion Hospital, Brooklyn, where his brother, Irving, is near death after an operation.

Mr. Bernstein arrived at Newark Airport from Detroit at 5:45 p. m. An escort of Newark police whirled him to the Jersey City line, where police of that city took charge, clearing his way to the Holland Tunnel. In New York a third escort took him to the hospital.

Gem Haul $50,000; 4 Victims Are Tied

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Uncut diamonds, valued at between $45,000 and $50,000, were stolen tonight by two bandits who held up Morris Suderov, his brother, Abraham, a stenographer and an office boy in the Suderov Brothers' jewelry showroom in West Forty-sixth street.

The stenographer, Miss Rose Rich, was tied hand and foot with fishing cord which one bandit drew from his pocket. Abraham Suderov and the office boy, Edward Arnold, 19, were also bound and the three were placed in steel lockers.

Morris Suderov was tied to a chair since there was no locker available for him. Arnold, unloosening his bonds, escaped from the locker 45 minutes later, untied the others and sounded the alarm.

EDISON LOSES SMILE AS STRENGTH FADES

Inventor Sits Up, but Only Nourishment Taken Is Stewed Pears.

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The stupor which has closed over Thomas A. Edison became more pronounced today as the aged inventor neared a state of coma which his physician said would precede death.

Mr. Edison, said Dr. Hubert S. Howe, "is definitely failing from day to day, but it is a very gradual loss."

The inventor's usual attempt to smile when Mrs. Edison has entered the sick room was missing this morning and Dr. Howe said the inventor made no effort to signify, either by tonal or physical expression that he recognized the physician.

Sits Up for While.

"Mr. Edison's condition was practically unchanged this afternoon," said a statement at 4 p. m. from his son, Charles. "He sat up for 2½ hours during the day and is now in bed, asleep. No immediate crisis is feared."

It was explained that the sick man was moved to a pillow-filled chair to afford a change of position and assist in his circulation.

During a 72-hour period ending this morning Dr. Howe said Mr. Edison's only nourishment had been six teaspoonfuls of stewed pears. He has taken no fluids in a week.

Takes No Fluids.

This fact, Dr. Howe asserted, is allowing the uremic poisoning which is the most potent of the four diseases destroying the inventor's life, to spread its insidious source through his body. Fluids are more necessary to counteract the poisoning than food, he explained.

Dr. Howe's bulletin at 10:30 a. m. was as follows:

"Mr. Edison's great vitality and strong heart are still standing him in good stead. He is definitely failing from day to day, but it is a very gradual loss. He had a comparatively good night."

Son Is Encouraged.

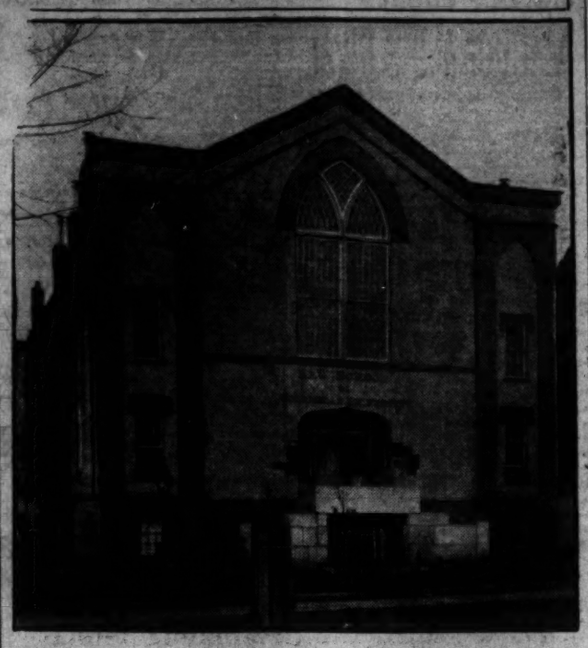
At 10 o'clock Mr. Edison's son, Charles, issued the following bulletin:

"In the absence of Dr. Howe I can only say that Mr. Edison has had such a satisfactory day that the family feels some slight measure of encouragement."

17 Homing Pigeons Stolen.

Rudolph C. Worth, jr., is fast losing his stock of homing pigeons. Yesterday he reported that 17 had been stolen from their loft in the rear of his home at 713 Webster street northwest, two weeks after the it had been broken into and 14 of the birds spirited away.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 73



SOME of the best lawyers in the country received their education in this building on Fifth street between D and E streets northwest. In addition to being the law school of Columbia University, later George Washington University, it was in turn a church, hospital and office building.

The building was erected about 100 years ago by the Trinity Episcopal Church. It was occupied at two different periods by the First Congregational Church, first in 1858, after the congregation of Trinity Church vacated the property for its new church at Third and C streets northwest.

When the First Congregational Church vacated the building in 1865 it was taken over by the law school. Several rooms were rented as offices to lawyers. They were readily taken because of the convenience to the courthouse. The building was razed 25 years ago and the Columbia Building, now occupied almost entirely by lawyers, was erected in its place. This photograph is from the collection of J. F. Du Hamel, local patent attorney.

BISHOP SAYS ROVER BARRED TESTIMONY

(United Press.)

A charge that United States Attorney Leo A. Rover has disregarded three requests that he and other important witnesses be called before the grand jury which has investigated his 1928 campaign expenditures was made yesterday by Bishop James Cannon, jr.

His statement also said that Rover is a "Republican Roman Catholic" and charged that "Rome whether accidentally or otherwise has been allied with the vindictive Senator Glass for the past three years." Glass was author of the resolution under which the Senate investigated Cannon.

The grand jury is expected to report this week whether to indict Cannon and his secretary, Miss Ada L. Burroughs, on charges of violating the corrupt practices act. Its investigation into the case occupied three days of last week.

Cannon's statement said he thrice wrote to Rover, expressing his desire to appear before the grand jury and waiving all immunity. He said he also gave the names of three other persons "whose testimony I believed would be absolutely essential in getting at all the facts." Cannon was not called before the grand jury.

"It is incorrect, therefore," said the bishop's statement, "to say that I have attempted to thwart in any way the investigation of the grand jury, but I have simply insisted that all witnesses having important information without which the grand jury could not reach a successful conclusion be asked to appear and that the law be fully explained by the district attorney."

Cannon said statements in the press have indicated that he attempted to thwart the grand jury's work. "On the contrary," he added, "I wrote to the Attorney General of the United States on October 6, and said, 'I do not desire to even seem to attempt to hamper the investigation by the grand jury.'"

St. Lawrence River Negotiations Begun

Canadian Minister Confers With Undersecretary Castle.

(Associated Press.)

Negotiations between the United States and Canada preliminary to drawing up a treaty for development of a great St. Lawrence River seaway were begun yesterday.

W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister, conferred at length with Undersecretary Castle at the State Department.

The discussion followed a decision announced by the two governments last week to begin negotiations, dealing directly through their diplomatic representatives. The negotiations probably will take many weeks, if not months, as the project involves perplexing problems of disposal of power in addition to its navigation aspects.

English-Speaking Union Felicitates President

Cannon Insists Drys Now Hold Whip Hand Over U. S.

Baltimore, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—In a copyrighted interview by H. L. Mencken the Baltimore Evening Sun today quotes Bishop James Cannon as saying the West and South drys no longer doubt that prohibition can and will be enforced.

"Prohibition," the Southern Methodist Churchman is quoted as saying, "is now in its third stage. In its first stage the wets said, 'They can't enforce it.' In its second stage they said, 'They shan's enforce it,' but now, in its third stage, we drys are doing the talking, and what we say is, 'We will enforce it.'

"Never before had I seen such enthusiasm as I encountered lately in the South and far West. I know, of course, that I was among Methodists, but that is immaterial. They represented fairly the general body of drys. The old doubts and hesitations are gone."

The "thrill" the drys experienced at President Hoover's message to Congress with the Wickersham report, and the "heavy and defiant" drinking of the rich, the bishop said, accounted for the change. "The President's message turned the tide," he said, adding: "He declared plainly that he was against repealing the eighteenth amendment and against amending the Volstead act. In other words, he came out as a flat-footed and uncompromising prohibitionist.

"That is precisely what we wanted and needed. The wavering drys now saw they had a true friend in the White House and they bucked up at once. Today they are full of steam."

Declaring himself a lifelong Democrat, the bishop said he hoped that his church would not have to support Mr. Hoover in 1932, or that there would be what Mencken calls a "holy war in the South with drums rolling in the tabernacles and a watchfire on every hill."

"My hope," he commented, "is that the Democrats will nominate a dry next year. I don't ask them to adopt a dry platform.

"All I ask for is a declaration for law enforcement, but I hope for a dry candidate—say, William G. McAdoo or Cordell Hull. If either is nominated then prohibition will drop out as an issue and the campaign can be fought on some other ground—say, the record of the Hoover administration. If this comes to pass I'll vote for the dry Democrat against Hoover."

Of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt the churchman said: "Let the wets take him. We don't trust him."

The bishop said he was "strongly in favor of making the buyer equally guilty with the seller" in liquor transactions.

"Some of our people believe it would be imprudent to amend the Volstead act to that effect, but I am against them." He added he would "have to ask Mrs. (Mabel Walker) Willebrandt" about the Government's support of the California grape growers whose juice concentrates are finding their way to the public stores. Beer, the bishop added, was "an unpalatable and sickening drink" and he was opposed to its legalization.

"I tried it once," he said, "in England. I won't say I drank it, but I certainly sipped it. It tasted awfully sour and unpleasant. I don't think it is a good thing to give people such things to drink."

Bishop Cannon told Mencken that with prohibition safe and the drys full of enough steam to carry them for a while he was turning his attention to the "apparent decay of marriage."

"In such matters," he said, "I am almost a Catholic. I believe it is fair and decent to grant divorces for desertion, for infidelity and for drunkenness, but beyond that we should not go. If we do so we shall do grave damage to the family, and the family is at the bottom of all Christian institutions."

He added that "incompatible" couples should not be divorced—"They should have been more careful," he said, adding, "I believe it would be a good thing to make marriage somewhat more difficult—that is, to force people to look before they leap. The whole problem is very difficult. I give it a great deal of thought but am still in doubt about the solution."

failure to report certain expenditures in his anti-Smith campaign of 1928.

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Harry L. Goldhurst pleaded guilty October 16, 1929, to charges of conspiracy and fraudulent sales of stock through the mails. He was sentenced to five years in Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

At the same time Charles W. Kable, Goldhurst's partner in the firm of Kable & Co., pleaded guilty and received a suspended sentence.

Previously Goldhurst, at a hearing into the bankruptcy of Kable & Co., testified Bishop Cannon had engaged in stock speculation through the firm.

Last July Goldhurst was among several prisoners sent back to Atlanta from Fort Wadsworth on Staten Island, and Federal authorities began an investigation of reports that some of the prisoners had paid for their transfers from Atlanta to more comfortable places of detention.

TROUBLES IN ORIENT LAID BEFORE LEAGUE

Council to Convene Today to Hear China's Side of Situation.

Geneva, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—League of Nations leaders congregated here tonight to devise measures to prevent a Sino-Japanese war and to save the league from the reproach of impotency.

Strengthened by the presence of the foreign ministers of Britain and France—Lord Reading and Aristide Briand—the council convenes in extraordinary session at noon tomorrow to hear again China's persistent plea for intervention in Manchuria "to safeguard the peace of nations."

International leaders took courage from many proofs that the United States is lending full moral support to their efforts to restore Pacific relations between the Japanese and Chinese governments.

Conflict More Menacing.

Since the council adjourned a fortnight ago after admonishing the two disputants to restrain their troops and to avoid aggravating the situation, the Manchurian conflict has assumed much more menacing proportions.

But the council that meets tomorrow will be composed of far more responsible statesmen than the council that recently adjourned, and assurances of cordial American cooperation in the work of peace have nerved the league's chiefs to a more determined attitude.

With the influence, prestige and—some commentators declare—even the life of the league at stake, high officials tonight testified to the supreme gravity of the situation and to the necessity for proof of the vitality and efficacy of the Geneva institution.

Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese spokesman, has remained in Geneva throughout the interval since the recent council meeting, having refused the post of Chinese foreign minister in order to devote himself completely to the work of pressing for league intervention.

Japan Envoy Returns.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japan's representative, returned today and discussed the situation with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league.

Lord Reading and Viscount Cecil of Chelwood conferred with Sir Eric during the afternoon. M. Briand and Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, as well as the German representative, were expected tonight.

Meanwhile, the attitude of the Chinese and Japanese spokesmen constituted an apparent deadlock. Dr. Sze still asks the council to take steps to get Japanese troops out of the parts of Manchuria into which they have gone without sanction of treaty rights.

M. Yoshizawa, on the other hand, maintains that the Chinese are continuing to provoke bloody encounters in Manchuria and are inciting anti-Japanese agitation throughout China, and Japanese lives and property still are endangered.

Stimson Note Pleases.

The receipt of Secretary of State Stimson's note, declaring that the United States would work independently to reinforce the league's efforts to bring peace to Manchuria, gave the greatest satisfaction to anxious league officials. The United States Consul General, Prentiss Gilbert, has been in frequent conference with Sir Eric today and yesterday.

Miss Lambie to Speak Tonight.

Miss Margaret Lambie, Washington attorney, will speak tonight at a meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Alexandria, at 7 o'clock, in the George Mason Hotel. Miss Eleanor Watkins, membership chairman, is in charge of the program, assisting Mrs. Albert M. Briggs, program chairman.

Japan and China Yearn For Front Page Honors

By JOHN J. DALY

UNLESS something is done about it, Japan and China are getting ready to stage a show of their own on the other side of the world.

Jealous of all the space allotted by newspapers to George Bernard Shaw, the Sunday parades in London, Mahatma Gandhi, and Dino Grandi (Mussolini's head man in foreign affairs), China and Japan want recognition.

Publicity-seeking is something new for China, always inclined to look toward the past rather than toward the future; but the world being what it is, China at last is getting on the band wagon.

* * * *

THE Japs, forward-looking people, once they got into the swing of showmanship, were not long in adapting themselves to ultramodern conditions.

Any spectacular show staged by these two peoples will be worth while watching. Here will come into conflict all that is old in the oldest civilization, aside from the Egyptians, who have about given up the ghost, and quite a lot that is new in the realm of mankind.

While the Japs are not exactly newcomers on the scene, they are not quite so antiquarian as the Chinese. It is still difficult, for instance, to imagine a Chinaman piloting an airplane.

* * * *

STILL, the Chinese have become air-minded, what with the recent bombings in Manchuria, where the Japs are said to have worked a bit of aerial jiu-jitsu on the contested railroad properties.

All of these new developments—radio, television, and the like—are putting China on the qui vive, and if the younger of the two civilizations in the Orient gets too gay the world is liable to see the greatest show ever staged in that part of the world. The Chinese come from a long race of magicians. They believe, fundamentally, in The Book of the Dead, but they have an eye, too, on the pages of Life.

From the days of the old-line mikados, when Japan was Dai Nippon, and before the constitutional monarchy came into being, to this catch-as-catch-can scheme of existence, the Japs have come a long, long way; but they have landed right in the front ranks of the nations of the world. So, anything they do is watched with keen interest by all the powers, ever jealous of their own prestige. The Japanese and the Chinese, in the language of the theater, are "trying to steal the show."

* * * *

OF course, it may all prove to be a tempest in a teapot. The Chinese, even with all the modernism surrounding them, have never quite forsaken the tendency of Taoism toward quietism and self-abnegation.

"Recompense injury with kindness," said Lao-tse, who introduced into China the first system of speculative thought, advocating the soft answer that turneth away wrath, to which Confucius is believed to have answered, "Recompense kindness with kindness, but recompense injury with justice."

It remains to be seen just how far philosophy can go in preventing foolhardiness, for even if George Bernard Shaw, the hit-and-run drivers, the Gandhis, the Grandis and the Spanish grandees, pretenders to the throne, are run completely out of the newspapers, their columns given over to war dispatches from the Orient, no one in this country will be quite able to keep up with the news from the Eastern front; unless, of course, they change the names of some of the Japanese and Chinese leaders and towns outside of Nanking and Tokyo.

terest in the matter and is not oblivious to the obligations which the disputants have assumed to their fellow signatories of the pact of Paris as well as in the nine-power pact, should a time arise when it should be advisable to bring forward those obligations."

The Manchurian situation is one of the most complicated problems in international diplomacy, due to many factors, including the traditional friendship of the United States and China, the growing influence of Japan in the Far East and an additional factor which plays a large part in the attitude of Secretary Stimson, the Soviet interest in Manchuria.

Soviet Incident Recalled.

Endeavors of the American State Department to bring the two countries to an understanding by direct negotiation have failed because of reluctance of the Chinese government to enter into a personal meeting and to, the failure of the Japanese to evacuate the territory of Manchuria to their line of military occupation, justified by treaty, along the South Manchurian Railway.

Two years ago when a similar incident had been provoked by conflicting claims of China and Soviet Russia to the Chinese Eastern Railway, Secretary Stimson in a personal note delivered through the French Ambassador at Moscow urged the Soviet government to a reconsideration of its obligations under the Kellogg Pact.

The reply of Maxin Litvinov, then acting commissar for foreign affairs, was an unequivocal rebuke to the American Secretary of State for his interference. The Chinese Russian commission that has been sitting in Moscow arranging the claims arising out of that incident is still in existence.

Russia to Back China.

From a Chinese member of that commission came a report to the Chinese Legation here today, that could not be verified at the Soviet Information Bureau, that assurances had been given China by the Soviet foreign office that "Soviet Russia regarded the Chinese position in the Chinese-Japanese situation with friendly interest and that a partial mobilization of some of the troops of the Soviet Far Eastern army had been ordered as a movement of sympathy."

While it was generally discounted that such a categoric promise had been made, no doubt was expressed that the government at Moscow is closely watching events in Manchuria where Soviet sovereignty over northern Manchuria may possibly bring further complications.

Chiang Threatens War.

Nanking, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—War against Japan was threatened by President Chiang Kaishek of China today, if a "just settlement" of the Chinese-Japanese controversy over Manchuria is not obtained by the League of Nations council which convenes in Geneva tomorrow.

The Nanking government, Chiang said, hoped the league council would take measures to prevent almost inevitable war.

The Chinese president also expressed hope that the league would "properly punish" Japan, on the ground it occupied Chinese territory in Manchuria without justification and refused to abide by decisions of the league.

Addressing the Chinese government's weekly memorial service, Chiang made the following pronouncement:

"I hereby declare that the National government's patience has been tested to the last degree.

Speaks as Generalissimo.

"China respects the league covenant and the Kellogg pact, but if the league and the Kellogg signatories fail to fulfill their solemnly undertaken obligations, China will not hesitate to make the supreme sacrifice—bankrupt the country for half a century and go to war to uphold the sanctity of international agreements and to safeguard the peace of the world."

Speaking both as head of the government and generalissimo of its army and navy, Chiang emphasized that China did not appear before the league as a supplicant seeking protection, but because as a member it was morally obligated to lay the matter before the international body as a peace measure.

The speech was believed to indicate Chinese officials were awaiting league action before taking further steps in the controversy.

Chiang's Talk Discounted.

Tokyo, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The threat of war made today by President Chiang Kai-Shek of China in a speech at Nanking was made known to Japanese and Chinese diplomats as they were engaged in private conference to consider the possibility of negotiations to adjust the Manchurian crisis. They continued their deliberations without commenting upon the belligerent declaration.

A spokesman of the foreign office, however, said the government did not take seriously Chiang's assertion that China would go to war if the League of Nations council meeting tomorrow did not obtain a "just settlement" of the Manchurian differences.

Asserting Chiang had made similar pronouncements heretofore without anything happening, the spokesman said Chiang was merely trying to force the League of Nations and the American Government to act in China's behalf.

Held Trying to Save "Face."

He intimated further that Chiang was trying to save his "face" with the Nanking government, which he heads.

The conference was between Chinese Minister Chiang Tso-Pin and Baron Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister, and lasted more than three hours.

Shidehara was understood to have explained the fundamental principles which Japan felt should be agreed upon before opening negotiations for adjustment of Manchurian troubles.

The principles he laid down were believed to contemplate the pacification to some extent of Japanese national feelings.

These conditions, it was said, may lead to Japanese evacution of territory at present occupied outside the South Manchurian Railway zone.

Japan Ready to Negotiate.

It was made clear that Japan was prepared to enter into negotiations with responsible Chinese representatives.

Minister Chiang Tso-Pin was understood to have named Chang Tso-Hsiang, chairman of the Kirin provincial government of Manchuria, and Wang Shu-Chang as Chinese army officers to assume responsibilities in Manchurian districts to be evacuated by Japanese troops. The minister expressed hope these two officers would be acceptable to Japan, but did not insist upon their selection.

Shidehara and Chiang Tso-Pin probably will meet again privately Wednesday after Chiang has communicated with the Nanking government.

Candidates to Speak at Barcroft.

Candidates for the House of Delegates and 15 candidates for the county board have been invited to address the voters at the third of a series of political mass meetings held under the auspices of the Barcroft School and Civic League, at the Community House tonight at 8 o'clock.

HOOVER AND LAVAL SUBJECTS CHOSEN

Exchange of Explanations Will Make Clear Positions of Nations.

Paris, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—When President Hoover and Premier Laval sit down in Washington October 22 to talk things over they will concentrate on three items—world finance, disarmament and an exchange of explanations designed to make clear the respective positions of the two nations on the international stage.

The program for their conversations, it was learned today, has been agreed upon in a series of interviews between American Ambassador Walter E. Edge and French officials.

As a result of these interviews, it was said, M. Laval and Mr. Hoover will know exactly how far they may dare carry their discussions.

Under the heading of finance will come consideration of war debts and reparations, Franco-American collaboration to maintain the gold standard and restoration of world credit.

In Paris the exchange of explanations—the third point on the program—is considered the most important. It is described here as principally a matter of psychology, and the French assert that, if properly taken care of, it will pave the way for more simple solutions to the problems of finance and disarmament.

The premier and the President have engaged to meet without having prepared definite proposals. The French say that is the reason why M. Laval's delegation of assistants appears like a who's who in disarmament and finance. The premier wants accurate information on these subjects at his finger tips.

The French expect no signed agreements as a result of the premier's visit, but they do hope for something of the sort through diplomatic channels later, when the government will be better informed on the American attitude toward debts, reparations and disarmament.

Grandi to Discuss Debts And Armaments in Capital

Rome, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—As the representative of Premier Mussolini, Foreign Minister Grandi will go to Washington next month empowered to discuss such important matters as armaments, debts and reparations.

But Signor Mussolini, it was said today in government circles, recognizes that the United States alone is qualified to assume leadership in a general movement to deal with the world's problems.

The visit of the foreign minister is viewed in Italy as a move of highest importance.

In government circles it was explained that the similarity of the views of America and Italy became evident when Secretary of State Stimson visited here this summer.

Italian cooperation in the Hoover war debt moratorium and American cooperation in Italy's recent armament truce proposal, it was said, emphasized the desirability of even closer cooperation.

Chinese Army Is Larger; Japan Stronger on Sea

Tokyo Has But 15,000 Men in Manchuria as Against 200,000 Opponents; Force, However, Is Efficient and Well Equipped.

(Associated Press.)

Latest statistics on comparative armaments compiled by the League of Nations estimated the strength of the Chinese army in January, 1929, at 1,800,000 men.

Effectives of the Japanese army were set at 210,880. The statistics also included under "effectives" 66,450 police.

Under the Chinese demobilization program the then existing forces were to be reduced to a total strength of 800,000 men.

China's naval strength was given a total tonnage of 40,292 tons. This was made up of six cruisers, twelve destroyers and 40 ships listed as "miscellaneous craft." Four of the six cruisers were constructed before 1900, while practically every other vessel noted in detail was constructed more than 20 years ago. There were no statistics covering China's naval personnel.

Japan's naval tonnage was placed at 798,394 tons. This was made up of 10 battleships and battle cruisers, 3 aircraft carriers, 37 cruisers, 91 destroyers, 66 submarines and 11 "miscellaneous craft."

Japanese Conscripts, 368,796.

Naval personnel was set at 75,000. The total number of conscripts under the Japanese conscription system, requiring all able bodied Japanese males from 17 to 40 years of age to serve, was placed for 1928 at 568,796.

The Japanese also have an extensive aviation expansion program looking toward 800 planes and a personnel of 6,000 officers and men for the army and 136 planes and two airships for the navy. Much of the latter program has been completed.

The Chinese air program contemplated expansion to be completed by 1935. Details were not given, although the Chinese have made extensive aircraft purchases in the United States.

(United Press.)

A well-armed, highly-trained army of 15,000 men is upholding Japan's interest in Manchuria amid Chinese forces estimated roughly at 200,000.

Since the outbreak of trouble between Japan and China, the Japanese have increased their Manchurian force by approximately 5,000 men. The usual strength is 10,400. These forces are maintained to safeguard the South Manchurian Railroad, running 400 miles north from Dairen to Changchun, and to protect Japanese life and property. Japan has a treaty right to keep approximately 16,000 men in Manchuria.

Some Outside Railroad Zone.

Of these forces, six battalions are strung out along the railroad proper, guarding stations, bridges and culverts. The remainder, one and one-half divisions, are concentrated in various cities. Some of them are outside the railroad zone.

In this fact lies the principal issue between Japan and China. Nanking insists that the troops shall be withdrawn immediately into the treaty zone. Tokyo replies that to do so in this time of stress would expose Japanese civilians outside the zone to mob attacks by Chinese.

According to reliable information here, most of the Japanese forces outside the railroad zone are in Kirin, to the east, and Chengchiatun, to the west of the railroad. There are other large concentrations in Changchun and Mukden, within the zone.

Japanese air forces recently departed from the railroad zone to bomb Chinchow, an important station on the Peiping-Mukden line, about 150 miles from Mukden and 70 miles from the nearest point in the treaty area.

Troops Well Equipped.

The Japanese troops in Manchuria, although few, are exceedingly well equipped. They have modern automatic rifles and efficient machine guns. Ground troops could be supplanted by a well trained Japanese air force now in Manchuria, its exact strength not known.

China has twelve times as many troops in Manchuria as Japan. They are said, however, to be deficient in training and equipment. China's air force is understood to be negligible.

Whether Manchurian troops could be quickly augmented by reinforcements from southern China is considered problematical. Presumably the reinforcements would have to be sent into Manchuria over a single railroad—the Peiping-Mukden line. For several hundred miles this line runs close to the shore of the Yellow Sea. To observers it seems probable that Japan would sent an aircraft carrier into the Yellow Sea and discharge planes to bomb the railroad, thus rendering it temporarily useless.

Russia In Background.

Meanwhile, in the background stands Soviet Russia, whose conduct in the event of a Japanese-Chinese war is unpredictable. At the present time there are said to be five small divisions, totaling about 40,000 men, of Soviet troops in the eastern border territory near Manchuli, where the Chinese Eastern Railroad, running east and west, crosses from Russian into Chinese territory. The presence of these troops is not considered alarming, as they are usually stationed near Manchuli to protect the railroad.

SOVIET FILM SUIT TO OPEN IN ROME

Appeal From Decision in $1,000,000 Case Asked of Italian Court.

Rome, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A $1,000,000 suit involving the Soviet government, the National City Bank of New York and an Italian motion picture millionaire, Giacomo Cibrario, of Turin, will be heard on appeal here tomorrow by the Court of Cassation.

The suit is now in its tenth year, having been first heard in New York in March, 1921. It has already been fought out in two other Italian courts.

In May, 1918, Cibrario, carrying on an extensive motion picture business in Moscow, contracted with the Soviet government to purchase a large amount of American movie equipment. He went to America, and the Soviet opened a credit of $1,000,000 for him with the National City Bank.

Cibrario bought some goods and shipped them to Russia. The Soviet government, however, refused them and brought suit against Cibrario for purchasing goods alleged to be inferior to those called for by the contract, and against the National City Bank for a return of the credit. The New York court dismissed the suit.

The court of appeals of Genoa decided it had no jurisdiction over the National City Bank, but that it did have over Cibrario. The court ordered him to make an accounting.

The case coming up tomorrow before the Court of Cassation is in the nature of a double appeal. Cibrario is asking for a reversal of the order for an accounting. The Soviet is asking for a reversal of the decision that the Italian courts have no jurisdiction over the National City Bank.

SCHOOL TEACHER MACDONALD'S RIVAL

Seaham, Durham, England, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—William Coxon, 47-year-old schoolmaster, of Seaham, who is the opponent of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in the latter's campaign for reelection to Parliament from Seaham Harbor, was confident tonight about his chances of defeating the prime minister.

Coxon sat before his fireplace and discussed a political situation which is fraught with consequences that extend far beyond the borders of this stretch of English country side, scarred with slag heaps of coal mines.

His radio outfit stood on an unpainted soap box in a corner of the room, in which there is one unshaded electric light. The fireplace itself is one of the kind common in English houses of the lower middle class, a combination cook stove, fireplace and water heater.

The cottage has five rooms and was built by the county council authorities. As head master of the elementary schools, Coxon earns £420 (about $1,600) a year. As a member of the House of Commons he would earn £400.

Mrs. Coxon is a frail, hard-working little woman who looks forward to moving to London. They have one son, 20 years old, who is preparing his work for a science degree at Nottingham University. He won his college colors for swimming and cricket.

Coxon himself was a star cricketer. Tonight he confidently predicted that the prime minister would lose his seat in Parliament.

Coxon was born in the south of England, but has lived in Durham 26 years. He has been active in Labor party politics for 25 years and now claims to be practicing the principles which Ramsay MacDonald preached.

"If the world wants to recover," he said, "it must cancel the war debts—and nobody would be the loser." He said he has advocated this since he returned from the army after the World War.

Operatic Marriage Status Scrambled

Nobody Seems to Know If Defrere Wed Diva, or When or Where.

West New York, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The marital status of Hilda Burke, Chicago Opera Company soprano, and Desire Defrere, Belgian barytone, remained a jig-saw puzzle of denials and assertions tonight. In Baltimore the couple said they were married in West New York, N. J., last Thursday. But the license, maintained Assistant Town Clerk Harry Swensen, is still in his office here.

The Rev. John Lehnert, who was said by the singer's mother to have performed the ceremony, denied he married the couple. But he added, "Call me up in two weeks and I'll tell you." Then he hung up.

Mrs. Walter J. Hopkins, the prima donna's mother, said in Baltimore she "knew" her daughter and the barytone were married by Mr. Lehnert, because, she said, she was there with her husband as witness. To cap it all, a William Murphy, who signed the license as witness, could not be found at the address he gave.

De Alvear Resigns Presidential Race

Argentine Candidate Says Need for Tranquillity Was His Motive.

His candidacy was annulled by the Argentine government last week on the ground that his selection was irregular. In resigning today he said the government's decision made his candidacy impossible and Argentina's need at present was "tranquillity and the resumption of normality."

Buenos Aires, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The resignation of Marcelo T. de Alvear as Radical candidate for president of Argentina was read today to a convention of the Radical party here. The convention adjourned until tomorrow afternoon, when it will hear a report of a commission appointed to advise about the party's future action.

Attitude of U. S. Cheers War Premier of Italy

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, war-time premier of Italy, who is visiting here with his wife and daughter, Mrs. Franco Bruno Everadri, said today he saw in America's "power and energy the greatest and surest promise of the future."

"The present hour," he said, "appears to be very difficult. It is of great comfort for me to realize that the sentiment of the American people agrees perfectly with that of the Italian people. They both long for peace with utmost sincerity, and therefore they also desire to promote the necessary way leading to peace—disarmament."

Workman Is Killed As Oil Well Burns

Oklahoma City, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A giant torch flared in the newly opened Oklahoma City oil field tonight as efforts were made to extinguish a flaming well, which ignited today and burned a workman to death.

Firemen worked swiftly in an effort to snuff out the 30-foot flame of the No. 2 Gustin producer of the Empire Oil & Gas Co., located a half mile south of the State Fair Grounds in the northeast edge of the great producing area. Because the burning well was on an isolated lease, no property of consequence was in immediate danger.

Charles Biddle, farm boss for Sedgwick Oil Co., an Empire subsidiary, lost his life in an explosion preceding the fire. Dragging Biddle's body from the fire area, A. M. Pasley, fire chief for an oil company, was burned slightly. One man working with Biddle escaped injury.

MACDONALD URGES LABOR REELECTION

Miners Asked to Send Him Back as Aid to Nation's Rehabilitation.

be a slave to the party caucus," Mr. MacDonald continued. "I had no qualms of conscience for the steps I took forming the national government. I should do it again, again and again."

Replying to those who have criticized even his early work for the Labor party, the prime minister mentioned his wife, who has been dead many years.

"In those days we had to pay for the postage of the Labor party," he declared. "We bought out of our own pockets—my wife and I—the very note paper upon which Labor's work was done.

"You borrowed our coal scuttles to sit upon at Labor meetings at our home. Now you criticize the men who exercised their will power and conscience in a time of national crisis."

Strength Is Proved.

The prime minister declared the formation of the national government proved to the whole world the strength of Britain's democracy in a time of emergency, and he appealed for another such demonstration October 27 when the voters go to the polls.

He said the national government must keep the budget balanced, must end borrowing, stabilize the value of the pound and, finally, correct Britain's adverse balance of trade.

"So far the behavior of sterling has been admirable," he continued. "There is no panic because the government has the respect of the whole world. If such respect and confidence goes, the result will be inflation."

He graphically described how the miners might have £20 a week wages but in reality would have less than a few pounds under present conditions.

"You don't eat pounds; you don't wear pounds," he said. "Your shillings are worth only what you buy."

The national government came into being to perform a fundamental task in the world crisis, the prime minister said, and after its work is done its members will separate.

This government, he continued, must pave the way for international conferences on war debts and reparations, but he warned against haste.

Recalling that the Hoover debt moratorium—which he described as an act of great courage—had been put through in a hurry because European nations were cracking one after another. The prime minister said French opinion was not ready for it and before France decided to accept the beneficial effects had seriously ebbed.

Asks for Return.

"I want you to return me to the House of Commons to pave the way to international conferences and to make them successful," he declared.

"Men and women of humble circumstances, you who have never been forced to deal with these great problems, I want you to go out as apostles to the coal pits, the street corners and home fireplaces to explain the situation."

During part of his speech, which held his hearers hushed, Mr. MacDonald referred to his age. The village vicar in introducing him had already congratulated him on his birthday.

"My active life is not for long," the prime minister said. "I can see the end of my work."

But when a young heckler suggested he should retire and let a younger man take his place, Mr. MacDonald fired back at him:

"Perhaps you'd be willing to take over the job. In fact, my youth is being renewed by my reception here. During the last few weeks I have worked harder than ever, exhausted a half dozen assistants and am still going strong."

The prime minister arrived at Seaham in a buoyant mood to begin his three-day campaign. On the way to Durham, from where he motored to Seaham, he said he didn't expect an enthusiastic reception but would give the miners "something to think about" in his outline of national problems.

After they have digested his statements, he said, he believed there would be no doubt about the outcome of the election.

Tomorrow he will begin a round of speech-making through the mining villages, explaining in detail such problems as the balance of trade and international issues. He said he anticipated no difficulty whatever in obtaining unity of the national government on the international issues which must be dealt with during the coming months.

Seville Police Break Up Riots by Unemployed

Seville, Spain, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Police broke up demonstrations of unemployed here today after several hundred persons had attacked and looted food shops.

A dozen arrests were made and headquarters of the unemployed were padlocked because of alleged threats against the mayor.

The bakers were on strike and military authorities supplied the city with bread.

Mexicans Ask Americans to Use Spanish-Speaking Salesman.

(Associated Press.)

Troublesome points in Mexican-American trade relations were discussed frankly yesterday as business men of both nations met around a table at the fourth Pan-American commercial conference.

Free from the glare of publicity and the restraints of official representations that attend formal conference speeches, the men compared notes.

After two hours they emerged from their discussion with resolutions:

Urging cooperation in the completion of the Laredo-Mexico City highway; a study of rail and water rates between the United States and Mexico with a view to equalizing them as between countries; the learning of Spanish by American salesmen and branch plant operators in Mexico, and commending the press for its services in dissemination of Latin American information, at the same time asking further cooperation in suppressing sensationalism.

Question of Highway.

The question of the Laredo-Mexico City highway completion loomed large in the discussion. Mexico needs several millions of dollars for her work on this road, which the group agreed would be an important link in commercial intercourse.

While the group announced no conclusion as to where this money should come from, the suggestion that American money might be profitably used was clearly indicated.

Illustrating the desire for equalized freight rates between the countries, the Mexicans said transportation costs on paper products from Vera Cruz to New York are three times as high as on the same commodity from New York to Vera Cruz.

Several Americans present spoke approvingly of the willingness of Mexican merchants to meet bills when granted reasonable terms.

Urges League Action.

Minister Bellegarde, of Haiti, told delegates to the Fourth Pan-American Commercial Conference he believed participation of the United States in the League of Nations an essential contribution to world peace.

Bellegarde said he believed the time had come for the United States to alter its policy of isolation with regard to European affairs and recalled that in 1922 he had urged that the United States, Germany and Russia join the league.

Reserve Bank Member.

Bellegarde was preceded by Charles S. Hamlin, member of the Federal Reserve Board, representing the Carnegie Endowment. Hamlin referred to President Hoover's plan now being carried forward by the Nation's bankers as a "beacon light."

Chairman Sebastaio Sampaio, of Brazil, was chosen to respond at the final conference session tomorrow to the remarks of Vice President Curtis.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Police of three cities tonight furnished a motorcycle escort to rush Samuel Bernstein, of Detroit, to the United Israel Zion Hospital, Brooklyn, where his brother, Irving, is near death after an operation.

Mr. Bernstein arrived at Newark Airport from Detroit at 5:45 p. m. An escort of Newark police whirled him to the Jersey City line, where police of that city took charge, clearing his way to the Holland Tunnel. In New York a third escort took him to the hospital.

Gem Haul $50,000; 4 Victims Are Tied

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Uncut diamonds, valued at between $45,000 and $50,000, were stolen tonight by two bandits who held up Morris Suderov, his brother, Abraham, a stenographer and an office boy in the Suderov Brothers' jewelry showroom in West Forty-sixth street.

The stenographer, Miss Rose Rich, was tied hand and foot with fishing cord which one bandit drew from his pocket. Abraham Suderov and the office boy, Edward Arnold, 19, were also bound and the three were placed in steel lockers.

Morris Suderov was tied to a chair since there was no locker available for him. Arnold, unloosening his bonds, escaped from the locker 45 minutes later, untied the others and sounded the alarm.

EDISON LOSES SMILE AS STRENGTH FADES

Inventor Sits Up, but Only Nourishment Taken Is Stewed Pears.

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The stupor which has closed over Thomas A. Edison became more pronounced today as the aged inventor neared a state of coma which his physician said would precede death.

Mr. Edison, said Dr. Hubert S. Howe, "is definitely failing from day to day, but it is a very gradual loss."

The inventor's usual attempt to smile when Mrs. Edison has entered the sick room was missing this morning and Dr. Howe said the inventor made no effort to signify, either by tonal or physical expression that he recognized the physician.

Sits Up for While.

"Mr. Edison's condition was practically unchanged this afternoon," said a statement at 4 p. m. from his son, Charles. "He sat up for 2½ hours during the day and is now in bed, asleep. No immediate crisis is feared."

It was explained that the sick man was moved to a pillow-filled chair to afford a change of position and assist in his circulation.

During a 72-hour period ending this morning Dr. Howe said Mr. Edison's only nourishment had been six teaspoonfuls of stewed pears. He has taken no fluids in a week.

Takes No Fluids.

This fact, Dr. Howe asserted, is allowing the uremic poisoning which is the most potent of the four diseases destroying the inventor's life, to spread its insidious source through his body. Fluids are more necessary to counteract the poisoning than food, he explained.

Dr. Howe's bulletin at 10:30 a. m. was as follows:

"Mr. Edison's great vitality and strong heart are still standing him in good stead. He is definitely failing from day to day, but it is a very gradual loss. He had a comparatively good night."

Son Is Encouraged.

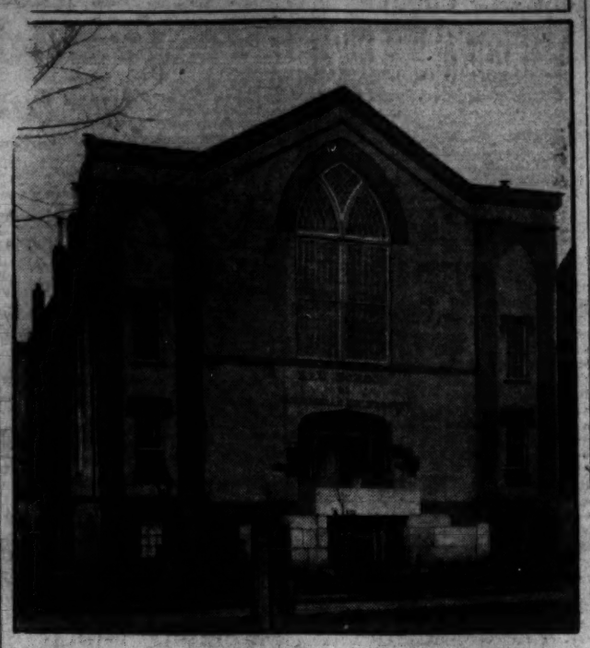
At 10 o'clock Mr. Edison's son, Charles, issued the following bulletin:

"In the absence of Dr. Howe I can only say that Mr. Edison has had such a satisfactory day that the family feels some slight measure of encouragement."

17 Homing Pigeons Stolen.

Rudolph C. Worth, jr., is fast losing his stock of homing pigeons. Yesterday he reported that 17 had been stolen from their loft in the rear of his home at 713 Webster street northwest, two weeks after the it had been broken into and 14 of the birds spirited away.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 73



SOME of the best lawyers in the country received their education in this building on Fifth street between D and E streets northwest. In addition to being the law school of Columbia University, later George Washington University, it was in turn a church, hospital and office building.

The building was erected about 100 years ago by the Trinity Episcopal Church. It was occupied at two different periods by the First Congregational Church, first in 1858, after the congregation of Trinity Church vacated the property for its new church at Third and C streets northwest.

When the First Congregational Church vacated the building in 1865 it was taken over by the law school. Several rooms were rented as offices to lawyers. They were readily taken because of the convenience to the courthouse. The building was razed 25 years ago and the Columbia Building, now occupied almost entirely by lawyers, was erected in its place. This photograph is from the collection of J. F. Du Hamel, local patent attorney.

Cannon Insists Drys Now Hold Whip Hand Over U. S.

Baltimore, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—In a copyrighted interview by H. L. Mencken the Baltimore Evening Sun today quotes Bishop James Cannon as saying the West and South drys no longer doubt that prohibition can and will be enforced.

"Prohibition," the Southern Methodist Churchman is quoted as saying, "is now in its third stage. In its first stage the wets said, 'They can't enforce it.' In its second stage they said, 'They shan's enforce it,' but now, in its third stage, we drys are doing the talking, and what we say is, 'We will enforce it.'

"Never before had I seen such enthusiasm as I encountered lately in the South and far West. I know, of course, that I was among Methodists, but that is immaterial. They represented fairly the general body of drys. The old doubts and hesitations are gone."

The "thrill" the drys experienced at President Hoover's message to Congress with the Wickersham report, and the "heavy and defiant" drinking of the rich, the bishop said, accounted for the change. "The President's message turned the tide," he said, adding: "He declared plainly that he was against repealing the eighteenth amendment and against amending the Volstead act. In other words, he came out as a flat-footed and uncompromising prohibitionist.

"That is precisely what we wanted and needed. The wavering drys now saw they had a true friend in the White House and they bucked up at once. Today they are full of steam."

Declaring himself a lifelong Democrat, the bishop said he hoped that his church would not have to support Mr. Hoover in 1932, or that there would be what Mencken calls a "holy war in the South with drums rolling in the tabernacles and a watchfire on every hill."

"My hope," he commented, "is that the Democrats will nominate a dry next year. I don't ask them to adopt a dry platform.

"All I ask for is a declaration for law enforcement, but I hope for a dry candidate—say, William G. McAdoo or Cordell Hull. If either is nominated then prohibition will drop out as an issue and the campaign can be fought on some other ground—say, the record of the Hoover administration. If this comes to pass I'll vote for the dry Democrat against Hoover."

Of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt the churchman said: "Let the wets take him. We don't trust him."

The bishop said he was "strongly in favor of making the buyer equally guilty with the seller" in liquor transactions.

"Some of our people believe it would be imprudent to amend the Volstead act to that effect, but I am against them." He added he would "have to ask Mrs. (Mabel Walker) Willebrandt" about the Government's support of the California grape growers whose juice concentrates are finding their way to the public stores. Beer, the bishop added, was "an unpalatable and sickening drink" and he was opposed to its legalization.

"I tried it once," he said, "in England. I won't say I drank it, but I certainly sipped it. It tasted awfully sour and unpleasant. I don't think it is a good thing to give people such things to drink."

Bishop Cannon told Mencken that with prohibition safe and the drys full of enough steam to carry them for a while he was turning his attention to the "apparent decay of marriage."

"In such matters," he said, "I am almost a Catholic. I believe it is fair and decent to grant divorces for desertion, for infidelity and for drunkenness, but beyond that we should not go. If we do so we shall do grave damage to the family, and the family is at the bottom of all Christian institutions."

He added that "incompatible" couples should not be divorced—"They should have been more careful," he said, adding, "I believe it would be a good thing to make marriage somewhat more difficult—that is, to force people to look before they leap. The whole problem is very difficult. I give it a great deal of thought but am still in doubt about the solution."

BISHOP SAYS ROVER BARRED TESTIMONY

(United Press.)

A charge that United States Attorney Leo A. Rover has disregarded three requests that he and other important witnesses be called before the grand jury which has investigated his 1928 campaign expenditures was made yesterday by Bishop James Cannon, jr.

His statement also said that Rover is a "Republican Roman Catholic" and charged that "Rome whether accidentally or otherwise has been allied with the vindictive Senator Glass for the past three years." Glass was author of the resolution under which the Senate investigated Cannon.

The grand jury is expected to report this week whether to indict Cannon and his secretary, Miss Ada L. Burroughs, on charges of violating the corrupt practices act. Its investigation into the case occupied three days of last week.

Cannon's statement said he thrice wrote to Rover, expressing his desire to appear before the grand jury and waiving all immunity. He said he also gave the names of three other persons "whose testimony I believed would be absolutely essential in getting at all the facts." Cannon was not called before the grand jury.

"It is incorrect, therefore," said the bishop's statement, "to say that I have attempted to thwart in any way the investigation of the grand jury, but I have simply insisted that all witnesses having important information without which the grand jury could not reach a successful conclusion be asked to appear and that the law be fully explained by the district attorney."

Cannon said statements in the press have indicated that he attempted to thwart the grand jury's work. "On the contrary," he added, "I wrote to the Attorney General of the United States on October 6, and said, "I do not desire to even seem to attempt to hamper the investigation by the grand jury."

failure to report certain expenditures in his anti-Smith campaign of 1928.

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Harry L. Goldhurst pleaded guilty October 16, 1929, to charges of conspiracy and fraudulent sales of stock through the mails. He was sentenced to five years in Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

At the same time Charles W. Kable, Goldhurst's partner in the firm of Kable & Co., pleaded guilty and received a suspended sentence.

Previously Goldhurst, at a hearing into the bankruptcy of Kable & Co., testified Bishop Cannon had engaged in stock speculation through the firm.

Last July Goldhurst was among several prisoners sent back to Atlanta from Fort Wadsworth on Staten Island, and Federal authorities began an investigation of reports that some of the prisoners had paid for their transfers from Atlanta to more comfortable places of detention.

Dr. Hall Will Be Speaker.

Dr. Percival Hall, president of Gallaudet College, will be the principal speaker at the luncheon-meeting of the Alexandria Rotary Club at 12:30 o'clock today, in the George Mason Hotel. Armistead L. St. Lawrence River Negotiations Begun

Canadian Minister Confers With Undersecretary Castle.

(Associated Press.)

Negotiations between the United States and Canada preliminary to drawing up a treaty for development of a great St. Lawrence River seaway were begun yesterday.

W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister, conferred at length with Undersecretary Castle at the State Department.

The discussion followed a decision announced by the two governments last week to begin negotiations, dealing directly through their diplomatic representatives. The negotiations probably will take many weeks, if not months, as the project involves perplexing problems of disposal of power in addition to its navigation aspects.

English-Speaking Union Felicitates President

GLORIFY POLICEMEN, IS PLEA OF HOOVER

President Deplores Public Idolatory of Crime in Radio Address.

(Associated Press.)

A call to the public to rally behind its community police forces was sounded yesterday by President Hoover in an effort to better the world-wide reputations of some American cities.

Standing in the Cabinet room of the White House, he sent this plea by radio to the opening session of the thirty-eighth annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police at St. Petersburg, Fla.

He also advocated divesting the criminal of his cloak of popular heroism and transferring his public glorification to the policeman.

Pleads for Fewer Accidents.

Almost as he spoke these words into the White House microphone, the Chief Executive was addressing, by proxy, still another convention more than a thousand miles away.

He complimented, by letter, the preventive work done by the National Safety Council, gathered in Chicago, but said he could not "complacently contemplate" the total of 99,000 accidental deaths a year. "There remains," he added, a "tremendous field still for organized effort to promote accident prevention."

In his address to the police chiefs, the President pictured theirs as an unending task, ranging from an incessant war against criminals to the "mothering of children in our streets and in the good-humored dissolution of traffic jams."

The President conceded that in many communities there was criticism of police methods, but contended the complained-of conduct was the exception rather than the rule.

"Moreover," he continued, "there is a sentimentalism in some people which makes popular heroes out of criminals, which needs replacement by a sentimentalism that makes a popular hero of the policeman for the courage and devotion he shows in protection of our citizens."

Mr. Hoover said he looked forward to the day when "the moral forces of every community will rally to your support in the fight against crime everywhere."

The Chief Executive's letter to the safety council was brief. Addressed to C. W. Beroquist, president, it urged increased accident prevention activity in the home, on the highways and in industry despite the one-third decrease in industrial accidents in the last two decades.

"The fact that there are 33,000 motor vehicle deaths annually in the United States," Mr. Hoover said, "is a challenge to the efforts of safety organizations and the cooperation of every motor vehicle operator."

The President's address to the police chiefs follows:

"It is my privilege on behalf of the Government to greet the delegates to the thirty-eighth annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs, meeting at St. Petersburg. I wish to add a cordial welcome to those delegates and guests who have come from beyond our shores.

"In the United States a major responsibility rests upon the shoulders of our chiefs of police. Ours is a form of government where the task and responsibility of maintenance of organized society through its never-ending battle against crime rests upon each local community.

"The chiefs of police occupy a position of high command in that service. In not a few of our communities the police have been subject to criticism. That criticism arises from the exception and not the rule in police conduct.

Would Glorify Police.

Instead of the glorification of cowardly gangsters, we need the glorification of policemen who do their duty and give their lives in public protection.

"If the police had the vigilant, universal backing of public opinion in their communities, if they had the implacable support of the prosecuting authorities and the courts; if our criminal laws in their endeavor to protect the innocent did not furnish loopholes through which irresponsible yet clever criminal lawyers daily find devices of escape for the guilty, I am convinced that our police would stamp out the excessive crime and remove the world-wide disrepute which has disgraced some of our great cities.

Enemies of Gang Activities.

"The police by instinct are the enemies of gang activities, robberies, hold-ups and ruthless murder. But so long as criminals can proceed with the smug assurance that they can defeat the law there is a constant discouragement to the police. I wonder at times that they maintain the vigilance and courage they do, against the odds with which they have to contend.

"I extend to you my cordial good wishes for a helpful convention. I know there will emerge from collective council at your meeting an increased skill and resourcefulness and deeper devotion in advancement of public welfare. I look forward confidently to the day when the moral forces of every community will rally to your support in the fight against crime everywhere."

Pajama-Clad Churchgoer Promises Judge Photo

The Sunday evening congregation of the church at Second and C streets southeast was prevented from seeing an unusual incident when police of the Fifth Precinct arrested Rolf C. Garbo, who was entering the church clad in fancy pajamas.

A policeman stopped Garbo and took him to the station house, where a charge of intoxication was placed against him. Garbo appeared in Police Court yesterday in the same regalia, and after a brief hearing before Judge R. E. Mattingly, was dismissed.

As one of the requirements for the release, Garbo had to promise the judge that he would send him a picture of the outfit.

Firemen Planning Yuletide Activity

Bladensburg Rescue Squad to Give Toys and Garments to Needy.

Repairing broken toys and distributing them to needy children of the neighborhood will be a feature of the Yuletide activities of the Bladensburg Rescue Squad again this year, it is announced. The members will also collect clothing for the poor this year.

Distribution of toys and clothing was begun last Christmas by the squad members, who repaired and renovated the playthings. Actual distribution was done under direction of the Associated Charities of Hyattsville.

In an effort to make this year's activity county-wide in scope, other fire departments will be asked to cooperate at the next meeting of the County Firemen's Association.

Experts Explain Operation Of Automatic Traffic Light

If motorists coming south on Wisconsin avenue to the intersection of Massachusetts would visualize the thoroughfare as having three lanes—two for motor vehicles and one for street cars—there would be little trouble with the new automatic traffic light installed at that corner last Thursday, traffic experts believe.

Trouble is found at that intersection because motorists drive in the wrong lane, they say. The left-turn signal detector is located in the lane at right of the trolley rails, and in spite of pavement marking the drivers continue to come down Wisconsin avenue to the car tracks, and only a few who intend to make the left turn pass over the detector.

Unless a full volume of traffic hits the detector, the left-turn signal will not mark the full phase of this light, or 45 seconds, it is explained.

If the driver could get a picture of how the signal operates there would be no further difficulty, the Traffic Bureau officials believe. Under each of the marked vehicle lanes is a special magnetic detector device, they explain. As each car passes it is counted on the mechanism. When the counter for the left lane detector indicates that lane is filled to maximum the arrow comes on for 45 seconds. When it indicates only one car, it flashes only 20 seconds. When no car passes over it, it does not flash.

Bulgarian Premier And Cabinet Resign

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Premier Malinoff resigned today on account of his health and his cabinet resigned with him. A new cabinet was formed and approved by King Boris, in which M. Muschanoff, former minister of the interior, became premier and foreign minister.

The only other changes were the appointment of M. Jorganoff, former minister of public works, as minister of the interior, and M. Stefanoff, former president of the Bulgarian Parliament, as minister of finance.

Drastic Action Held Need To Ease Unemployment

Unemployment is an ever-present problem and will grow worse unless drastic action is taken, Dr. Frederick Blachly said yesterday in a talk before the Council of Social Agencies. He is a member of the Brookings Institute staff. Fred Croxton, assistant director of the national organization for jobless relief, also spoke.

In support of his statement, Dr. Blachly claimed that the world market is shrinking, that manufacturing has reached a saturation point, and must decrease, and that capital is finding itself with a decreasing outlet. Mr. Croxton spoke on progress being made by the national relief group.

ROBINSON FAVORS STRONGER CREDIT

Senator Refuses, However, to Unload Frozen Securities on Banks.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Senator Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, wrote Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, today, that while he was "anxious to contribute every possible effort to the strengthening of credit and the revival of business," he had "no intention of giving approval to any plan which I believe is calculated to unload frozen securities on the Federal Reserve Banks."

The letter was in reply to one from Senator Glass, suggesting that one of the proposals discussed at President Hoover's business revival conference last Tuesday might involve an attempt "to clutter up the Federal Reserve banks of the country with speculative securities."

"In this connection," Senator Robinson wrote, "it should be stated that if any definite measure has been framed by which it is proposed to broaden the base of 'eligible paper,' it has not been submitted to me or otherwise published, and that the extent of the understanding is that any legislation dealing with this subject must be prudently safeguarded so as not to encourage speculative transactions with the support or under the auspices of the Federal Reserve system."

"Your familiarity with this and related subjects is generally recognized, not only by your fellow legislators but throughout the business world.

"The special committee of which, I believe, you are the chairman, and the committee on banking and currency, of which you are a member, are expected to consider the specific measure on this subject when it has been worked out and presented to the Congress.

"I am anxious to contribute every possible effort to the strengthening of credit and the revival of business, but have no intention of giving approval to any plan which, I believe, is calculated to unload frozen securities on the Federal Reserve Banks, and I shall claim the privilege and avail myself of the opportunity to confer with you and your associates on the committees during the course of efforts to perfect the contemplated measure."

Machado to the Cuban Congress. The proposals reported yesterday to the Commerce Department included one that the president be given full power to suppress judges or courts or alter their decisions within his own discretion.

Other outstanding proposals included:

"After 60 days all guarantee deposits in the Cuban treasury of insurance companies and all other companies must be in Cuban securities of money.

"The president is empowered to collect 10 per cent on imports in substitution of the present internal gross sales tax and the consular import on documents is raised from 2 to 5 per cent.

"The president is given control of immigration, regulating all entrances to the island.

"Public works taxation is extended five years to 1950.

"Two cents a gallon is added to the gasoline tax, match taxes are doubled, public cigar lighters in stores are taxed $35 a year and the cigarette impost is increased. The luxury tax is changed, so that merchants designated collect a 10 per cent premium on the import for services.

"The so-called fixed budget is reduced with the Legislature reducing its own budget by 25 per cent."

load frozen securities on the Federal Reserve Banks."

Meanwhile, Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, commended the $500,000,000 private credit fund proposed by President Hoover, but warned that it would succeed "just in proportion to the sympathetic intelligence with which it is administered." He added that if it is mishandled it would be heralded as a "plan to finance the financiers."

A radio talk Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, was to deliver last night on President Hoover's proposal to improve business conditions was postponed indefinitely. Dr. Klein said it was deferred "in view of pending developments."

Both the White House and Dr. Klein later said the speech had been postponed until completion of the $500,000,000 bankers' pool.

Unless the Interstate Commerce Commission breaks a rather well-established precedent, its decision upon the railroad's petition for a 15 per cent freight rate increase will reach a waiting public some Saturday afternoon.

The commission long ago learned to watch the stock market in handing down decisions. This has resulted in opinions that might swing stock values up or down being rendered when they would have the least effect. Naturally, that is Saturday after the market closes, leaving Sunday for orderly assimilation of the news.

Seldom, in recent years, has the commission published a major opinion on the morning of a week day.

Democrats Offer No Aid, Says Lucas

(Associated Press.)

Democratic leaders were described yesterday in a radio address prepared by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, as being content "that bad business and continued unemployment will elect a Democratic administration."

Mr. Lucas was unable to deliver the speech himself because of the death of his father-in-law and it was read into a microphone for him.

"Leaders of the opposition criticize, but offer no helpful suggestion," the message said. It termed the protective tariff, restricted immigration, encouragement of business and high wages, essential to the welfare of the country.

The Washington naval treaty, the Kellogg pact renouncing war and the London naval treaty he called the "three great links in the chain that is ultimately to shackle war," forged in the last three Republican administrations.

Tax Body to Study Levy By States on Commerce

Atlanta, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A proposal of two Oklahomans to ask congressional permission for the various States to tax property and business employed in interstate commerce will be presented to the National Tax Association, which opened a five-day conference here tonight.

Clifford W. King, attorney for the Oklahoma tax commission, and Melvin Cornish, chairman of the commission, will jointly sponsor the proposal, they said tonight. Early delegates to the convention predicted a lively debate on the plan, which will be put forward in the form of a resolution.

CREDIT CORPORATION NAMES 12 DIRECTORS

Organization Chairman Lists Bank Head From Each Reserve District.

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Mortimer N. Buckner, chairman of the organization committee for the National Credit Corporation, tonight announced the names of the twelve members of the board of directors, one from each Federal Reserve District. By districts, they are:

1—Daniel G. Wing, chairman of the board, First National Bank of Boston, Boston.

11—Nathan Adams, president, First National Bank in Dallas, Dallas.

12—Frank B. Anderson, chairman of the board, the Bank of California, N. A., San Francisco.

Mr. Buckner announced that the board of directors would meet to organize at the Federal Reserve Bank, New York, Saturday, October 17.

"Immediately following the organization on Saturday," he said, "the associations in the different districts can be organized and funds made available whereby subscribing banks may obtain the benefit of the facilities afforded by the corporation.

"The funds of the corporation are to be available for the assistance of banks in any part of the country," he explained. "The amount of money subscribed by the banks in each of the groups or associations will not limit the amount which banks in that particular local association may borrow, under the rules the separate associations will establish, from the National Credit Corporation."

5 Arrested in Dry Drive on Week-End

Raiders Get Woman and 4 Men at Laurel and Cedarville, Md.

Four persons were arrested in Laurel, and one man and a still were seized near Cedarville, Md., in a week-end drive on law violations in Prince Georges County.

County police, accompanied by a Federal dry agent, arrested C. R. Hyde and destroyed a 500-gallon still, as well as a quantity of liquor and mash. In Hyde's car, the policemen said, they found several jars of alleged whisky. They arrested Hyde as he drove in a lane leading to the plant. Another man jumped from the car as it stopped and escaped amid a fusillade of bullets, the officers said. Hyde is charged with manufacturing, possession, and transportation.

Those arrested in Laurel were Mary Burleigh, Courtney Fleming, Clarence Smith, and Charles Starr. The Burleigh woman, Fleming, and Smith were charged with possession, and the woman also was charged with keeping a disorderly house. Starr was accused of operating a lunchroom without a license, and this charge was also placed against Fleming.

To the MOTHERS of growing children

Here is vital news about sunshine vitamin-D . . . and what it means to sound even teeth, straight strong bones, and . . .

If your child played naked in the noonday sun, any kind of bread might do.

HAPPIER HEALTH

SUNSHINE VITAMIN-D is Nature's first lieutenant in building straight strong bones, and sound even teeth—in strengthening resistance to colds and illness.

Yet up to now, no table-food provided enough of this vital food element. Plenty of foods furnish all the other vitamins, but not vitamin-D.

Now, this precious sunshine vitamin-D comes to you in Bond Bread. You can't see sunshine vitamin-D. You can't taste this wonderful health-source any more than you can taste sunshine itself. But it's there—in every loaf of Bond Bread—and in no bread except Bond! One to two slices each meal will give you and your children all the extra sunshine vitamin-D you need.

Get sunshine vitamin-D Bond Bread from your grocer. It tastes the same. It costs the same. It is the same delicious, home-like loaf that Flavor-Peak Rising insures. And now, this greatest improvement of all—sunshine vitamin-D. No bread ever before brought such untold value.

AN ASIATIC AFFAIR.

China and Japan seem to be moving rapidly toward war. Up to the present time the attitude of China has been passive. But apparently resentment against Japan is becoming formidable in spite of China's military weakness. President Chiang Kai-Shek says he will declare war unless the council of the League of Nations, which meets today in Geneva, can obtain a "just settlement." Whether or not his threat can be interpreted literally, it indicates that pressure is being brought to bear upon the Chinese government to take a more aggressive stand.

Japan, on the other hand, maintains a stranglehold upon Manchuria. The Japanese forces will not withdraw until assurance is given that the lives and property of Japanese nationals will be protected. The government at Tokyo maintains that the bombing of Chinchow and other acts of aggression were beyond its control. But that does not relieve the actual situation. The situation looks very grave.

Secretary Stimson is pondering over what the American Government can do about it. His note to the League of Nations raises fears that the United States may become entangled in this Far Eastern muddle. Secretary Stimson promises that the United States will "endeavor to reinforce what the league does" and that if the situation warrants this government will take independent action.

The question arises as to what the American Government can do to halt the interplay of forces that threaten the peace of Asia. China has called upon the United States to intervene. Japan regards the dispute as a regional affair and makes it clear that intervention will be resented. Certainly, the United States would resent the interference of Japan in a dispute between this country and Mexico. Japan considers this a similar situation. It is unthinkable that the United States would intervene in this squabble with military force. Any other action that might be taken while China and Japan are at swords points might aggravate the situation.

Japan and China understand their obligations under the Kellogg pact and the nine-power treaty. It is difficult to see how a reminder of those obligations from the American State Department could change the situation. If war breaks out each government will undoubtedly defend its action on the ground that it was attacked and that under such circumstances the Kellogg pact does not apply.

Secretary Stimson attempted to intervene in the Chinese-Russian controversy more than two years ago. The Soviet government administered him a stinging rebuke. When national feelings are wrought up to a high pitch there is always danger that intervention by an outside power will play into the hands of the militarists. One nation can not undertake to instruct another as to its international obligations without encountering danger of strained relations.

It remains to be seen what action the League of Nations will take. Thus far the league has avoided the issue, and it may be expected to sidestep again if that is convenient. Nevertheless, the wisdom of Secretary Stimson's pledge to "reinforce what the league does" may be questioned. The league's theoretical method for the prevention of war is to mobilize the whole of its membership against the aggressor. No one fears that the United States would follow the lead of the league in such a rash venture in Manchuria. It is highly improbable that the league will do more than urge these two member nations to settle their difficulties without resort to war. But this attitude affords no reason why the United States should commit itself to the league's policy before that policy is known.

NO WORLD CONFERENCE.

Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy, will follow close upon the heels of Premier Laval of France in his visit to Washington. If political conditions permit, Chancellor Bruening of Germany may dash across the Atlantic for a few personal words with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson. Rumors are also afloat that a high official of the national government in Great Britain may pay a visit to Washington after the forthcoming election is out of the way.

These visits, following a series of similar conferences in the most prominent capitals of Europe, have given rise to much idle speculation. It is well known that Premier Laval is coming here to discuss financial conditions and the possibility of revising war debts. Signor Grandi will take up disarmament problems as well as the intergovernmental debts. But it is constantly intimated that the visits have a deeper significance; that President Hoover is calling foreign statesmen here to discuss a comprehensive plan for relieving the world of the depression.

Such an interpretation of these visits leads to serious misunderstanding. Premier Laval is coming to the United States on his own initiative. It is a case in which the head of the French government is seeking consultation with the head of the American Government. If any world-wide plan is to be discussed, the subject will likely be brought up by M. Laval. Apparently he has a definite purpose in coming to the United States. It is reasonable to suppose that Signor Grandi is likewise coming to discuss hopes and aspirations entertained by the Italian government and not any plan evolved by President Hoover.

Suggestions that President Hoover is calling foreign statesmen here as a preliminary to the announcement of a world-wide conference on the economic situation are absurd. The American Government is vitally interested in disarmament and in the economic recovery of the world. President Hoover has initiated the only constructive international measures that have been carried out. But the President insists that German reparations, which must be the bone of contention in any political scheme to rehabilitate Europe, remain separate from the war debts owed by European countries to American taxpayers. Hence the United States can not participate in a world economic conference. If it is the purpose of Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Grandi to draw the American Government into such an agreement, they will leave Washington empty-handed.

The forthcoming conferences will no doubt give the participants a clearer understanding of the positions occupied by the American, French and Italian governments. When Premier Laval is fully acquainted with President Hoover's attitude he will be in a better position to direct events in Europe. Perhaps he can make a new approach to disarmament and to an understanding with Germany. When that is done it will be time enough for consideration of Europe's reduced capacity to pay war debts. Even then the policy of the United States would be to negotiate with the debtor nations individually.

If the conferences with the French and Italian ministers make it definitely clear that this Government will not take part in an international economic conference, they will accomplish a worthy purpose.

A COLUMBUS MEMORIAL.

The government and people of the Dominican Republic have every reason to feel gratified at the results of the second competition for the selection of a design for the proposed Columbus Memorial Lighthouse to be erected at Santo Domingo.

At considerable sacrifice, the Dominican Republic has borne the full expense of two international competitions which have resulted in the final award by an international jury at Rio de Janeiro. The plans presented in the first competition, which was participated in by architects from every section of the world, were exhibited at Madrid last year and resulted in the selection of ten premiated designs. The authors of these ten designs entered the second competition, the designs for which have just been exhibited at Rio de Janeiro.

The Dominican Republic has also donated a magnificent site worthy of the great discoverer. It is now up to the people of the American republics to express their admiration and gratitude for Columbus by contributing generously to the erection of this great monument, which will, at the same time, serve a most useful purpose. The contemplated lighthouse will not only guide the mariner but it is also designed as a beacon for the numerous air lines connecting the nations of this continent. The plan for such a memorial does honor to Columbus and is worthy of the united effort of the nations of the Western Hemisphere.

GERMANY'S NEW TEST.

Germany faces another crisis. Surcease of financial danger is succeeded by grave political issues that will be precipitated today with the meeting of the Reichstag. The rise of Adolf Hitler's Fascist party and the enthusiasm created by the militant Steel Helmets have been somewhat ignored due to the financial crisis. The great gathering at Harzburg on Sunday, however, was a startling demonstration of the strength and determination of the element that is opposing Chancellor Bruening.

There was nothing particularly new in Adolf Hitler's violent and confiscatory threats, as he addressed the meeting, since he has repeatedly voiced them heretofore, but he did reach the extreme of charging the Bruening government with responsibility for all the country's troubles and telling the nation that it must be prepared to wage war if necessary "to regain its freedom." The charges of Hjalmar Schacht, that the financial statements of the Reichsbank, of which he formerly was the head, as well as those of the government, did not show their true status, created a sensation, but have been officially denied by both the government and the bank. Official Berlin considered Schacht's allegations treasonable.

Paris saw in the militaristic threats at Harzburg new cause for apprehension. If the Nationalist combination should be able to control the Reichstag and force general elections, the Versailles treaty will be endangered. Renewed activity of the Steel Helmets in connection with the political rallies also arouses French fears. Results of the next few days in Berlin will undoubtedly have an important bearing not only upon the attitude of Premier Laval in his forthcoming meeting with Washington officials, but upon the disarmament conference as well. If there is any danger of the belligerent military party coming to power in Germany, with its demands for equality of armament and the declared intention of scrapping treaty agreements, France will be in no mood to consider reductions. The European situation, that was apparently progressing toward more settled conditions and agreeable understandings, is suddenly in suspense again awaiting a test of strength in Berlin. If the Bruening government can not muster a majority for support in the Reichstag all the harmony and constructive effort of the last few months will be in immediate jeopardy.

Unemployment among those loafing dollars at the bank corners is going to be ended.

That New Jersey "call on Congress" to legalize light wines and beer is like the pouring of another bottle of water over Niagara.

A senator returning from China says he heard nothing of unemployment or poverty there. Is it a case of not understanding Chinese, or of not being able to see the forest for the trees?

That cherished right of suffrage for which men fight, bleed and die is the free privilege of all adult Americans. But how many of them exercise it? Barely more than a majority, 53 per cent to be exact, or 36,852,057, as shown by the last Presidential election. As that number of voters was divided between the two major parties, it is evident that a third party which could muster the stay-at-home vote—which doubtless is largely made up of those who complain most about election results—could poll more votes than either Republicans or Democrats.

A WORLD PROBLEM

From the New York Herald Tribune.

Manchuria has been a world problem at least since 1894. An American gunboat that year spent an uncomfortable winter in the strange port of Newchwang, watching the Sino-Japanese War. It was an odd, remote conflict, but it awoke the world to a realization that an old empire was crumbling to its fall and a new power was about to step into a major role upon the international stage. Since then, almost without interval (except when it was too busy with something else), the world has found itself watching Manchuria. Through nearly four decades that rich but undefended territory has constituted a problem, and it is a problem as yet unsolved.

Japan fought a bloody war to make good her hold on Corea and to secure the South Manchurian Railway and the ports at its southern terminus which gave her economic command of the great province. From that moment it was inevitable that she should find her Manchurian interests of increasing importance. As a raw material source, as a market, as an opening for Japanese and Corean emigration, as a field for investment, Manchuria meant more and more to Japan.

Manchuria, moreover, was a valuable area ruled by a weak and irresponsible government incapable of living up to the ordinary duties of modern statehood. Again, it was inevitable that Japan should endeavor to extend her political influence, if not political control, to protect her economic interests; and it was no less inevitable that other powers should regard the process with distrust and jealousy and sometimes manifest determined opposition.

The result was a balance of forces, with the Manchurian situation moving in one direction or another according as one or another force weakened or strengthened. In 1915 the powers were engrossed in the World War and Japan was able to make the "Twenty-one Demands" on China. Had China been forced to accept them all, stability might have been achieved for a time. As it was, the restraining influence of the powers, though weakened, had not been destroyed, and the Japanese demands were modified by their intervention.

The result was an adjustment; it was not a settlement. In the 1915 demands Japan insisted that China open Manchurian lands to lease and development by Japanese and Coreans; Japan also proposed to introduce Japanese police officers in Chinese localities where such arrangements might be necessary. Though the second demand would have destroyed Chinese sovereignty, from a practical standpoint, it was at least a logical corollary of the first. What happened was that Japan secured the first, but failed to secure the second; the way was thus prepared for what has since taken place.

The Japanese and Corean immigration to Manchuria has produced a long succession of minor incidents resulting from the weakness or injustice of Chinese police administration. None was important in itself, but over a period of time they have accumulated a store of passion and fear which has now produced an explosion. A mere restoration of the status quo evidently can not remove the basic instability of the situation or prevent another outbreak of some other sort. What will happen is that Manchuria will come to rest in the position indicated by the present balance of the conflicting forces. Inasmuch as the crisis has come at a moment when the powers are again preoccupied and their influence relatively weak, one may predict that, whatever international action may be taken, in the outcome Japan will gain and China lose.

But one can not complete the equation too hastily. China is stronger than she was in 1915 or in 1894, not through military power, but through the emotional power that Chinese nationalism has aroused and is able to make effective through the boycott.

The Fox Who Lost His Brush!

POST HASTE.

Is the stock market a bargain counter? Our estimate was low. On October 5 all records were broken. The average yield on 301 active cash-dividend-paying common stocks was 12.09 per cent.

If you read 25 newspapers, as some benighted do, you will know that what has happened in this country in a week is little short of a miracle.

It will be both ends against the middle in the Reichstag today. Hitler would save Germany from communism by overthrowing the Bruening government, but never did extremes of radicalism and fascism talk such similar language of confiscation and repudiation.

Japan signed all the antiwar and arbitration pacts, but does not consider that they apply in a neighborly altercation over Manchuria.

What's in a name? The Nationalists in England are in a struggle for life and British credit. In Germany the Nationalists seek power to cancel debts and restore militant autocracy.

The futility of Chinese ultimatums to the Japanese offers opportunity for the invention of a very clever simile.

Bernard Shaw says Russians eat while American "boobs" go hungry. Americans would probably prefer to be as hungry as Americans are to eating the food most Russians get. And Russians would welcome American prison fare as a banquet.

Man's inconsistency is demonstrated in Texas, where the Legislature battles to get rid of excess cotton and the entire Galveston fire department fights day and night to save 20,000 bales from destruction.

Japan will lose much of the prestige recent years have brought her if she continues her refusal to accept mediation in the Manchurian muddle after all the treaties she has signed. And think what it will do to the League of Nations.

President Uriburu also has the Japanese idea that it is an executive right to decide who shall not be candidates on the opposition ticket.

The way Bernard Shaw can ignore facts that do not suit his argument makes it easy to see what a wonderful speech he could make against the American tariff, or for the revalorization of silver.

JUST FOLKS

PUNISHMENT.

"Yes," said he, "henceforth to dwell
Forever in a prison cell
Is punishment—the price men pay
For having tossed their lives away.
But I shall suffer while I live
Worse torture than the law can give.

"My gaoler will more kindly be,
As pass the long days by, to me
Than I shall be unto myself.
He'll lend me books upon his shelf
And stop to speak and pass the time
And may, perhaps, forget my crime.

"But every waking hour I know
Shall but recall the long ago,
When bird and bloom and fruit of vine,
Freedom and friends and hope were mine.
For here where iron shackles clink
The dullest mortal wakes to think.

"That's what will hurt! The day by day
Return of glories flung away;
To hear the morning song birds' call
Ring just outside my prison wall
And—torture worse than law can give—
Despite myself and still to live!"

You Can't Clean House by Sweeping Dirt Under the Bed

By ROBERT QUILLEN

CUSTOMARY criticism of the younger generation includes the charge that it lacks discretion.

If that is true—if today's young people lack the kind of discretion characteristic of their elders—the fact should be proclaimed from the housetops with joy and thanksgiving.

The discretion of present-day middle age isn't a pretty virtue. In trying to avoid conflict, it also avoids courage; and in trying to avoid controversy, it also avoids truth.

Courage and truth are the foundations of character and neither can stand without the other.

It frequently happens, in an era of increasing prosperity, that the love of money makes men timid. They become politic. They deliberately avoid doing or saying anything that might offend the principles or prejudices of a customer. In all matters save that of sniffing for pennies, they observe a spineless neutrality.

Habitual neutrality is fatal to character. If a man refuses to entertain convictions, he soon loses the ability to form them. If he loses interest in the truth, he soon loses the ability to recognize it. And if he refuses to exercise moral courage, he soon loses the capacity for it. Nature doesn't preserve a faculty that isn't used.

But if discretion destroys the money-maker's character, it doesn't destroy his conscience. He may lack the moral strength to call a spade a spade, but he is ashamed of his weakness. And since he must, at any cost, retain his self-respect, he solves the problem by assuring himself that the spade doesn't exist. If there is no such thing as sin, surely it isn't unmanly to take no stand against it.

This method of dodging responsibility has become characteristic of America. It is one form of passing the buck.

The "social evil" was conquered by means of regulations that scattered it into dark corners where it could be overlooked and forgotten.

Having declared ourselves in favor of an ideal, we refuse to accept responsibility for reality. If thieves multiply, it isn't our fault. We passed a resolution in praise of honesty.

Our national character is mere table manners. If there is a bad smell, we pretend not to be aware of it. Our political platforms studiously avoid real issues, and the winning candidate is the one who says least.

If youth is free of that kind of discretion let us be grateful. America faces problems that can not be solved by looking the other way. The future has need of men who will call a crook a crook, regardless of the effect on business.

Reed as a Candidate.
Houston Post-Dispatch.

Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, says he would consider it a compliment if the Missouri delegation to the Democratic national convention should be instructed for him. The Missourian thus advertises that he still indulges in presidential aspirations. Doubtless he assumes his chances for nomination would be better in 1932 than in 1928, because of the apparent growth in wet sentiment, and because Al Smith may not be a strong contender next year.

Reed's following is still strong in Missouri, though his enemies, particularly among the drys, are numerous also. Possibly he can get the support of his home State delegation for 1932, if he is in earnest about winning it. Organization of a Roosevelt club in St. Louis has been abandoned, since the promoters of the plan learned that Reed desired the delegation instructed for him.

Though Roosevelt appears far in the lead in the field of Democratic candidates at this time, it is too early to risk any predictions as to what the convention will do about the nomination. It is conceivable that a deadlock might result between major candidates, which would give Reed a break.

Bread Before Beer.
Houston Post-Dispatch.

Those Missourians up in the Seventh congressional district emphasized rather clearly the fact that they were more interested in getting something to eat than in getting something to drink, by the way they voted in the election to fill the seat in Congress left vacant by the late Sam C. Major.

A Nation-Wide Mix-Up.
New York Times.

If the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States should be asked and accepted in the suit growing out of New York's congressional district reapportionment, an opportunity will be afforded the court to clarify a perplexed and serious situation. All over the country the belated act of Congress prescribing reapportionment, but not providing against the failure of State Legislatures to conform to the prescription, has made a puzzle for lawyers and politicians. Since Congress in the reapportionment act of 1929 did not, as in 1911, use the words "by law," various legal questions have arisen.

The Supreme Court can lay down rules to repair the omissions in the congressional act and to pass on the redistricting method used by New York and Minnesota. It is expected further that from States where the failure of the Legislature to act at all is construed to mean the selection of all representatives at large, suits to test the legality of this will come. For this method would mean a clean sweep of the House delegations by the majority party in the State, district lines being erased. Until all these points are disposed of by the courts the Seventy-third House and the 1932 Democratic convention will retain their unsettled aspects. And even the Republican national convention may be affected.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Drastic Curtailment of Constructive Enterprises by Government and Industry Is Called Sabotage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some years ago we heard a great deal about the I. W. W. and "sabotage." The word is very interesting. In France it means that when a worker got fired he threw his wooden shoe or "sabot" into the machinery. An Irishman once explained to me that it meant "throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery." Now that, it seems to me, is exactly what our leaders in the Government, in our Chambers of Commerce and industries are urging.

As a measure of "economy," appropriations to the Department of Agriculture and Bureau of Standards are to be cut. This is like a merchant who says: "Well, we are in hard times and I'm going to stop advertising, quit paying my insurance and call my salesmen in off the road for economy." Anybody can predict what will happen to such a merchant. Yet we, as a Nation, are doing that very thing. Such policies will aggravate and increase the evils they are intended to correct.

The Department of Agriculture has been one of the greatest wealth-creating departments in the history of the Nation. It has enabled new species of wheat and other cereals to be grown in greater acreage and yield a thousandfold more. It has saved billions of dollars by preventing insect depredations and otherwise has returned thousands of dollars for every one spent.

The recommendation of the Farm Board to destroy cotton by plowing it under is sabotage. Why not tell the savings banks which are suffering from too many deposits to throw every third dollar into the Atlantic Ocean? Millions of people need cotton goods. Millions in the United States, China and Germany need our surplus wheat. It is only a question of using the surplus brains in government and industry and the colleges to find a sensible solution to our economic problems. "WORRIED."

Writer Thinks Representative Government Is Failure Because Congress Plays Politics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read your editorial entitled "No Extra Session." If what you say in the editorial is true, if Congress is as bad as you have painted it, if when convened its members will resort to sniping at the President, suggesting a hundred plans for relieving the depression, will indulge in a greater display of politics, one naturally wonders why have a Congress?

If the Congress is such a hindrance to the Executive in such a great crisis as this, our whole system of Government should be changed, the legislative branch thrown out and its functions merged with the executive functions in a dictator.

This is the logical course to follow in view of the statements set forth in your editorial, which we will assume to be true. It would seem that representative government is a failure, and the only course for the American people to follow is to change their form of government.

WILLIAM L. EDMONSTON.

"Another Proud One" Who Is Out of Work Answers "Disgusted Housekeeper" on Need for Charity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with some amusement and some aggravation an article sent to you by "A Disgusted Housekeeper." I am afraid she is looking at a world-wide calamity in a very superficial way. It would seem that because two persons were too proud to accept her charity—which, I fear, was offered in a patronizing manner—she seems to think there is no need for charity and really no hard times at all. Of course, I do not know the writer or the persons she speaks about, but that is the inference I get from the tone of her letter. I may be mistaken.

There are many of us who are "fed up" on the cry of hard times, but who know that these are extremely hard times. We are persons not fortunate enough to have incomes to put into "savings," but who haven't yet reached the stage of having to accept the leavings that might go into the "garbage" of persons less unfortunate. We have no work to do and have to spend our hard-earned "savings." ANOTHER PROUD ONE.

Post Reader Attacks Mr. Quillen's Thesis That Thought Is Physical.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is an unkind pleasure one takes in smiling on some occasions at the intense simplicity of one who at other times is a capable and delightful columnist. I refer to Mr. Quillen in your issue of September 28. With a most amusing complacency he undertook to solve a problem that has caused sleepless nights since men of a philosophical turn first so spent their hours of nocturnal rest.

He asserts, and has done so before, that thought is absolutely and undeniably physical. What a pretty ending to that tragi-comedy which has had a hundred names but may be easily entitled "The Psycho-Physical Problem." I object to it as fervently as he proclaims it.

Again he maintains, and apparently without the least consideration of his own experience, that "we can not change our ideas, nay, we can not even desire to change them." Palpably that is open to strenuous objection and, if necessary, to inexhaustible discussion. What many and terrible pitfalls it involves him in I should hesitate to number, for I should only try your patience and encroach upon your time. I merely wish to suggest that he who writes for a daily, reading and varied public on topics outside his ken should give time to study before he writes, and even then be just a little bit reserved. U.S. SUPREME COURT REFUSES 72 APPEALS

10 Others Granted; Four Dry Cases Upheld; Citizenship Ruling Affirmed.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court bent its back to the work of the new term yesterday and quickly shoved aside 72 petitions for review.

The others of the 251 petitions that accumulated during the summer recess were granted. In the 72 refusals of reviews, the decisions of the lower courts will be binding.

Four prohibition cases were among those considered. The court declined to review them, its action having the effect of countenancing a practice recently adopted by the Prohibition Bureau of confiscating personal property found in breweries where the law had been violated.

Excelsior Brewing, Inc., and the Pulaski Holding Co. protested without success against the seizure of such property.

Approves Seizure of Boat.

The court also gave its approval of the seizure of the motor boat Evelyn Ruth for unloading intoxicating liquor at Boston. It refused the request of the owner of the boat for a review.

Earl D. Bess, at Huntington, W. Va., and John Garcia, at New Orleans, both failed in their efforts to obtain reviews on their convictions for violating the prohibition law.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and other labor unions at Chicago lost in their effort to have the court review a permanent injunction prohibiting them from striking or otherwise interfering with the Western Union Telegraph Co. in the installation of its service in buildings there.

In another labor case from Chicago, the court granted the request of the Government to bring up additional papers in a case which the Painters District Council No. 14 of Chicago and other local labor unions had brought to set aside their conviction for violating the Sherman antitrust law.

Citizenship Ruling Upheld.

The court declined to reconsider its 5-4 decisions sustaining the Indiana tax on chain stores and denying citizenship to Prof. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh and Marie A. Bland, Canadians, who would not agree to bear arms in war time.

Other decisions which the court refused to reconsider were:

That sustaining the California Railroad Commission in requiring the Santa Fe and other railroads to construct a union passenger station at Los Angeles;

That classifying certain chocolate sold by the Hershey and other chocolate companies as taxable as candy under old revenue acts;

Two decisions regulating the fees of lawyers who aided in recovering $1,100,000 given away by elderly Jackson Barnett, an incompetent Creek Indian;

That sustaining Secretary of the Interior Wilbur in refusing permits to explore public lands for oil and gas, to carry out President Hoover's oil conservation policy;

A decision sustaining the New York law under which gas rates are fixed at Niagara Falls.

Three 5-to-4 Decisions Will Remain Unaltered

(Associated Press.)

Three of the close decisions which revealed a new and fundamental division of Supreme Court opinion will stand unaltered.

The tribunal yesterday declined to reconsider its verdict sustaining the Indiana chain store tax and withholding citizenship from two aliens who would not agree to bear arms in time of war. Each was settled last term by a 5-to-4 division.

These cases, with four others also settled by 5-4 decisions, showed that the old dissenting minority of Associate Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone was receiving reinforcement from Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justice Roberts.

At the same time, Associate Justices Vandevanter, Sutherland, McReynolds and Butler, who with the late Chief Justice Taft and Associate Justice Sanford had formed the old court majority, were found rendering dissenting opinions.

5-to-4 Division on Tax.

The Indiana tax, a special assessment levied against chain stores, had been attacked as discriminatory. The court upheld it by a majority consisting of Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices Holmes, Brandeis, Stone and Roberts.

In the naturalization cases, Associate Justice Roberts joined with Associate Justices Vandevanter, Sutherland and Butler. Chief Justice Hughes rendered a ringing dissent in which he was joined by Associate Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone.

The cases involved Dr. Douglas Clyde Macintosh, a professor of theology at Yale University, and Marie Averil Bland, a nurse, now of New York City. Both are Canadians. Prof. Macintosh saw service in the World War and Miss Bland nursed American casualties in France after the armistice.

The other five-four decisions were not before the court today. In two of these, covered by one opinion, a majority consisting of Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Holmes, Brandeis, Stone and Roberts sustained a New Jersey law regulating the commissions of five insurance solicitors.

Invalidates Minnesota Press Law.

The same combination invalidated Minnesota's press suppression law, a statute that had become the center of a heated controversy.

In the other case, Chief Justice Hughes allied himself with Associate Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler to set aside an inheritance tax imposed by Massachusetts upon a trust estate created by J. Randolph and Julia Coolidge.

The trend of the court's opinion revealed by the cases aroused widespread comment, particularly in view of the circumstances under which the nomination of Chief Justice Hughes had been confirmed by the Senate.

In debate which preceded the vote, the views of the old court majority were roundly criticized and Mr. Hughes was assailed as holding the same opinions. Surprise was great when the new Chief Justice was found siding with the court members who had consistently opposed the old majority.

Highest Court in U. S. Gets 2 'Rubber' Checks

(Associated Press.)

If all the rubber checks passed on the Supreme Court during its present session were stretched from Washington to Granite City, Ill., they would probably snap back and hit Harold J. Bandy, lawyer of the latter town.

Bandy was called upon yesterday by the court to show why he should not be disbarred for having given it two checks, totaling $85, returned marked "No funds."

The checks were given in filing a petition for a client.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Harold J. Bandy, of Granite City, said tonight the checks for $85 which he gave the United States Supreme Court were good. He said there must be some mistake.

PROGRESSIVE GROUP SCORED BY SCHAFER

Republican Regular Dares Insurgents to Bolt to Democrats.

The progressive Republican group which has threatened to break from the regulars on organization of the new House was scored yesterday as "political fakers" by Representative Schafer.

The Wisconsin representative is one of the few regular Republicans in the Northwestern States. He believes his party should unite in efforts to keep control of the closely divided House from the Democrats.

"If the so-called progressives want to vote with the Democrats, let them assume responsibility for organization of the House if they dare," he said.

"The regular Republicans should neither compromise nor kowtow to the progressives to get their votes. The independents have clamored for the liberalization of the House rules of procedure, but they bolted the Republican conference last February and failed to put up a fight for a change."

Schafer asserted the progressives "do a lot of talking back home, but the Congressional Record shows they do nothing here."

Earl Jellicoe Seriously Ill.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A doctor's bulletin issued today said the condition of Earl Jellicoe, who commanded the British fleet at the battle of Jutland in the World War, is causing "severe anxiety." Earl Jellicoe was reported to be suffering from bronchitis. The earl is 72 years old.

An organizing committee was named yesterday by the Three Score and Ten Club at a meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. H. G. Grace was named chairman; Miss Frances Lee Reeves, secretary, and Mrs. Kate Randall, treasurer.

The organization will be completed at another meeting next Monday in the same place.

Badges, Ice, Radios Bought by District

Purchasing Agents' Report Shows Wide Range of Supplies Used.

The old-fashioned general store merchant had nothing on M. C. Hargrove, District purchasing agent, in the variety of merchandise handled, his report to the District Commissioners yesterday revealed.

A mass of statistical data explains the fiscal year expenditures of $4,536,520.27 for "supplies and materials of every conceivable nature." Construction materials accounted for $250,995.85, but other items varied greatly in nature and quantity.

Glancing over the report at random, there are badges, window shades, flags, drugs, flour, fertilizer, groceries, meats, ice, milk, butter, eggs, pianos, radios, horses and mules, books, blackboards and so far into the dictionary.

District Man Heads College Club.

Sibley Guild Will Meet In Rust Hall Thursday

The women of Sibley Guild will hold their monthly meeting Thursday morning at 10:45 o'clock in Rust Hall, adjoining Sibley Memorial Hospital.

Plans for a "membership night" on November 6 will be perfected. Mrs. Joy Elmer Morgan, former president of the guild, will give a short address, and Miss Tempe Ellen, of Rust Hall, will give a group of readings. All members and friends are urged to be present. Luncheon will be served at 12:30.

Commissioners Start Plea for 1933 Budget

The District Commissioners yesterday opened a defense of the District government's 1933 estimates before the Bureau of the Budget. Maj. D. J. Donovan, auditor, accompanied them. The hearings are expected to last for ten days or two weeks.

The Commissioners are asking the next Congress for $48,969,971, after cutting the estimates of the department heads $8,127,413.

Weekly Bus Pass Sanction Sought

Company Sends Proposed Experimental Plans to Commission.

Permission to adopt a weekly rate schedule was asked by the Washington Rapid Transit Co. yesterday of the Public Utilities Commission. The proposal is to operate the system as an experiment for 11 weeks beginning next Sunday.

The scheme would have no effect on the present rates but would merely give patrons an opportunity to save money by buying passes. Two kinds of cards would be offered. An unlimited and transferable pass, selling for $1.25 would entitle the holder to ride on any Washington Rapid Transit Co. bus as much as he wanted for a week.

A second pass, selling for $75 cents, would be good all day Sunday and on Saturdays after 9 a. m. On other days it could be used only between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. and after 6:30 p. m.

ASA KEYES IS FREED FOR GOOD BEHAVIOR

Former District Attorney of Los Angeles Served 19 Months of Term.

Keyes entered the prison 19 months ago to serve a 1- to 14-year term for bribery in connection with his prosecution of the Julian Petroleum Corporation fraud cases. His time was fixed at five years and because of good behavior he had to serve less than half of it. He will be on parole for 18 months. He had served 13 months in the Los Angeles County Jail pending appeal of his case.

The former prosecutor left the prison in better physical condition than when he entered. Regular hours, plain food and exercise were credited with the physical improvement.

Made Friends of Prisoners.

He also left spiritually improved, he said, because his confinement taught him to see the prisoner's side of life. When he entered there was some apprehension that some of the hundreds of men he had sent to San Quentin might seek revenge. When he left he had virtually all of the prisoners for his friends.

Keyes' farewells to some of the men and to the officers, especially Warden James B. Holohan, was touching.

"Good-by, Asa," said Holohan. "You've been a good prisoner."

"Good-by, warden, you've been good to me," was the reply. Among the prisoners that became close friends of Keyes was Albert Marco, so-called king of the Los Angeles underworld, whom Keyes sent to prison for three to twenty years.

Will Sell Automobiles.

When Keyes departed he had exactly $60. Newspapermen from Los Angeles brought him to San Francisco, where he visited Ed H. Whyte, State parole officer, and received his instructions.

Keyes will sell automobiles in Los Angeles, but he can not drive them. Under the law he may not drive a car, marry, get a divorce, change his address, negotiate any legal document or drink without permission of the parole officer.

"That does not bother me," said Keyes, "for I do not drink and never intend to again."

"I have taken it on the chin," he said. "I have paid. I feel well, I have learned to see the other side of things. I have virtually no money, but am ready and eager to get back home and start over.

Marconi Bridges 5,000 Miles to Turn Switch

Rome, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Guglielmo Marconi bridged 5,000 miles of the South Atlantic tonight by short wave wireless and threw the switch at Rio de Janeiro which illuminated the statue of the Redeemer on Corcovado Mountain.

The inventor sent three successive wireless signals and within three minutes had wirelesss confirmation that they had been received and the lights were in operation.

Spanish Strikers Stone Autos.

Granada, Spain, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Automobiles were stoned, a mail truck was wrecked and business paralyzed today in a general strike here growing out of a demand by the Chauffers Union for more wages. Forty persons were arrested.

Missionary's Food Tip: Eat Roasted 'Hoppers!

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 12 (U.P.).—Grasshoppers, when freshly roasted and "dry and crisp," are a great delicacy, Dr. Paul Harrison, medical missionary in Arabia, said today.

The doctor, who has spent more than twenty years in Arabia and who intends to return to Muscat next year, has often eaten this native food, he told his friends.

COURTS AT LAUREL GET RECORD DOCKET

50 Speed and Reckless Driving Charges Among 68 Traffic Cases Tried.

Intensive work by Maryland State policemen on the Baltimore boulevard resulted in the trial of 68 cases in police court at Laurel yesterday. This was the heaviest docket ever tried there, according to Judge J. Chew Sheriff. Fines totaled about $400.

More than 50 cases were for speeding and reckless driving, and many motorists from other States were arrested. In the majority of cases fines were small, but James E. Brown, of Washington, was fined $50 for speeding and $25 for failing to keep to the right of the center of the road. He was unable to pay, and was committed to jail for 75 days.

William Wilson, colored, of Beltsville, Md., whose car was involved in an accident with a loaded interurban bus last week, was fined $10 for reckless driving. Similar charges against Arthur Mawson, of Atlantic City, driver of the bus, were dismissed when Judge Sheriff decided the responsibility for the crash lay with Wilson, who received a fractured rib in the accident, although none of the passengers on the bus was hurt.

Sam Sullivan, of Baltimore, convicted of driving while drunk, was sentenced to 100 days in jail when he could not pay a fine of $100.

Mexican Railroad Ousts Americans

Discharges Held Result of Strike Threat by Native Labor Union.

Nogales, Ariz., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Many veteran American employes of the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. of Mexico are being dismissed, it was said in dispatches received here today by the Herald from Guadalajara, Jalisco, headquarters of the railroad company.

The dismissals are said to be due to threats of a strike made by the Mexico labor union and pressure which has been brought to bear on the Mexican Federal Board of Arbitration in Mexico City.

The report said the members of the Mexican Railroad Labor Union demanded the enforcement of article 175 of the Mexican labor law which required that all positions, other than administrative, be filled by native Mexican workers. The demand, it was reported, was upheld by the Mexican board, which has jurisdiction over the railroads operating in the republic. In accordance with the enforcement of the ruling many Americans have been discharged.

SURGEON HEAD HITS HIJACKER METHODS

Dr. Allen Kanavel Advocates Lower Service Charges by Medical Men.

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—War on "medical hijackers" who victimize an uninformed public was advocated tonight by Dr. Allen B. Kanavel, of Chicago, in his inaugural address as incoming president of the American College of Surgeons.

Both he and Dr. C. Jeff Miller, of New Orleans, retiring president of the college, turned a spotlight of criticism on the medical profession, and reached the verdict that "there is plenty of room for improvement."

The two surgeons told the 5,000 medical experts, gathered from the United States and abroad for the opening session of the surgeons' annual congress, that a paramount problem confronting the profession was the need for reduction in the cost of medical services.

As a powerful weapon against charlatans—"medical hijackers" he called them—Dr. Kanavel urged that the attainments of modern medical science be taken out of the realm of professional secrets known only to doctors and made available to the general public.

Referring to the possibilities of cheaper medical service through the so-called group practice of medicine as organizations rather than individuals, Dr. Kanavel said that, while such organizations might be advisable in some cases, their abuse must be guaranteed against.

Dr. Miller ridiculed criticism of the medical profession by such men of letters as George Bernard Shaw and H. L. Mencken, but added:

"We are human beings exactly like the people who criticize us. We have in our ranks no supermen, no archangels from whom perfection can be demanded. Unscrupulous men are just as likely to be physicians as blacksmiths."

Fifteen Saved as Ship Grounds.

Boston, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The United Fruit Co. steamship Carrillo ran aground on a sand bank at the entrance to Cartagena Harbor, Colombia, today, radio advices received here reported. Fifteen passengers were taken off in a tug.

Music of Serenade Covers Theft of Hens

Salta Town, Argentina, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—Don Miguel Gonzales complained to the municipal police that four young men, strumming loudly on an assortment of instruments, had serenaded his seven unmarried daughters.

Questioned by police, Don Miguel confessed that the family was delighted by the serenade until they awoke the next morning to discover that their entire flock of hens had been stolen while the musicians strummed and sang with such enthusiasm that the family did not hear a single squawk from the hen roost.

Memorial Is Held For Robert E. Lee

Virginians Attend Exercises at Battlefields on Death Anniversary.

Stratford on the Potomac, Va., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Prominent Virginians attended memorial services today at Stratford Hall, the ancestral home of the Lees, in observance of the sixty-first anniversary of the death of Robert E. Lee.

Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, made an address. Others on the program included Maj. Giles B. Cooke, last surviving member of Gen. Lee's staff, and Judge Robert Worth Bingham. The program was arranged under the direction of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation.

Fifty members of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Association and guests were conducted over the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania battlefield parks yesterday by Maj. Arthur E. Wilbourne. R. Walton Moore, former representative from Virginia; Gen. C. H. Clem, H. Latane Lewis, of Washington, also accompanied the party.

For the first time since 1864 meals were served from an Army kitchen on the Bloody Angle. At the various battlefields Maj. Wilbourne and Capt. A. J. Montague explained the details of battles.

Sears, Roebuck Sales Decline 17.3 Per cent

Chicago, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. for its tenth period of 1931, September 11 to October 8, totaled $27,159,256 against $32,837,927 last year, a decrease of 17.3 per cent.

For the first ten periods of the year the decrease has been 8.6 per cent, sales totaling $260,067,608 compared with $284,475,425 for the corresponding period of 1930.

Two Men Die in Mine Blast in West Virginia

Welch, W. Va., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Two men were killed in a local explosion in the Exeter mine of the Kingston-Pocahontas Coal Co. two miles from here.

Robert Snodgrass, 28, of Exeter, and Samuel Rued, 26, of Welch, were the victims.

"Miss Farm Bureau" Is Sought by County

Plans for selection of Miss Montgomery County Farm Bureau, to represent the county at a meeting of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, January 6, in Baltimore, Md., will be discussed at a meeting of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the farm bureau office at Rockville, Md.

The county representative must be a member of the family of a member of the farm bureau and must be unmarried. The girl selected will compete with girls from other counties for the title of Miss Maryland Farm Bureau.

4 Killed in Plane Collision.

Pierrefeu, France, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Four French naval aviators were killed in a collision between two planes from the airplane carrier Bearn here today.

Sanitary Risk

in carelessly-made substitutes for Kotex

SAFETY should be your first concern in sanitary protection. Health safety. The kind of safety you are certain of in Kotex, the pad that is used in leading hospitals.

But how about those nameless substitutes, of whose makers you know nothing? What assurance have you of their sanitary safety? Who made them? Where? How? Are you sure you'd use them, if you knew their origin?

There's one certain way of avoiding risk. Ask for Kotex. When buying sanitary pads already wrapped, ask the clerk, "Is this real Kotex?" Thus be sure you are getting no inferior substitute.

Kotex is splendidly comfortable. It may be worn with perfect safety on either side. Soft, filmy layers make adjustment easy. Treated to deodorize. Readily disposable.

James Sandridge Rites Held at Charlottesville; Wounded Woman May Recover

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 12.—Funeral rites for James E. Sandridge, well-known merchant, shot to death yesterday morning by Charles Zehab, a Syrian, when found in company with the restaurant owner's wife on the highway near the Farlington Country Club, were held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the University Baptist Church, of which Sandridge was a deacon.

A large crowd was in attendance, a traffic jam resulting upon arrival of the procession from the Sandridge home on Garrett street. No published notice had been given of the hour set for the obsequies.

The service was conducted by Dr. J. C. Northen, of Richmond, first and only pastor of the church. He was assisted by the Rev. R. J. Mann, of Alberle, and Dr. R. M. Green, supply pastor.

Burial in Church Yard.

Following the service the body was taken to River for interment in the graveyard at the Baptist churchyard by the old Sandridge homestead.

All efforts by J. Callan Brooks, Zehab's counsel, to obtain bail have met with failure. A brother and sister of the accused are here from Richmond ready to give bond.

William O. Fife, Commonwealth's attorney, stated today that he could not concur in any motion for bail until more evidence is brought out, and it is now quite probable that the Syrian will remain in jail until the preliminary hearing, set for Friday morning.

Wounded Wife Improves.

Physicans at Martha Jefferson Hospital today said that the condition of Victoria Zehab, wife of the cafe owner, wounded by a bullet in the shoulder, received during a scuffle with her husband following the shooting of Sandridge, continued favorable. Unless unforeseen complications set in, she will soon be able to return to her home.

Mystery surrounds the finding of two bullets in the death car. A bullet was also located in the automobile hired by Zehab to trail the couple.

On orders from the family, no one was permitted to view the body after its removal to an undertaking establishment, early yesterday afternoon. Hundreds were turned away. In all, four bullets took effect. One penetrated the head and the other three the chest.

Sandridge's funeral was attended by his brother and four sisters, all highly esteemed residents of the county.

as well as social benefits for the masses.

The motion also charged that the other Nationalist Congress leaders were aware of the speech in advance and approved it, thus being guilty of participation. Dr. Hugenberg is the influential Nationalist party leader. Maj. Seldt and Lieut. Col. Duesterberg are leaders of the steel helmet organization of war veterans.

The government strongly censured Dr. Schacht, citing the fact that the Reich had retired 287,000,000 marks of the floating debt and had, on October 1, promptly disproved Dr. Schacht's charges of frozen assets.

Borrowed Money, Is Claim.

In reply to his charge that a part of the gold coverage was borrowed money due to be repaid soon, the government's statement, issued by Finance Minister Hermann Dietrich, said the total of short-term foreign credits was larger than in the past and that it must be realized that the full amount could not be announced pending detailed calculations.

Recent withdrawals alone have shrunk the note circulation more than 12 per cent, the statement said. Bruening is expected to reply further to the charges in his message to the Reichstag tomorrow.

The chancellor's new government will face a battle for its life for the very opening of the Reichstag, although it will be enforced by dictatorial measures approved by President Paul von Hindenburg. The Fascists will begin an attempt to force another general election early in November in an effort to seize control of the government.

NEW WORLD DICTIONARY

Based on the Original Webster Entirely New

The publishers of the New World Dictionary have in past years, in cooperation with hundreds of newspapers, distributed millions of good Dictionaries to newspaper readers on the popular coupon plan at a mere nominal cost.

It has been the ambition of the Dictionary publishers to make and distribute in like manner a larger and more comprehensive Dictionary. With this idea in view, expert lexicographers have been at work for years compiling and editing such a volume. Due to the cost of manufacturing a larger Dictionary the task until recently has seemed impossible to accomplish except at a higher price. Expert mechanical engineers have, however, installed labor saving machinery now being used for the first time. By this means the cost has been reduced to a point where the new book can be distributed, through the cooperation of a large number of newspapers, at the surprising rate of 98c per copy.

Our language has changed with the passing of the years. Many words have become obsolete. The meaning of words has changed and thousands of new words have come into use, all of which has had the expert attention of the editors of this better Dictionary. It has been designed to meet the demand for a Dictionary which shall be complete in its vocabulary, accurate in its definitions and contain the latest and newest words whose general use warrants their incorporation into a Dictionary. It contains not only the ordinary words in general use, but the new and unusual words, many never before published in any Dictionary, all of which will be found in regular alphabetical order in the main vocabulary. This Dictionary also has a very complete list of synonyms and antonyms; as a separate section, a complete summary of English grammar and many other features of educational value.

It can be obtained only through newspapers on the popular coupon plan. The first coupon is printed elsewhere in this issue. Only three coupons clipped on consecutive days is required to enable readers to obtain this superior volume at a mere

CAPONE WARDROBE COST THOUSANDS TO REPLENISH

Philip d'Andrea, who accompanied Capone to court every day last week and finally got himself into jail Saturday for carrying a pistol, appeared to perturb the scar-faced defendant. Capone was absent when Judge James H. Wilkerson lectured d'Andrea.

Judge Wilkerson continued the suave, bespectacled d'Andrea's case until tomorrow, but indicated he would hold the bodyguard in contempt. D'Andrea went back to his jail cell, deprived of benefit of bonds.

Auto Cost $12,500.

Capone's taste in automobiles was expensive, testimony showed. One motor car was said to have cost him $12,500. Another salesman said he sold Al a car for about $5,500.

Nor was the big gang boss stingy in buying furniture for his Chicago hotel suite and his two homes, clerks testified. Jean Reives, a bookkeeper, testified Capone bought $7,289 worth of overstuffed davenports, draperies, vanity dressers and mahogany tables for his $40,000 home at Palm Island, Florida.

Chinese rugs for the Palm Island estate and the Prairie avenue Capone home in Chicago were listed by Paul M. Mincer, a rug salesman. Mincer said Al bought some for his Lexington hotel quarters, too.

Much of Capone's Christmas shopping was said to have been at two Chicago jewelry stores. Samuel J. Steinberg, jeweler, said his purchases at his establishment in 1927 and 1929 totaled more than $3,000.

"Why a few weeks before Christmas in 1926," said Steinberg, "Mr. Capone came in and bought all the ladies' jewelled hand bags we had. There were about 20 of them and they cost $125.50 each.

Later he came back and bought 30 diamond-studded belt buckles at $275 each. I suppose he gave them to friends. He paid cash for both purchases.

40 Friends Remembered.

Thus, it was testified, Al paid out about $9,000 for presents for 40 friends that year.

Further details concerning Capone's residence in Florida were given by Russell Garnett, of Miami, and C. A. Roy, of Miami Beach. Garnett said he rented him a house for six months in the winter of 1927-28 and the gang chief paid $2,500 rent.

Roy, an interior decorator, said he supervised $1,500 worth of work in 1929 and 1930 on the house, which Capone later purchased.

Capone would wear nothing but the finest silk underwear, Jake Pankan and several other department store salesmen testified.

"He paid $12 a suit for winter wear," said Pankan, "and $5 a garment for shirts and shorts in the summer. They were made of the finest silk, the same kind used in making ladies' gloves."

Moving of Half Billion Is Ignored in New York

New York, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—Transfer of more than $500,000,000 in securities and cash from the ancient, red-brick building of the First National Bank to its new quarters half a block away attracted less attention than a fight between street urchins in the financial district today.

The move, made necessary by condemning of the old building, was from No. 2 Wall street to No. 52. That part of the street over which the armored trucks, escorted by 40 policemen, carried the money, was blocked off to traffic.

State of Mexico Feels Quake.

Geneva Calendar Parley Opens.

Geneva, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—An international conference to consider the question of calendar reforms, fixing Easter and other movable feasts, opened here today. The United States is represented by Charles F. Marvin, designated by the State Department, and the American national committee on calendar reform by Col. O. N. Solbert.

Charleston Refuses Loan Of Washington Portrait

Representative Sol Bloom's Plan to Exhibit All Known Pictures of First President Goes Awry as South Carolina Town Acts.

Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, high-powered impresario behind the George Washington Bicentennial celebration, has encountered a snag in his plan to round up all the original portraits of Washington and place them on exhibition here next year.

This portrait, a full-length work showing Gen. Washington in military costume, now is on exhibition in the city hall at Charleston.

When it became known that the George Washington Bicentennial Commission had asked the city of Charleston to lend it the Trumbull portrait, prominent citizens of the historic Southern city immediately drafted a petition calling on the city council to turn down the request. This has now been signed by thousands of Charleston citizens.

Thomas R. Waring, president of the Carolina Art Association, who is leading the fight against the temporary transfer of the portrait to this city, argues that the portrait would be subjected to grave risks in the course of a journey here.

"While everything within reason we can do to promote the success of this celebration should be done," Mr. Waring said, "and Charleston should have a prominent place in it, the sending of the Washington portrait out of the city is something which should never be considered save in an emergency, menacing its safety."

Representative Bloom said last night that he was very much grieved by the attitude of the Charleston citizens. The Trumbull portrait, he said, was one which the bicentennial commission was especially anxious to obtain.

This portrait, he said, would be given a prominent place in the exhibit, which is to be held in the National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution.

If the plans of Mr. Bloom are carried out hundreds of original Washington portraits will be brought here, including the famous Gilbert Stuart portrait now on exhibition in the Boston Atheneum, and the Charles Wilson Peale portrait now in the Historical Museum in New York.

"By bringing these portraits here from all over the world," Mr. Bloom said, "we will give hundreds of thousands of persons an opportunity to see them. So long as they remain where they are, only a comparatively few can see them.

"I fervently hope that the City of Charleston will send its Trumbull portrait here. In asking for it we have made it clear that it will be insured from the time it leaves until it is returned. The display of the portrait here will add interest and fame to the portrait and will reflect great credit on the City of Charleston.

100,000 Emigrants Seek Repatriation

Britons in Australia Report Conditions Not as Advertised.

London, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A hundred thousand emigrants to Australia today petitioned the British government to repatriate them. The petition, issued by the British Migrant Association, says:

"We were induced to leave our homes and emigrate to Australia by mischevious, misleading and untruthful propaganda circulated by paid agents of the Australian government. We are now reduced to a condition of misery, semistarvation and despair.

"Suicides are lamentably frequent. The minds of many have become deranged. Hundreds of young women are exposed to the gravest dangers, and young men are herded together in camps under worse conditions than those to which criminals are subjected in his majesty's jails."

Detroit Sees Forecast Of Auto Plant Activity

Detroit, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The Detroit Board of Commerce, in its weekly publication, The Detroiter, says today that "the bright spot in the present industrial situation in Detroit is the unusual activity in the local tool and die shops.

"Such activity has always been a forerunner of increased operations in the automobile plants," the publication says.

Clinic of World Scientists Studies Electron Mystery

Rome, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A group of 30-odd of the world's most noted scientists, including Mme. Curie and six other Nobel Prize winners, went back to the blackboard and chalk of their schooldays here today in an attempt to bring a solution of the mystery of the electron a step nearer.

One after another, the world-famous professors went to the blackboard and sketched their theories in algebraic expresions, elucidating electronic movements.

English and German scientists occupied the first session of the meetings, which will last a week. Prof. N. F Mott, of Cambridge University, declared that a whole new system of mechanical laws must be devised to govern mysterious actions of the electrons. He inferred that the laws of gravity, momentum and velocity are almost useless when applied to the unknown world within the atom.

The subject was so technical that several in the audience confessed later that they understood only part of it or none of it at all.

American scientists will enter the discussions tomorrow. Prof. S. Gouldsmit, of the University of Michigan, will deliver the principle address.

Mme. Curie showed herself an excellent listener today. Her sharp eyes were fastened upon the speakers from behind her large spectacles, but she remained silent throughout the session.

Dr. Robert A. Milligan, of California Institute of Technology, and Dr. Arthur H. Compton, of the University of Chicago, noted American physicist, will participate in tomorrow's discussions following the address of Prof. Gouldsmit.

Indefinite Sentences Approved by Chaplain

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Approval of a suggestion to give indeterminate sentences to criminals was voiced today by the Rev. William Bergan, chaplain of the New York State Prison at Auburn, N. Y., in an address before the convention of the National Council of Catholic Men.

"It's a fact that some men can be reformed better in 5 years than 25," Father Bergan explained. "What's the use of holding him up until he's an old man and then turning him out when he is antagonistic to all society."

$750 Fine Ends Ruling Of Clark on Dry Act

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The liquor law violation case which formed the basis of the opinion in which Federal Judge William Clark last December held the eighteenth amendment unconstitutional was settled quietly today.

The defendants, William Sprague and William H. Howey, of Sussex, N. J., paid a joint fine of $750 on a plea of guilty to transporting beer.

United States Government check at Niagara Falls shows that more than 2,000,000 persons visit this scenic marvel annually.

METROPOLITAN AREA POPULATION 621,059

Census Bureau Figures Show Steady Suburban Trend Around Capital.

According to figures released yesterday by the United States Census Bureau, Washington has a population of 621,059 persons in a Metropolitan land area of 484.99 square miles—an average population of 1,280.6 per square mile. Tabulation of 95 districts showed a steady trend of population in Metropolitan areas toward the suburbs.

Census Bureau figures show that the population living outside of the legally established limits of the central cities, in the suburbs or nearby smaller cities is 30.6 per cent of the total population. The outside area constitutes almost nine-tenths of the total area of the 95 districts studied by the Census Bureau.

The aggregate population living in the 95 metropolitan districts, established wherever the population of the the central city or cities plus that of the adjacent urban territory amounted to 100,000 or more, is 54,589,972, which is 44.5 per cent of the total population of the continental United States.

The districts include in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous civil divisions having a density of not less than 150 inhabitants per square mile. This is essentially the same principle applied in determining the metropolitan districts of cities of over 200,000 population in the 1910 and 1920 census.

Scouts to Get Chance To Win Music Badges

Washington Boy Scouts will have a chance to prepare for music merit badges in a series of eight juvenile concerts at Central High School auditorium, to be presented by the National Symphony Orchestra. Arrangements have been completed by orchestra officials and Walter MacPeek, scout official.

Hans Kindler, conductor, will interpret each number, and will give a brief historical sketch of the composer and his work. Saturday concerts at 11 a. m. will be presented December 19, February 6 and 27 and March 5. Thursday afternoon programs at 4 o'clock will be played November 12, December 10, January 14 and February 18.

$200 Found in Treasury Leads to Boy's Arrest

Police found $200 in the Treasury Building yesterday which they say did not belong there and consequently 19-year-old Noble Morris Hunter was arrested and charged with grand larceny. He is a messenger at the Treasury.

The youth allegedly stole $245 from Claude M. Camper, at whose home, which is at 8 Fourth street southeast, he lives. Although Hunter denied his guilt, $200 was found hidden in the room where he works, resulting in his being booked. The money was concealed beneath the floor, according to Detective R. J. Barrett.

MARYLAND FAMILY MURDERED IN HOME

was dismissed Saturday after an argument. During the period he worked at the farm he slept at night on the first floor of the farm house. Officers who had investigated his activities said he had been in the State several years and had been in difficulty with the law before. He at one time was employed on the Belair road, near Baltimore. He came from Virginia.

Corporal Burbager, of the Pittsville substation of the State police, with four of his assistants, responded after word of the finding of the bodies had been sent out by the authorities. They are cooperating with Sheriff Wilmer S. Turnell and State's Attorney Godfrey Child.

Jones was brought to Berlin after his arrest at Ocean City and immediately questioned by the officials who said the questioning would continue far into the night. The prisoner, however, insisted he knew nothing of the deaths of the four.

Later in the night a second Negro was arrested and questioned. He was apprehended at the home of Mrs. Harmon, but his name was not made public.

AGREEMENT IS MADE FOR HOLDING COTTON

7,000,000 Bales Will Be Kept Off Market Until July 31, 1932.

New Orleans, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—An agreement to hold about 7,000,000 bales of cotton off the market until July 31, 1932, was reached by leading bankers from cotton States, Chairman James C. Stone and Carl Williams, of the Federal Farm Board, and officials of the American Cotton Cooperative Association tonight after an all-day meeting here.

Pledges to this effect were given by about 40 bankers present, but the agreement is to go into effect after approval is given by the State Bankers Association, meetings of which have been called for October 20 in all cotton States.

An additional 1,000,000 bales probably will be held from the market by shippers.

The agreement provides that the banks of the cotton-producing States will make or renew loans to mature not earlier than July 31, 1932, secured by cotton to the total amount of at least 3,500,000 bales.

The Farm Board agrees to renew A. C. C. A. loans so that the 2,000,000 bales it now has on hand can be carried for the year and agrees to finance the cotton for an additional year if expected acreage reductions materialize over the South.

The agreement provides for the Farm Board automatically to continue carrying its present 1,300,000 bales of stabilized cotton.

The prediction that cotton would go up from 1½ to 2 cents a pound immediately after adoption of the agreement was made by Adams shortly before leaving for Dallas.

Bankers from every cotton State except North and South Carolina were appointed to arrange for the State bankers' meetings. They are Moorehed Wright, chairman of the board of the Union Trust Co., Little Rock, Ark.; Mr. Adams and R. L. Thornton, president of the Mercantile Bank & Trust Co., Dallas; Leroy Ward, of the Bank of Baton Rouge, Baton Rouge, La.; John W. Slaughter, president of the Mississippi Bankers Association; D. W. Hogan, president of the City National Bank & Trust Co., Oklahoma City.

Soldiers, Missing On Lake, Found

Fear Had Been Entertained for Five Out Fishing When Gale Arose.

Sackets Harbor, N. Y., Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Five members of the Fifth Field Artillery of Madison Barracks, missing since yesterday afternoon when winds kicked up Lake Ontario on which they were fishing, were found safe today by a naval militia boat at Stony Island.

Fear had been expressed for their safety by officers at the barracks. The men were towed in late this afternoon by the naval militia boat that had searched the Eastern end of the lake most of the day. The members of the party are Herbert Brunner, 24; Churchtown, Pa.; William Harp, 31, Junction City, Kans.; James Powers, 21, Remer, Minn.; Eugene Fay, 31, Brooklyn, and John Harvey, 21, Sheridan, Wyo.

Their announced destination was High Rock, a strip of main land 2 miles long and 50 feet high, too precipitious to be scaled. It was this information that led their fellow soldiers at the barracks to fear they might have been driven into the teeth of the gale which blew down trees on the mainland.

Safe in Ancient Church Yields Robbers Nothing

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Robbers today entered the basement of "Old Pine" Presbyterian Church, one of the oldest churches in the country, blew the door from a safe and left empty-handed after strewing records over the floor.

Four silver communion plates which have been used at services for more than 100 years were taken from the safe but left on the floor. The ground occupied by the church was donated by Richard and Thomas Penn in 1764.

Georgians Plan to Honor Gov. Franklin Roosevelt

Warm Springs, Ga., Oct. 12 (A.P.). Over in Kitchens Grove, across the Columbus road from the Warm Springs Foundation Colony, singing Negroes tonight were getting things ready for Meriwether County's barbecue "homecoming" to its favorite adopted son, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

Tomorrow 2,000 or more Georgians, with scattered representations from nearby States, are expected to attend the demonstration for Mr. Roosevelt, who on Wednesday ends a two weeks' vacation here.

BOVINE TEST REBELS STORM JAIL IN IOWA

Arrested Leader Is Spirited Away by Embittered Crowd of 500.

New London, Iowa, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Hostility of southeastern Iowa farmers to the State compulsory bovine tuberculin test law again burst into open rebellion today as veterinarians sought to begin inoculating Henry County cattle.

About 500 embittered men marched on the New London jail and freed Roland Hart, 20, arrested for scoffing at Iowa National Guardsmen engaged in dispersing 150 farmers who had gathered to hinder work of the testers on the farm of one of their leaders.

Arrest of the young man followed that of Mike Hennessey and Henry Connor, who, likewise, were among the group who heckled the military escort near the McKinnon farm. Hennessey and Connor were taken to Mount Pleasant, Henry County seat, under guard, while Hart was placed in the New London Jail. Two others arrested were released on their promise to return home.

As the soldiers were attempting to disperse the crowd near the McKinnon place, some of the protesters returned here. With more than 400 farmers from Cedar and Muscatine Counties, where testing was finished in the last three weeks, and from Des Moines County, they gathered at the city park and paraded to the jail.

There they overran the fire hall forming the front part of the municipal building and broke jail locks and cell bars to free the young man.

In the ensuing disturbance it could not be learned where Hart was taken. The throng took with it also for a short distance the New London marshal, Earl Brewer, but released him unharmed.

The soldies arrived quickly at the municipal building, but many of the farmers already had disappeared and the militia directed its efforts to scattering groups of farmers and onlookers. They said Hart was not being sought.

Today's disturbance recalled similar recent attempts to hinder tests in Cedar County, notably the open defiance shown by 200 farmers toward 65 sheriff's deputies protecting veterinarians. This precipitated the mobilization of 1,700 guardsmen September 21 to enforce the law. Again, when the troopers and veterinarians moved into Muscatine County, several farmers' leaders were arrested following like demonstrations.

Melville E. Stone Bust Is Placed in Illinois U.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A bronze bust of Melville E. Stone, for many years general manager of the Associated Press, presented by directors of the organization, was placed today in the lobby of the University of Illinois auditorium, where the editors' hall of fame has been housed temporarily.

The bust was done by Sculptor Francis Savage.

BASEL CONFERENCE RENEWS BIG CREDITS

Board Adjourns to Await Outcome of Laval's Visit to America.

Basel, Switzerland, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—The board of the Bank for International Settlements, concluding its first meeting since the Hoover war debts holiday became effective, decided today to renew its share of large credits to Germany, Austria and Jugoslavia, but postponed discussion of the momentous economic questions confronting the world powers until after the forthcoming visit of Premier Pierre Laval to Washington.

The board extended its share of the $100,000,000 credit advanced to Germany last June. The International Bank, England, France and the United States Federal Reserve Bank participated equally in the credit and it was understood negotiations would be started at once for renewal of the shares held by the three other creditors.

The bank board also decided on renewal of the three months' credit of 190,000,000 Austrian schillings in which the International Bank and England participated. The loan was granted to prevent collapse of the Austrian national finances last summer. The renewed Austrian credit, of which the International Bank granted 40,000,000 schillings, will be carried conjointly in the future under a guarantee of the bank.

Further strengthening the middle-European financial situation, the board agreed to renew for three months a credit of $3,000,000 granted to Jugoslavia.

The International Bank had granted $1,000,000 of the Jugoslavian loan. The board meeting, which yesterday was assured of the soundness of the American dollar in a speech by W. Randolph Burgess, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, was attended by all of the European Central Bank directors.

Burgess did not sit in at the board meeting, but remained in adjacent offices. After the meeting the board adjourned until November 9.

Burgess will remain here a few days, possibly sailing for New York on the S. S. Ile de France, which will carry Premier Pierre Laval to the United States.

BEER SEEN AS LIMIT OF LABOR WET PLAN

Group Asking More Expected to Modify Demand to Consolidate Front.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—M. J. McDonough, head of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, predicted today the fifty-first annual convention of the federation here "will unite on beer in order to make labor's stand definite."

Advocacy of the modification of the Volstead act to legalize beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content was included in the program of the executive council and will be acted upon this week.

Although there has been considerable discussion among delegations on prohibition, many favoring a more drastic change than light beer, indications were that all shades of opinion would be consolidated to ask only congressional modification of existing laws, without any attempt to disturb the eighteenth amendment.

"Beer is within the possibilities, although the Congress meeting in December may not act," McDonough said. "While many of the delegates feel we should go further, it looks now as if the convention will unite on beer in order to make labor's stand definite."

A demand for a congressional investigation of Hoover Dam on the Colorado River is expected to grow out of the resolutions committee's study of what has been described as "intolerable" working conditions on the project.

Matthew Woll, Washington, third vice president of the federation and chairman of the resolutions committee, said the subject probably would be referred to the executive council for study with a view to eventual congressional action if necessary.

The internal dispute in the building trades department is likely to be settled amicably by the time it reaches the convention floor tomorrow, Martin Francis Ryan, treasurer of the federation and chairman of the committee on laws, indicated.

Seabury Charges Overpay in Quiz

Says Large Salaries Paid to Tammany Officials Run Into Millions.

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee investigating city government, expressed the belief tonight that an examination of the bank accounts of leaders of Tammany and associated borough organizations would disclose an excess over official salaries totaling many millions of dollars.

Mr. Seabury said he would continue his investigation into officials' salaries tomorrow. Those shown to have had large deposits will face possibility of a Federal income tax inquiry, it was said.

Peter J. McGuinness, deputy commissioner of public works of Brooklyn and Democratic leader of the Fourteenth Assembly District, will be called to the witness stand in the continued public hearings. Before the inquiry is over, Mr. Seabury said, he intends to subpena the bank and brokerage accounts of virtually every Tammany leader and prominent city, county and borough official.

School Tests Being Given.

Achievement tests are being held this week in spelling, arithmetic, English and reading in the public schools of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties under auspices of the State board of education. The purpose is to determine the degree of maintenance of State standards.

VOLUNTEERS URGE JOBLESS STAY HOME

Organization Gives 102,228 Meals to Unemployed Here in 9 Months.

Needy residents of Washington have been furnished with 102,228 meals by the local mission of the Volunteers of America during the last nine months, according to a report sent to national headquarters of the organization yesterday by Lieut. Col. Frank H. Wise, regional commander.

The report points out that in addition to the meals 10,568 lodgings were given. The mission, the report states, distributed 2,232 baskets of food.

In connection with its work among undernourished children the mission distriuted 20,160 quarts of milk. Jobs were obtained for 300 men during the nine months, the report says.

Col. Wise in his report recommended that headquarters of the Volunteers instruct other regional commanders to urge unemployed in their districts not to come to Washington during the winter months.

Pan-Americans Are Guests at Brilliant Fete

Secretary and Mrs. Stimson Aided by Envoys in Reviewing Line.

All Washington paid honor last night to its neighbor republics—Mexico, the countries bordering it and to states of the Southern Hemisphere, represented at the Pan-American Union where the governing board received at a brilliant fete the delegates to the fourth Pan-American Congress.

With the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson heading the line and the envoys of 20 countries and their wives assisting, the receiving line last night exceeded in length any formal party in many a long day. Music and dancing in the hall of the Americas lent additional charm to a function sparkling with the spontaneity of guests from lands characteristically Spanish.

Welcomed by Dr. Leo S. Rowe (the "Minister without portfolio"), the brilliant throng moved up the grand stairway and into the Hall of the Americas, where guests lingered in groups, chatting of summer holidays, and then joined the dancing. Preceding the reception the Marimba Orchestra, of New York, gave a half hour's concert of typical South American music.

The reception brought together representative groups of the Capital. The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann were the ranking guests and the center of animated groups representing the Diplomatic Corps, official Washington, and residential society. Mrs. Gann was in black velvet. Everywhere were the guests of honor with their wives and daughters, with aids busily engaged in making introductions and, later, marshaling the "extra" men for the dancing.

——RULE FOR ADD IN TYPE——

In Receiving Line.

In the receiving line were the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson, the Minister of Uruguay and Mme. Varela, the Ambassador of Cuba and Mme. Ferrara, the Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander; the Ambassador of Brazil, Senhor Dr. R. de Lima e Silva; the Ambassador of Argentina, Senor Dr. Felipe A. Espil; the Ambassador of Chile, Senor Don Miguel Cruchaga; the Minister of Guatemala and Mme. Recinos, the Minister of Nicaragua and Mme. Sacasa, the Minister of Ecuador and Mme. Viteri, the Minister of Venezuela and Mme. Arcaya, the Minister of Haiti and Mme. Bellegarde; the Minister of Haiti and Mme. Lozano, the Minister of the Dominican Republic, Senor Roberto Despradel; the Minister of Honduras and Mme. Davila, the Minister of Bolivia and Mme. Abelli, the Charge d'Affaires of Mexico and Mme. Herrera de Huerta, the Charge d'Affaires of Paraguay and Mme. Ynsfran, the Charge d'Affaires of Costa Rica and Mme. Gonzalez, the Charge d'Affaires of Panama and Mme. Chevalier, Senor Don Roberto D. Melendez, in charge of the Legation of El Salvador, and Mme. Melendez.

As brilliant as the corridors and reception rooms of the splendid building were the gowns and jewels of the women as well as the jeweled medals of some of the envoys. Mrs. Stimson had selected a particularly stunning gown of white satin. She wore a necklace and earrings of diamonds. With the Minister of Uruguay was Mme. Varela in black satin. Chartreuse chiffon enhanced the beauty of Mme. Recinos, always a smart dresser.

Mme. Sacasa was in amethyst velvet. Mme. Viteri wore black velvet, with diamante; Mme. Arcaya's gown was of black, generously sprinkled with sequins. Printed silk, a white ground with flowers of rose and pink, was the smart selection of Mme. Lozano. Mme. Abelli, Mme. Huerta and Mme. Gonzale were in white satin. Mme. Ynefran's frock was of lace in oyster tones and Mme. Chevalier and Mme. Davila both lovely gowns, the former in turquoise satin and Mme. Davila in jade chiffon with a smart girdle of mathieng velvet.

Vice President There.

Among those attending were the Vice President of the United States, Mr. Curtis, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gann.

Also Senator and Mrs. Key Pittman, Senator and Mrs. Cordell Hull, Senator and Mrs. William J. Harris, Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, Miss Vera Bloom.

Present at the dinner as "distinguished guests" will be the following, who will also speak at the Conference of Major Industries, which will open during the day at Columbia University:

Dr. Wilhelm Cuno, chairman of the board of the Hamburg-American Line; Andre Citroen, French motor car manufacturer; Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, Dr. Carl S. von Siemens and Fritz Thyssen, head of the international raw steel cartel.

Speakers will include Gen. Pershing, Field Marshal Robertson and Yukio Ozaki.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Price, whose wedding took place on August 15, will leave Paris soon and will go to London prior to making a cruise around the world on the Empress of Britain. They spent the early fall in Aix-les-Bains, following their stay at Lausanne. Mr. Price was the former Minister to Panama and is established in Washington. Mrs. Price is the former Miss Beatrice Detweiler, of Washington and Lancaster, Pa.

Mrs. Lily Josephine Lewer, of Los Angeles, arrived last night and will be the guest for several days of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde B. Aitchison.

Marriner Soon to Return Here On Arms Work

Diplomat Has Entertained Charmingly While in Paris.

Mr. Theodore Marriner will come from Paris to Washington in about ten days, to assume his new duties with the State Department. Mr. Marriner, who has been in Paris for several months at the embassy, was, while here, chief of the Western European Division of the State Department, and on his return will begin his work in preparation for the disarmament conference at Geneva.

While in Paris Mr. Marriner occupies one of the beautiful apartments on the Left Bank, in a wing of one of the ancient palaces that dot the vicinity and lend charm to the environment. Through a charming old court is glimpsed the entrance to Mr. Marriner's "studio apartment." It opens into a wide hall, the doors being of embossed leather and reaching from the patterned marble floor to the lofty ceiling.

The large drawing room, furnished with fine old French furniture, opens into a formal garden. The walls of the hospitable room are decorated with four ancient Chinese panels, placed there by a former Minister from Austria to Paris. Adjacent is the circular dining room, with windows opening to the gardens. In this room Mr. Marriner has placed many rare treasures, including an antique copy of fifteenth century brocade and fine old screen. In this charming place Mr. Marriner entertains friends with the graciousness for which he is famous.

Mr. C. A. Page to Wed Miss Mary McElroy.

Mrs. Thomas L. James, of New York and Rochester, wife of the late Thomas L. James, Postmaster General in President Garfield's administration, has arrived in this country from a visit abroad. Mrs. James' niece, Miss Mary McElroy, recently announced her engagement to Mr. Charles Albert Page, of Boston, third secretary of the American Legation in Quito, Ecuador. Miss McElroy was educated in France and Italy. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McElroy, of New York and Rochester, and is descended from one of the first governors of Massachusetts.

Mr. Page was appointed as personal aid to the King and Queen of Siam during their visit to Washington.

Miss Francesca McKenney has as her guest her cousin, Miss Frances Miller, of New York, who has recently returned after passing the summer in Europe. Tomorrow Miss McKenney and Miss Miller will go to Hot Springs, Va., to pass about a week. Both girls are ardent equestrians and will spend much of their visit on the beautiful bridle paths of the resort.

Honoring Mrs. Margaret Mellor, of England, Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Chevy Chase Club. Mrs. Mellor, who is staying at the Willard for some time, is accompanied by her nephew, Mr. Pennington.

Mr. Joseph E. Davies will sail from New York on Wednesday for Paris, where he will join his daughter, Miss Rahel Davies, who has been there for several months with the Colonial Exposition. Mr. Davies and his daughter will motor to Vienna, where the former has some business, and will remain there until early in December. Mrs. Davies and their younger daughter, Miss Emelen Knight Davies, may join them later in the winter and return with them or continue on a trip around the world.

Underwood & Underwood.

MME. ETIENNE LARDY, wife of the newly appointed Consul General of Switzerland to China, M. Lardy, who has been counselor of legation here for four years. They will leave by motor today for San Francisco and plan to be at their new post in Shanghai early in December.

Home Affairs Theme Before Women's Club

Democrats at Forum Luncheon Hear Senator Ashurst.

Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, was the guest of honor and speaker at the weekly forum luncheon which the Woman's National Democratic Club gave yesterday. He discussed "Home Affairs." Mrs. Frank Hiram Snell introduced the speaker and the others at the table were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Herrick, the latter the club president; Mrs. Louis Brandeis, wife of the Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court; Mrs. Cordell Hull and Mrs. Herrick's guests, Miss Julia Waite and Miss Crimora Waite, of Culpeper, Va.

Others in the company, many of whom entertained guests, were Mrs. Josephus Trimble, Miss Julia McFarland, Mrs. Edward Martin, Miss Jessie Dell, Mrs. John Grimsley, Mrs. Arthur D. Condon, Mrs. Edward S. Stuart, Mrs. N. P. Webster, Mrs. John Waldron, Mrs. Donald Macdonald, Mrs. George M. Eckels, Mrs. Clarke Porter, Mrs. James T. Newton, Mrs. Rufus Weaver, Mrs. T. H. Seay and Mrs. Lucien A. Clarke.

Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, current events lecturer, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the forum luncheon next Monday.

Mrs. Emma S. Tenney has returned to her apartment at the Rochambeau after an absence of several months in the mountains of North Carolina. Her sister, the Countess von Krockow, of New York and Berlin, will be her guest next week.

Miss Elizabeth Mills has returned to Washington after several days in New York. Miss Mills' engagement to Mr. A. Pendleton Taliaferro, jr., was recently announced.

Bayettes Plan Visit Here in Near Future

Former Idanthea Moffatt Made Her Debut in City 4 Years Ago.

Capt. Hubert Bayette, U. S. A., and Mrs. Bayette arrived in New York recently from Paris, where they had been stationed for three years. Capt. Bayette was a member of the Battle Monuments Commission and has been ordered to Maxwell Field, Ala.

Capt. and Mrs. Bayette will come to Washington shortly for a brief visit, as both formerly made their home here. Mrs. Bayette was, before her marriage, Miss Idanthea Moffatt, and made her debut here about four years ago, and has many friends who will welcome her on her first visit to the Capital since her marriage. Capt. and Mrs. Bayette will bring their twin daughters, Idanthea and Bonnie, aged 14 months, with them, and will go from Washington to Fort Maxwell.

Ambassador of Italy Here in November.

The Ambassador of Italy and Donna Nobil Antonietta de Martino will come to Washington early in November to prepare for the arrival, about November 15, of Signor Dino Grandi, minister of foreign affairs, who will sail frm Naples on the Conte Grande November 6.

Signor Grande probably will be the guest of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson at Woodley during his stay in Washington. His coming to Washington will coincide with the visit in this country of the Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. John W. Garrett, whose visit is timed in order to join in the entertainment of the foreign minister in the United States. Ambassador and Mrs. Garrett will be at their house near Baltimore.

The Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Ferrara were the ranking guests last night at the dinner which Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman gave in honor of Princess Ruspoli di Poggio Suasa of Italy at the National Woman's Country Club.

Farnams, of New Haven, Visitors in Capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Farnam, of New Haven, Conn., have motored here and are at the Carlton for a few days. Their son, Mr. Henry W. Farnam, jr., is married to the former Mlle. Suzanne Silvercruys, who lived in Washington while her brother was attached to the Belgian Embassy.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

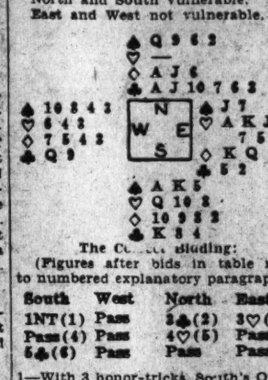
AN UNSAFE SLAM TRY.

WHEN a player decides to give up a certain game for the possibility of a Slam he should be sure that the chances of making a Slam are at least even. I receive a great many letters from Bridge players everywhere telling the story of Slams made in the play, but missed in the bidding. Many of these, it is true, should have been bid as well as made and thereby the rich bonus for the Slam scored by the fortunate holder. On the other hand, there are many hands which through the favor of distribution will make Slams in actual play that should never be bid because the probabilities of making the Slam are not even, and game should not be given up without at least an even chance for the greater reward. If you bid two Slams and make one and lose one, it is probable that your losses on the one will be at least counter-balanced by your gains on the other, but if you bid three Slams and lose two and make one, it is quite apparent that the two games sacrificed more than counterbalance the one Slam made.

Below is a hand from Duplicate play in which few reached the greatest possible score on the board, but the chance of Slam was so well concealed that those who did it were taking unjustifiable chances and those who were content to stop with game were playing sounder Bridge.

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.
East and West not vulnerable.



The Correct Bidding:
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1NT(1)	Pass	3♣(2)	3♡(3)
Pass(4)	Pass	4♡(5)	Pass
5♣(6)	Pass	Pass	Pass

2—A borderline Forcing Takeout.
3—Not vulnerable, East's bid of three hearts is perfectly sound. He hopes to make 6 heart tricks and 1 diamond trick in his own hand, and, if he can find a single trick in his partner's hand, the defeat will not be serious. Even though he lose 2 heart tricks, his heart bid is justified if it prevents North and South from making a game, as the loss of 400 points is less than the value of a game to his vulnerable opponents.
4—A very fine pass indeed. North has made a Forcing Takeout, so South knows the bidding will not die. His hand contains no values in addition to his Opening bid.
5—A rather questionable showing of the fact that there are no heart losers in the hand, as South might attempt an unmakeable Slam as a result. However, the hand is quite strong distributionally and the extra length in clubs has not yet been shown.
6—The even distribution of the South hand and weakness of the diamonds makes inadvisable a Slam try with South's holdings.

As played this hand produced many varying results. I have given above what I consider to be the correct bidding. The actual bidding varied from it very greatly. One pair played the hand at four notrump, the South player feeling that despite the heart bid by East the score at notrump would exceed that made at clubs. His gamble for a top was not compensated for by the greater safety of the suit declaration. Another pair reached a contract of five clubs, but failed to make it due to the insidious influence of a psychic bid of one notrump made by East after North had opened the bidding third hand with one club. These players deserved to go down on their contract because of South's timid failure to make a sound Opening bid.

Completely misled by East's psychic bid, North finessed the trumps and lost a trick in that suit to West's Queen. Still under the influence of the potent narcotic, he failed to make the end play through which he could still have scored his game.

TODAY'S POINTER

The Redouble of a Takeout Double signals to partner that the Redoubler holds the remaining balance of honor strength, and therefore the partner of Doubler must hold practically a blank.

To illustrate:

First Hand (Dealer) bids one no trump, which accounts for about 3 honor-tricks.

Second Hand doubles for a Takeout, which also accounts for about 3 honor-tricks.

Third Hand holds, say:
Spades A 10 7 4
Hearts A J 8 5
Diamonds K 10 3 2
Clubs 5

This hand is worth 2½ honor-tricks. Since the first three hands already disclose about 8-½ honor-tricks it is obvious that partner of the Doubler (Fourth Hand) has either a total blank or ½ trick at the most.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

IS the bougainvillea a reliably hardy plant, or must it be brought inside in winter?

MRS. CATHERINE N.

The bougainvillea is hardy in California or Mexico, but not in your locality. Keep the plant in the winter in a sunny window, where there is plenty of fresh air and give it plenty of water.

When shall I transplant a rose bush? E. K. B.

Do it any time after the 20th of this month.

I have a friend who has a Jack rose, planted seven years ago, which develops most beautiful foliage, but never sets a bud. Can you explain the reason for this condition?

EMILY H. T.

Lack of food, sun or water may be the cause of the plant's failure to bloom. Incorrect pruning may also be another reason. When pruning, all weak growth should be cut away. If quality, rather than quantity of bloom, is desired, all strong canes should be cut back to within 8 or 9 inches of the ground, but if quantity of bloom for garden effect is desired, leave these canes from 2 to 3 feet high, according to their strength

Please tell me why my clematis paniculata does not bloom. It was purchased from a reliable dealer this spring. It has formed buds twice but in each case the buds have failed to mature. F. S. M.

The clematis paniculata requires a rich, well-drained soil and plenty of sunshine. Manure water should, if administered when the buds showed color, have caused them to open. Better mulch the plant after the first light frost with well-rotted manure.

An insect or crawler has attacked my sycamore tree. What do you suggest for me to do to get rid of this pest? ROSE McN.

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

New York, Oct. 12.

WOULDN'T the good Empress Eugenie have looked ridiculous on snowshoes, or skis, or flying down a toboggan slide, as so many lovely ladies will be doing in a month or so? Can't you just picture her—ostrich plumes waving madly, short, peplumed jacket askew, leg-o'-mutton sleeves and little muff all mixed up in the direst sort of confusion? 'N' the sad part is, she'd either have had to take her sports in the outlandish clothes of her period, or do without them altogether—which is probably why she did the latter, if we may believe our histories, which give us a lovely picture of a beautiful, soignee and indolent woman.

But what would we do if we couldn't go to some winter resort and freshen up for the next few months by strenuous activity in snow and ice and pure, crisp air? And what would we do if Dame Fashion hadn't decreed trousers for this sort of thing, and stuck right to this idea through all successive seasons?

As usual, active winter sports costumes consist of two or three-piece heavy woolen or leather suits—the long-sleeved, snug jacket buttoning high about the neck, and the baggy, ankle-length trousers being gathered into tight bands from the ankle to the instep. Not that Dame Fashion lets these suits become monotonous—there's no end of the variety she creates by scarfs, sweaters and knitted gloves, and, occasionally, belts.

Suede, warmly interlined and supple, is particularly attractive in these sports suits, with its almost velvety depth and sheen. Other lovely ladies, who prefer a fabric, are raving happily about the new duvetyn suits, or very masculine ones of wool corduroy.

• • • •

Colored like an autumn leaf, and just as crisp and interesting in its details, is the ensemble I sketch for you today—one of those vivid little suits that invite cool and colorful play days. The frock, of wool crepe, is of orange and rust checks on a beige ground, with cuffs and a tiny collar of beige crepe de chine dotted with small rust-colored circles. The little jacket, snugly belted, is of dark brown kasha cloth, lined with the dotted crepe de chine, and it's given a wide, shoulder-y look by the unusual lapels.

'N' I just had to show you the way the bodice of the frock was incrusted, forming points at the yoke and hip. These points at the shoulder, incidentally, call attention to the fact that the shoulders and sleeves are cut all in one piece, in the modern manner. The frock has its own little belt of beige leather.

• • • •

This ensemble is proof of the fact that two wool fabrics are smarter than one, this autumn. And what economical and fashionable tricks this probably brings to your style-minds, my deahs.

• • • •

The Dare Department of The Washington Post is waiting for your stamped, self-addressed envelops to send you a leaflet describing the very latest and most Parisian tricks in blouses. You should just see 'em—sometimes they're blouses, and other times they're vestees, and still other times you'd think you were looking at a dress—not a blouse and skirt at all. And there's another blouse that flatters stoutish women 'n'—but just send for the leaflet and find out for yourself.

Au revoir.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA"

IF October 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:10 a. m. to 1:35 p. m., from

If October 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:10 a. m. to 1:35 p. m., from 4:10 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 9:30 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from 9:05 a. m. to 10:50 p. m., from 2:10 p. m. to 3:50 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9:20 p. m.

The astrological signs of October 13 point to disturbing factors, and some unpleasant conditions may arise, especially in business. Quick decisions will have to be taken in order to avoid disaster. In the home the atmosphere may be clouded but, after sunset, it will clear and peaceful conditions will prevail. Unexpected travel is indicated.

Accuracy, calmness in emergency, consideration for others, and a sympathetic nature will characterize the child born on this October 13. It will be self-contained, with great reserve forces, not at all demonstrative, but loyal and constant. Its horoscope—be it boy or girl—denotes a life well and successfully spent.

You, if born on October 13, are naturally humorous, and a congenial and lively companion. You, like everyone else, have your fits of depression, but no outsider is permitted to glimpse them, or is made to suffer by them—not even in the intimacy of the home circle. Your ideals are high; your ambition is great; to realize the one, or satisfy the other, you do not find it necessary to give yourself any airs of importance or dignity. You achieve more by a smile and a cheerful word than is ever gained by pomposity.

You will travel a great deal, and benefit, intellectually and materially, thereby. You have a warm, passionate nature, and lucky is the man or woman with whom you mate. Endowed with practical common sense, you can demonstrate it in a light—rather than heavy—manner. On life's stage, you are a comedian, not a tragedian.

You are fond of reading, and can express yourself well and entertainingly. You are intelligent, fairly industrious, and conscientious. Your chief asset, however, is your attractive personality. Your serene, cheerful attitude in the face of difficulties that would submerge those who take life seriously, is appreciated by all, and has often converted a seeming failure into an outstanding success.

Successful people born on October 13:

Irene Rich, film actress.
James H. Baker, president of Colorado University.
Charles C. Pearce, artist.
Augustus C. Bernays, surgeon.
James H. Stoddart, actor.
Eben D. Jordan, merchant.

CANDIDATES SPEAK AT ARLINGTON CLUB

Ashton Heights Group Hears Claims of Aspirants for Sheriff and Attorney.

Addressing the second of a series of political mass meetings held under the auspices of the Ashton Heights Citizens Association in the Woman's Clubhouse last night, Clarendon R. Ahalt, opposing William C. Gloth, incumbent, for the office of Commonwealth's attorney, resumed his attack on the methods used in the filing of a large number of suits for the collection of delinquent real estate taxes.

Mr. Gloth has had three setbacks in his efforts to collect the taxes by these suits. In each case the law has been held as unconstitutional. He said no one has been sued whose taxes have been delinquent for less than three years

"I have heard of officials being criticized for not doing their duty, but not for doing their duty. All I have done is to follow the instructions of the county board of supervisors," he said.

Lawrence W. Douglas emphasized the fact that he was relying solely upon his own merits, and not the weakness of any opponent, in seeking the support of the voters. He said that the Commonwealth's attorney was the personal attorney of the voters in county affairs and that they should consider that in making their selection.

Amos C. Crounse declared that with the new form of government and the creation of the new county, that for the best interests of the county it should also have a new Commonwealth's attorney.

Emery N. Hosmer stated that he had taken an active part in the fight for the new form of county government.

Edward Duncan, supervisor from Jefferson District for the past 24 years, the first speaker seeking the office of sheriff against Howard B. Fields, said that if he was elected he would clean up gambling and bootlegging, which he declared existed in Arlington County.

Sheriff Fields said he regretted that he did not have more time in which to tell of the duties of the office of sheriff. Continuing, he said that the prohibition law is now being enforced in Arlington County. Next Monday the October term of the circuit court opens, and there are now 35 cases of violation of the prohibition laws to go before the grand jury.

A. C. Clements stated that his experience in the Army and as former sheriff of Arlington County made him well qualified to fill the duties of the office.

Other speakers for the office of sheriff were Z. O. Kines and Carl A. Schultze.

Driver in Fatal Wreck To Be Arraigned Today

James Augustus, 26, Arlington County colored man, will be arraigned in Alexandria police court today following an inquest yesterday by Coroner T. Marshall Jones in the death of Arthur Twyman, 24, colored, 324 C street southwest, who was killed while riding as a passenger in Augustus' car Sunday morning.

The coroner's verdict found that Twyman met death when the car crashed into a guard rail on the Potomac Yard Bridge and that Augustus was driving while drunk.

Two in Car Ask $20,000 For Hurts in Collision

Suits for damages in the sum of $10,000 each were filed in the Arlington County Circuit Court yesterday by Claire Raymond, of Clarendon, and Edwin C. Summers, of Ballston, against the Shenandoah Stages, Inc., by their attorney, Frank L. Ball.

The suits are the result of injuries claimed by the plaintiffs, who allege that the automobile in which they were riding was struck by one of the buses of the company on July 31, 1931, at the intersection of Glebe road and Columbia pike, in Arlington County.

Club Women Plan Marlboro Session

Prince Georges Federation to Hear Mrs. Sippel October 27.

The semiannual meeting of the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in Trinity Hall in Marlboro October 27, with Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, president of the general federation, as guest speaker.

Other speakers will be Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, also of Baltimore, president of the Maryland federation; Dr. Albert Cook, State superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, of College Park, president of the county federation.

The Mellwood Women's Club, which will be host to the federation, has announced that the bronze tablet in memory of colonial events which centered around the old elm tree will be in place by the date of the meeting. The Mellwood Club was largely responsible for the placing of the tablet.

Prisoner Who Dug Way Out With 4 Others Surrenders

Officials at Jessups Cut House of Correction and Lorton Reformatory Also Search for Five Men Who Escaped Last Week.

A penitent prisoner who escaped with four companions from the Fairfax County Jail, returned to the jail yesterday after less than 24 hours of liberty after the group had obtained their freedom by hacking a hole in the 14-inch jail wall.

James Carper, 25 years old, of Washington, who was awaiting action on a charge of transporting and possessing alleged liquor and reckless driving, notified Sheriff E. P. Kirby by telephone yesterday he was ready to surrender. He appeared at the jail at 10 o'clock, explaining that he thought "it was the best thing to do."

After the five men crawled through the hole in the jail, Carper said, he and Grear Dennis, 21 years old, sentenced for striking his father with rocks, and William Longstreet, colored, who was awaiting action on housebreaking charges, walked to Vienna, where Carper obtained a lift to Washington in an automobile. Nothing has been heard from the four other escaped men.

While Fairfax County authorities were searching for the jail breakers, officials of the House of Correction at Jessups Cut, Md., were questioning inmates of that place in regard to the escape of three dangerous convicts who fled the place Saturday night.

Officials of the House of Correction believe the men had inside aid in their escape. Tools used in their break were property of the various shops in the House of Correction. Baltimore police are also aiding officials at the institution.

Two of the five men who escaped from Lorton Reformatory on Thursday night are still free. No trace has been found of their whereabouts.

MISS FLOURNOY DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Daughter of Pastor Emeritus at Bethesda to Be Buried Today.

Miss Eleanor Morrison Flournoy, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Parke P. Flournoy, pastor emeritus of the Bethesda (Md.) Presbyterian Church, and of the late Mary Moore Smith Flournoy, died yesterday at the home of her father, 3122 P street northwest, after an extended illness. Funeral services at the home this afternoon at 4 o'clock will be followed by services at 5 o'clock at the cemetery of the old Bethesda Church. The Rev. Stanley White, pastor of the Bethesda Presbyterian Church, will conduct the services.

Miss Flournoy was prominent in the work of the Southern Presbyterian Church. At the time of her death she was the historian of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Potomac Presbytery. She retained her interest and leadership in the women's work of the Bethesda church after the retirement, in 1924, of her father from the ministry, following a pastorate there of more than 50 years.

Miss Flournoy was born in Hampden Sidney, Va. Her father and six brothers, Parke P. Flournoy, of Baltimore; Benjamin C., Richard W. and E. Stanhope Flournoy, of Washington; Addison H. Flournoy, now stationed in Portland, Me., and Francis Rosebro Flournoy, of St. Stephen's College, Annandale-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., survive her.

Death Car Driver Held as Reckless

Montgomery County Police Arrest Operator After Fatality.

William A. Scroggins, said by Montgomery County police to have been driving the automobile in which Mrs. Ruth Shipps was killed Sunday night, was charged with reckless driving yesterday and released under $500 bond. He will appear Monday in Rockville police court.

Ruth Dunn, who was seriously injured in the accident, which occurred on the Lay Hill-Glenmont road, recovered consciousness yesterday at a Sandy Spring hospital and told Detective Theodore Vollton that Scroggins had been driving too fast and she had warned him several times before the mishap. He maintains that his machine was sideswiped by a hit-run car.

Jack Clinedinst, 1514 North Capitol street, also was seriously hurt in the crash. Lesser injuries were received by Scroggins, who lives at 223 P street northwest, and Theodore Breenen, 69 Seaton place northwest.

ARLINGTON-FAIRFAX COUNCIL IS FORMED

Walter K. Handy Elected President of Religious Education Group.

The Arlington-Fairfax Council of Religious Education was organized at the joint convention of the Arlington and Fairfax County Councils of Religious Education at a meeting yesterday in the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church, Va.

The new association elected Walter K. Handy, of Barcroft, as president; the Rev. Ira O. Harbaugh, of the Ballston Christian Church, vice president for Arlington County, and Clarence Shotwell, of Falls Church, vice president for Fairfax County. Mrs. James B. Davis, of Burke, former secretary of the Fairfax association, was elected secretary-treasurer.

President Handy appointed the Rev. Walter F. Wolff, of Clarendon, as chairman of the educational committee, which is directly responsible for the conduct of the week-day Bible schools in the two counties. Monroe Stockett, of the Community Methodist Church at Lyon Village, was selected as chairman of the committee to raise money to finance the council's educational program in the two counties.

Group conferences were held with Mrs. Ralph Wott, of Oakton, Va., in charge of the beginners. Mrs. R. E. Mitchell, of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, primary; the Rev. R. J. Duffield, field representative of the board of Christian education of the Presbyterian Church, juniors; Mrs. J. L. McCutcheon, of Arlington, intermediates; Mrs. Bess C. Miles, director of religious education of the Calvary Methodist Church in Washington, seniors and young people; Miss Mabel Thurston, of Clarendon, adults, and Dr. W. A. Squires, the officers and superintendents.

Plans were made for a young peoples' rally for the two counties on November 13. Roy Burkhart, young people's worker with the Virginia Council of Religious Education, will be invited to speak at the rally.

Fishermen Are Blamed For Reduction in Lakes

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Responsibility for the gradually diminishing number of fish in Lakes Erie and Ontario was put squarely up to the fishermen themselves at an international conference between fisheries authorities of Canada, New York State, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and the Federal Government here today.

Dr. Elmer Higgins, chief of the scientific inquiry division, United States Bureau of Fisheries, blamed "over fishing" for the falling off in the annual take, about which fishermen have complained so bitterly.

ALEXANDRIA CHIEF SUSPENDS DODD

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Police Capt. John S. Arnold, following an investigation into the kidnaping of Policeman Clifford Dodd Saturday night by two colored men, who relieved the officer of his revolver, badge, coat, cap, "billy" and blackjack, yesterday suspended Dodd for five days without pay, and also charged him with the value of the lost revolver, the other articles of city property having been recovered.

The reason for this action, as explained by Capt. Arnold, was that after making the arrest and getting into the car with his prisoner, the officer rode on the front seat of the car, instead of the rear seat, and so was unable properly to exercise control over his prisoner.

Dodd was "taken for a ride" by his captors, from the southwestern section of the city to Four Mile Run, about three miles, incidentally being pummeled by the two Negroes, and being allowed to escape only when their automobile broke down and they were forced to release him while they attempted to repair the machine.

According to Policeman Dodd, he arrested the colored man, whose name is known to the local police, for allowing the motor of his car to run while parked at the curb on the 700 block of Gibbon street, and also for not having a driver's permit.

When they reached the intersection of Wilkes and Pitt streets the driver called another colored man, and the two then attacked Dodd. Then, threatened with his own revolver, Dodd was forced to get into the car, whereupon the men drove rapidly to the road to the north.

When the car reached Four Mile Run and became disabled, Dodd was able to make his escape, hailed a passing motorist, and rode to a filling station, where he called police headquarters. Policeman Wesley Snoots responded, found the men still working on their car, and fired four shots at them. Both ran, but one, giving the name of Douglas Matthews, 21 years old, of the 500 block South St. Asaph street, surrendered and was taken to headquarters.

His companion, believed to have been the driver of the car, made his escape, but Officer Snoots believes one of his bullets struck him. This man is said to live in Hyattsville, but to have formerly lived in Alexandria. An arrest is expected shortly.

Dodd's hat, coat and billy were recovered with the abandoned car, but his blackjack and revolver were not found.

City Manager Wallace Lawrence has returned from Louisville, Ky., where he attended the annual meeting of the International City Managers Association.

Stanton Citizens Choose Officers

Peabody School Meeting Elects W. W. Keeler as President.

New officers of the Stanton Park Citizens Association were elected last night at a meeting in Peabody School, Fifth and C streets northeast.

Those named are: President, William W. Keeler; vice presidents, William E. Monroe and Joseph P. Farner; secretary, Mrs. L. H. Brown; financial secretary, Robert S. Bier; treasurer, Claiborne Hunter. Harry N. Stull and A. H. Gregory were elected delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Dorsey W. Hyde, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce, was guest speaker on benefits of Community Chest and social work, illustrating his points with picture slides.

Death of 23 on Truck Ends in $184,000 Suits

Georgetown, S. C., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Suits for damages totaling $184,000 were filed here today against the South Carolina Highway Commission as the result of the deaths of 23 persons, drowned when a truck plunged from a drawbridge into the Sampit River.

The estate of Olin Newton, driver of the truck, which was transporting a group of Negro picnickers home from an outing, asks $50,000, and a similar amount is asked in the death of Newton's son, Warren, also a passenger on the truck. Four thousand dollars is asked for the death of each of the 21 Negroes who drowned.

Finland Bank Quits Gold.

Helsingfors, Finland, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The Bank of Finland followed the lead of other Scandinavian countries today by suspending the gold standard. At the same time the discount rate was raised from 8 per cent to 9 per cent.

Dorothy Freeman.....Lora Baxter

By NELSON B. BELL.

It is a smartly written and deftly turned burlesque that Gilbert Miller has imported from Paris to the American theater, presenting a new facet of the many-sided problem that confronts continental mamas intent on marrying off their masculine daughters and feminine sons under circumstances that may reasonably be expected to make it possible for them to toil not, nor spin anything but fanciful figments about their not too-clandestine lovers and frankly acknowledged mistresses.

The viewpoint is distinctly Parisian. With the shrewd skill of a Shaw and the paradoxical logic of a Chesterton, Mons. Edouard Bourdet, the author, has cleverly contrived to reverse the sexes, making the male the much-sought matrimonial prize among the bargain and fortune hunters. As a single thoroughly revolutionary figure he has even gone so far as to invent an Argentinian who renounces a lifelong career as a gigolo to seek emancipation and freedom in honest toil—but in the end even he succumbs to the temptation of feminine corruption and accepts the handsome solitaire from the wife of another man!

It is all very ominous from the standpoint of any wary observer of the masculine gender—and very delightful, once one has accustomed his mental processes to the velvety satire with which Mons. Bourdet etches his characters. Unless an almost total detachment from the American point of view can be achieved, the gentlemen in and about the menage of Mme. Leroy-Gomez are just a little difficult to take. The entire piece, however, is written with such sophisticated yet quiet humor that discussions and situations that might otherwise strike a jarring note are accepted as proper and plausible developments in the circumstances.

No more to Mons. Bourdet's carefully couched speeches than to their perfect reading by a long cast of extraordinary capability and balance is the effectiveness of "The Sex Fable" to the attributed. While the presence of Mrs. Patrick Campbell among the principals is heavily stressed, hers is by no means the most prominent part in the comedy, although none is better played. She appears only in the second act as a bored and world-weary countess, still hoping that a thrill may be encountered in the form of some handsome and susceptible young man lolling about the lobby of a fashionable hotel. It is a brief but vivid bit of portraiture that this veteran actress contributes to the play.

Nothing more subtly ingratiating than Ronald Squire's Antoine, a tactful and—in the fluctuations of the marriage market—omniscient maitre d'hotel, has come to the American stage in many seasons. It is a role of pivotal importance, played with quiet and unfailing humor and utmost finesse.

Others who participate notably in an evening of expert and exhilarating theater include Helen Haye, as the mother whose concern over the welfare of her children pursued a strange course; Margaret Dale, the wealthy dowager to whom, after eighteen years, she surrendered her husband, and all of the members of the clan of Leroy-Gomez, impersonated with uniform excellence by Derek Williams, Allen Tower, Leona Maricle and Anthony Ireland. Particularly colorful character parts are particularly well performed by Helena D'Algy and Rafael Corio, both earning—along with Mrs. Campbell and Mr. Squire—the tribute of sustained applause after their most important scenes in acknowledgment of tasks well done. An extended list of minor characters lend the lobby scenes an unusual degree of realism.

Mr. Gilbert Miller, then, has brought to the new season in Washington its second touch—"Private Lives" was the first—of sound writing in intelligent, if somewhat bizarre comedy. It should be appreciated and enjoyed throughout the remainder of the week by audiences of more generous proportions than greeted its premiere last night.

GAYETY

Not a world-beater by any means, but a good show from start to finish, "Parisian Beauties," now playing at the Gayety, offers a brand of entertainment that won the hearty approval of a large audience at last night's performance. Much of this presentation smacks of high class vaudeville but at times good old burlesque is king.

Georgia Sothern, a shapely miss, leads the feminine contingent to win much applause although her numbers were cut far too short, considering the reception she received. The guest star of the production, Connie St. Clair, a beautiful blonde, made a decided hit with her snappy numbers. Other girls deserving mention for their good work are dimpled Bea Craig and a dashing brunette, Marion Lee.

Dealing out a brand of humor to rock the theater to its foundations were Harry Meyers and Joe DeRita, a little fellow with lots of pep. This pair, with the assistance of Les Sponsler and Al Baker, keep handing out laughs straight from the shoulder.

The rhythmic dance, "On the Stairs," as presented by Lillian and Walter Wayne was exceptionally well done and in the second act Lillian knocks 'em cold with her "Minnie, the Moocher." Two cute members of the chorus, the Bush Sisters, went over big with their specialty song in the cabaret scene and Al Baker scored with "Hallelujah."

The chorus of sixteen girls, well trained and in unique costumes, do much to make the show a success.

Mrs. W. W. Mohun Expires Suddenly

Former Worker at Library of Congress Succumbs to Heart Attack.

Mrs. Anna R. Mohun, widow of William W. Mohun, and former employe of the Library of Congress, died last night of a sudden heart attack at her residence, 2700 Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Mohun was a native of Washington and had been a resident here all her life. She attended the local schools and graduated from Park Seminary. She was appointed to the copyright office of the library in 1897 and just recently retired after years of work in that institution.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mildred M. Boteler, of the same address, and a son, W. Ward Mohun, who is an executive of the Willys-Overland Automobile Co. in Toledo, Ohio. Funeral services will be held this morning at 11 o'clock from Epiphany Church, followed by interment in Congressional Cemetery.

FEDERATION URGES POLITICAL LIBERTY

Montgomery County Group Seats New Delegates; Plans Election.

The Montgomery County Civic Federation met last night in Bethesda to seat its new delegates, elect a nominating committee and consider a number of issues and problems.

A resolution recommending that Federal employes who reside in Montgomery County be permitted to take part in county politics and made eligible to hold office was adopted by the federation. It was presented by W. B. Horne and was reported favorably by the legislative and legal action committee.

The nominating committee, which will make up a slate from which the officers will be elected, consists of E. H. Bogley, Friendship Heights Citizens Association; J. Harry Welch, Leland Citizens Association; Mr. Horne, Somerset Citizens Association; Dr. George L. Edmonds, Rockville Chamber of Commerce; Col. Thomas Hampton, Bethesda Chamber of Commerce; W. I. Cleveland, Kensington Chamber of Commerce, and Robert E. Bondy, Edgemoor Citizens Association.

Mr. Bogley, who received the largest number of votes, called the committee to its first meeting at 8 o'clock Saturday night in Col. Hampton's office, in the Bethesda County Building.

The federation referred to its school committee a resolution offered by the Kensington Board of Trade opposing the location of the proposed Eastern High School on property owned by the North Washington Realty Co.

Pari-mutuel betting at the Rockville fair was assailed by the federation, along with any and all forms of gaming.

MILLARD F. HOBBS RITES.

Former Labor Investigator to Be Buried in Rock Creek Today.

Funeral services for Millard F. Hobbs, former investigator for the Department of Labor, who died Saturday at his residence, 1823 Ontario road northwest, after a short illness, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the John R. Wright funeral home, 1337 Tenth street northwest, followed by interment in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Hobbs was born in Baltimore and came to Washington about 50 years ago. He had been connected with the Department of Labor for 44 years up to August, 1930, when he retired. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Miss Pauline Hobbs.

The Parent-Teacher Association in the town of Falls Church will meet this afternoon in the auditorium of the Madison School, on Washington street. Miss Emeline Whitcomb, home economist of the Education Bureau of the United States Department of the Interior, will speak on "The White House Child Health Conference and the Children's Charter."

The association has voted to make this an open meeting and all parents are invited to attend. Arrangements have been made to take care of the small children, during the meeting, so that the mothers may be free to attend. Preceding the program the pupils of the fifth grade, under the direction of Miss Virginia Taylor, will present a Columbus Day play.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will hold its monthly meeting this evening in the auditorium of the schoolhouse at Lorton, Va. The county's part in the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration next year and other local questions will be considered.

Thomas P. Chapman, sr., of Fairfax, Va., State license agent for Fairfax County, reports for the last quarter, ended with September, that he issued 229 county hunting and fishing licenses. He also issued 121 Statewide hunting licenses, two to nonresidents for hunting and four to nonresidents for fishing only.

MISS UMSTEAD RITES TODAY.

Kensington Woman Will be Buried In Rockville Cemetery.

Obsequies will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in St. John's Church, Forest Glen, Md., for Miss Mary Virginia Umstead, 50, who died Sunday in her Kensington home after a lingering illness.

The Rev. Charles O. Rosensteer will officiate. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Rockville.

Survivors of Miss Umstead, who was a native of Montgomery County, include three brothers, Maurice, Edward and Joseph, and three sisters, Miss Annie Umstead, Miss Sallie Umstead and Miss Nellie Umstead. All are from Kensington except Maurice Umstead, whose home is in Dawsonville, Md.

Arlington Chamber to Meet.

There will be a meeting of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce tonight in the Kelley Building at Clarendon at 8 o'clock.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

YEARS ago—some ten or twelve, to be exact—I knew a chap in New York by the name of P. S. Harrison. He published, and is still publishing, to the best of my knowledge, a confidential guide to exhibitors known as "Harrison's Reports," dealing with the potential box-office values of pictures released for general distribution. The "Reports" have always been valuable aids to the executive delegated to book the films for the given company, but they sometimes reflected a purely personal and occasionally odd point of view. That may still be true of the emanations from the office of "Pete" Harrison, but his newest activity, like his oldest, seems to be based on a foundation of sheer and unswervable honesty.

Mr. Harrison now has taken it upon himself, and his personal bank account, to combat the insidious encroachments of sponsored advertising upon the amusement screens of the nation. It seems that the attempt to foist purely advertising matter—with the sponsor sometimes indicated and again only subtly suggested—has not as yet died completely out, as many of us had supposed. Mr. Harrison makes this entirely clear in the third issue of his new publication, "Contact," which has just arrived at this desk.

A recent plan—upset finally by the withdrawal of Paramount-Publix and Warner Brothers—was for one agency to take over the advertising contracts of the five foremost producers of pictures in the United States. It was a crafty scheme and Mr. Harrison deserves major credit for having kicked it effectually over the heart.

I have never known precisely what it is that actuates Pete Harrison in all of his altruism, but whatever it is, the theater-going public ought to be devoutly thankful for it.

No previous season in the legitimate theater comes to mind in which so many early offerings have been personally conducted to the National Capital by their producers as in this budding theatrical year of 1931-32.

To begin with, Leonard Bergman and Myron C. Fagan were on hand for the launching of "Peter Flies High," with which the season was opened at the National; then Arch Selwyn, John Emerson and Anita Loos were personally present for the inaugural of "Cherries Are Ripe;" Mr. Selwyn returned for the premiere of "Private Lives;" Earl Carroll was present in the flesh for the first performance of his "Vanities" Sunday night, and last night Gilbert Miller viewed the presentation of "The Sex Fable" at the Belasco, following hard on the heels of James B. Fagan and Maurice Browne, author and producer, respectively, of "The Improper Duchess," in which Irene Bordoni appeared at the Lafayette Square house last week.

This, I am well-nigh convinced, is some sort of record—not such great shakes as records go, you understand, but some sort of!

Already inquiries have begun to come in as to why I did not pounce upon Earl Carroll's "Vanities" with greater viciousness and venom in Monday's review, the thought apparently being that in spots the piece is a little too hot to handle.

Well, I'll tell you. In the first place, the character of the revue was pretty thoroughly understood before it ever reached Washington. It was haled into court in New York and absolved of any transgression of the law. It is as gorgeous in many of its scenes as it is risque in others. It represents a heavy expenditure of time, effort and money on the part of its sponsors and a colossal amount of hard work on the part of its principals and chorus. It is entitled to serious consideration on all of these grounds.

If you don't care for that sort of thing, you don't care for that sort of thing; if you do, you do. The issue is squarely up to the individual.

Oh, Eddie, if it isn't a private fight between you and Lady Winchell, wherever did you get the notion that Senorita Montenegro's first name is Carlotta?

You can always remember that it is Conchita by the fact that it doesn't make much sense freely translated into English, the Conchita Montenegro loosely rendered, meaning, as we have pointed out before, "Littleshell Blackmountain." Now I ask you if that's anythnig to forget?

No doubt having already seen the offering at the National this week, Earl Carroll and party occupied a box at "The Sex Fable" premiere at the Belasco last night, as did also Mr. and Mrs. William Harriman Rapley.

It was obvious last evening, by the way, that when Mrs. Patrick Campbell made her first unobstrusive entrance in the "Fable," the audience was slow to recognize her after so long an absence from the local boards. After her splendid second act, however, ample atonement was made in the form of repeated curtain calls.

And after all that kicking about the heat, it isn't the part of very good sportsmanship to scowl so about taking care of the furnace!

RELATIVES WILL SUE OVER AGED RECLUSE

Injunction Against Guardian to Be Asked on Behalf of Rich Woman.

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Grandchildren of Mrs. Ida E. Wood will apply to a court tomorrow for a restraining action against Otis F. Wood, a nephew of the 93-year-old recluse from whom, in the last week, processes of law have wrested for safekeeping more than $900,000 in cash, securities and jewels.

Mrs. Blanche Wood Shields and her husband, William Shields, of Red Bank, N. J., are the litigants who have stepped into the case to bring charges of "improper guardianship." Mrs. Wood, the widow of Benjamin Wood, brother of a former Mayor of New York City, has been declared legally incompetent.

The grandchildren said they would contend that physical force was used on Mrs. Wood to take her money and that they were forcibly turned out of her hotel room when they called to see her.

When Mrs. Wood yielded $400,000 in cash last Tuesday she was moved from rooms in which she had sequestered herself for years. She was placed in a chair, wrapped in a blanket and carried downstairs, Mrs. Shields said she had been informed.

At that time Mrs. Wood still had $500,000 concealed on her person.

Investigation of the sources of the aged woman's wealth disclosed that her husband won much of it over the gaming table. On one occasion he was reputed to have won $100,000 at roulette and faro in four hours.

On another his winnings in a game at Saratoga Springs were placed at $150,000 at one sitting.

His wife did not object to his gambling, it was said, but insisted on being given half of all winnings and not to have to pay any losses.

Laundry Asks Ban On Customer List

Former Workers Charged With Use of Names in New Competition.

The District Supreme Court was asked yesterday to issue a restraining order to keep two former employes of the Arcade-Sunshine Laundry, 713 Lamont street northwest, from taking advantage of names of customers and other information gleaned while they worked for the company.

The two former employes, Irving L. Burroughs and Andrew J. Gray, trading as the Sanico Laundry, 905 Alabama avenue southeast, have been in business since September 23 and a list of one-time customers of the Arcade-Sunshine who have been taken by the pair was included in the complaint.

The suit is based on a contract the laundry has with all its driver-salesmen. They are paid a small amount weekly allegedly in return for signing a contract that they will be liable to a restraining order if they leave the company and attempt to set up a business with names, addresses and other company information as a basis.

Halloween Plans Near Completion in Capital

Plans for Washington's first civic Halloween celebration are rapidly nearing completion, it was announced last night, following a meeting in the District Building of the committee appointed to arrange for the elaborate festival.

More than 3,000 colored electric lights will be strung along Constitution avenue from Fourteenth to Seventeenth streets northwest, where the parade will disband, and judges will award prizes for floats and costumes. Huge red flares will decorate the line of march, while powerful spotlights will play on those joining in the dances along Constitution avenue.

Brookland Citizens Protest Nuisances

Smoke and Noise of Trains Condemned at Meeting of Association.

Increasing smoke nuisances and unnecessary noises along the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks from Rhode Island avenue northeast to Catholic University, were condemned last night by the Brookland Citizens Association at a meeting in the Masonic Temple.

Despite repeated protests, it was declared, heavy smoke from freight and passenger engines is continuing to deface the property of residents in the community. The unusual amount of smoke and noise along the tracks at all hours of the day and night were termed unnecessary by members of the organization.

A resolution was adopted congratulating District officials for their prompt action in erecting an overpass above the railroad tracks at Monroe street. The association asked the Traffic Bureau to install stop signs at the intersection of Ninth, Tenth and Monroe streets. The meeting concluded with an address by M. M. Guthrie, of the American Legion.

Park Road Route To Be Continued

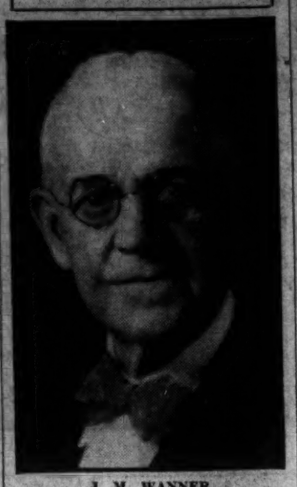
Residents' Protest Against Noise Fails to Move Commission.

After listening for two hours to a neighborhood row over a request that the route of Park road bus line of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. be changed, the Public Utilities Commission took the matter under advisement. Another effort will be made to bring the two residential factions into agreement.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, stated at the hearing that the bus line would not be abolished, as requested by some residents. The commission may decide to reroute the buses over the same streets, but in an opposite direction from that now followed, if it is found that a minority of patrons live on Kenyon street.

The basis of the protests is the noise caused by the buses as they go up the steep grade on Kenyon street between Eighteenth street and Adams Mill road in second gear.

AWARDED PRIZE



J. M. WANNER, 70-year-old electric refrigerator salesman, who lives in Forest Glen, Md., has been awarded first prize in a two-month national contest conducted by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. among their retail salesmen.

VETERANS TO PRESS FOR BONUS PAYMENT

Groups Will Bring Pressure on Congress by Means of Petitions.

(Associated Press.)

Several groups of veterans plan to lay up a stock of pressure to apply on the new Congress for full payment of adjusted compensation certificates.

Representative Patman, Texas, Democrat, yesterday announced the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled American Veterans and some minor former service men's groups will conduct a 60-day Nation-wide campaign to get 10,000,000 names on petitions asking the certificates be paid.

Mr. Patman has advocated cash payment since he entered Congress in 1928. He said he already had received many petitions for submission to Congress in December.

Friday the Texan will confer with Darold Decoe, of Sacramento, Calif., national commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and James E. Van Zandt, of Washington, D. C., vice commander, on plans to press legislation calling for full payment.

He has talked with E. Claude Babcock, of Washington, who has been designated by the Disabled American Veterans to head its drive.

Noting that under the 50 per cent loan value legislation passed by the last Congress over President Hoover's veto, $1,500,000,000 had been advanced to veterans, the Texas Democrat said it would require $2,000,000,000 to cash the remainder.

Change in Season On Ducks Opposed

Extension to Ten Weeks of Hunting Had Been Urged Before Hyde.

(Associated Press.)

The advisory board under the migratory bird treaty act has recommended to Secretary Hyde that there be no change in the one-month duck hunting season.

Suggestions that the season be changed to one of ten weeks, with hunting three days a week, were made before the board at a hearing last week by game officials and hunters from Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and New Jersey.

The one-month season was instituted this fall to preserve ducks and other wild fowl whose numbers have been seriously depleted by continuing drought in breeding areas.

The advisory board hears suggestions for changes and makes recommendations to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Three Trees in Turkey Mark Washington Fete

(Associated Press.)

Three black walnut trees in Istanbul, Turkey, now are growing to the glory of George Washington.

Certified record of their planting was sent by Ambassador Joseph C. Grew to the American Tree Corporation. Among 8,000,000 bicentennial tree plantings to Washington's memory, the three trees in Turkey went down as the first to be planted by a representative of the United States on foreign soil.

2 Runaway Girls Sought by Police

High School Students Leave Note Expressing Intentions.

Two young girls, one a student at the John Quincy Adams School and the other at McKinley High School, were sought by police last night when they failed to return to their homes after leaving to attend classes early yesterday.

It is believed the girls, Annette Shears, 14 years old, of 2305 Eighteenth street northwest and Louise Hege, 15 years old, of 1333 Belmont street northwest, are on their way to North Carolina. A note left by Louise stated merely that she and her companion had "run away." However, friends of the girls said they had voiced their intentions of hitchhiking to the Southern State. The Heges formerly lived at Winston-Salem, N. C. Police in adjoining States have been asked to be on the lookout.

Rev. Fairley Is Named Head of Church Council

The Rev. R. A. Fairley, pastor of Tabor Presbyterian Church, according to word received here yesterday, has been elected head of the Afro-American Presbyterian Council for the coming year. The council, which met in Rochester, N. Y., comprises 67 churches of the denomination in all sections of the country.

The retiring president was the Rev. L. B. Ellerson, pastor of the Newark Presbyterian Church, Newark, N. J. The council will meet next year in Atlantic City.

POISON BUYING LAID TO WOMAN SUSPECT

Druggist on Stand Accuses Mother, Charged With Killing 2 Daughters.

Lebanon, Ind., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—An Indianapolis druggist today pointed out Mrs. Carrie Simmons as the woman to whom he sold a quantity of poison only three days before her two daughters, Alice Jean, 10, and Virginia, 14, were killed by the same deadly drug.

Charles W. Friedman, the druggist, arose from the witness chair he occupied at the woman's first degree murder trial, and made the dramatic pronouncement, "That's the woman I sold the poison to."

Attorneys for Mrs. Simmons were quick to counter attack. They brought back to the witness stand Horace M. Jackson, against whom they have previously directed their attack, and confronting him with the proprietors of two small town drug stores, asked him to affirm or deny he had purchased or attempted to purchase poison from them. Jackson shouted a denial.

Mrs. Simmons is charged with having inserted poison-filled capsules in sandwiches she prepared for the Simmons-Pollard family reunion held here last June 21. Defense attorneys have sought to show Jackson might have had access to the sandwiches. Jackson is a brother-in-law of John W. Simmons, husband of the accused woman.

Chicken Thefts to Pay Taxes Land 2 in Jail

Theft of 120 chickens led to the sentencing of two young men in police court yesterday, after they had been found guilty by Judge John P. McMahon. They are George J. Burgie and John P. Beach, and each was given 180 days.

Seventy-five of the chickens were taken from the store of Amy Farr, on Kenilworth avenue, on the night of August 11. Two nights later the other 45 were taken. Burgie is said to have told the judge that he took the chickens to help his mother pay her taxes, while Beach said he helped Burgie because he was told the chickens were necessary if Burgie's mother was to pay her taxes.

$10,000 Is Sought In Woman's Death

Congress to Be Asked to Aid Child of Mother Electrocuted in Wine.

(Associated Press.)

Congress will be asked to award $10,000 to the child of the late Mrs. Helen Vasilzevic, electrocuted in Milwaukee August 13 while standing in a pool of wine poured on her cellar floor by dry agents.

Rpresentative Schafer, Wisconsin antiprohibitionist, said today he would introduce a bill in December calling for the outlay on the basis of a letter received from Prohibition Director Woodcock. The letter said Mrs. Vasilzevic was electrocuted by coming in contact with an electric socket and wire in the basement, but that it was "probable that the presence of wine on the floor and possibly some of it on the wire had something to do" with the electrocution.

"I think that there is legitimate criticism of the agents' judgment in pouring wine on the dirt floor," the letter added. "It was, however, an error of judgment with no criminal responsibility."

Woman Reporter Admitted to Bar

Miss Elsie A. Cannon Is Licensed to Practice in Supreme Court.

Miss Elsie A. Cannon, Washington court reporter and graduate of the National University School of Law, was admitted yesterday to practice in the District Supreme Court. Miss Cannon has had experience in taking testimony in courts from Boston to Montana. She has reported cases before the Court of Claims, the Federal Radio Commission, Federal Courts and hearings of the House Indian affairs committee.

As a commissioner of the Court of Claims, Miss Cannon reported the claim of the Assiniboine Tribe against the United States which took place in Montana. She risked her life in a condemned airplane with a near-sighted pilot to obtain a signature. In recognition of her services she was admitted to the tribe, being the only white woman to receive this honor. She aided William Standing, the first Indian artist.

Miss Cannon is a member of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Business and Professional Women's Club, the National League of American Pen Women and the National Shorthand Reporters Association. She holds the degrees of bachelor of laws, master of laws and master of patent laws.

M'NARY WILL CALL FARM RELIEF PARLEY

Leaders Will Discuss Agriculture Marketing Act.

(United Press.)

A conference on National farm leaders to unite on a plan for farm relief will be called soon by Chairman Charles L. McNary, of the Senate agriculture committee.

Last year McNary called these leaders to sit around a table with him and they agreed to rest on their oars and give the Farm Board a chance. Congress did as they suggested.

Now, recognizing an increased opposition to the Farm Board's activities particularly in holding huge quantities of wheat and cotton, McNary is seeking to unify the farm men on a program, worked out from farm relief suggestions which, he said, are as numerous as the sands in the sea.

Urges Some Action.

The Oregon senator said, however, that he does not expect Congress to destroy the Farm Board, as some senators have advocated, nor repeal the agriculture marketing act.

McNary said he had no plan of his own, but he expected efforts would be made to meet the price-depressing surplus problem through the export debenture and equalization fee plans.

"The first thing Congress should do," he said, "is to lend to the Federal Farm Board whatever assistance it may possess in an effort to dispose of the accumulated surplus of wheat and cotton.

"The most tremendous depression to the price level of wheat at home and abroad is the stupendous carryover. If it were in the hands of the individual growers the menace would not be so harmful."

McNary expects the conference to meet with him in two or three weeks. Leaders of the Farm Bureau Federation, the Grange, the Farmers Union and other national farm organizations will be asked to attend.

McNary Arrives.

McNary, who arrived here yesterday, has not consulted with President Hoover, and the conferences will be entirely his affair, with neither the Farm Board, the administration, or the other members of his committee taking any part.

McNary expressed approval of the $500,000,000 bank-bolstering corporation phase of the President's new financial plan, but sounded a warning that "if hard-shelled banking methods are employed, the scheme will be of small benefit to the rural banks and communities. Any administration of the new fund that fails to take into consideration the needs of the small banks," McNary said, "will be heralded as a plan to finance the financiers with its minimum benefits."

Plight of Jobless Women Is Cited

National League to Offer Special Committee to Helf Gifford.

Calling particular attention to the plight of unemployed women the executive board of the National Women's Trade Union League today adjourned its annual session with appointment of a special committee to cooperate with the President's organization on unemployment relief.

Miss Elizabeth Christman, secretary-treasurer of the league, recently appointed by the President as a member of the advisory committee and by Chairman Gifford as a member of the subcommittee on cooperation with national groups and associations, was commissioned to offer Chairman Gifford the services of the league's special committee in aid of women who are out of work.

"The woman worker out of a job, especially the woman who is self-dependent or who has dependent relatives, is too often overlooked in plans for employment stabilization and unemployment relief," said Miss Rose Schneiderman, president of the league.

Rabbis Force Fish Czar to Abdicate

Chicago Racketeer Quits Market Rule Under Kihillah Fire.

Chicago, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Another of the royalty of racketeering has found the going hard. Maxie Eisen, tsar of the fish markets, abdicated today as overlord of the Jewish Fish Dealers Association and the Hebrew Butchers Association in the face of an onslaught by the Kihillah, ruling body of rabbis and lay leaders.

The abdication of Eisen, a public enemy, and arrested 34 times on various charges from malicious mischief to murderous assault, was reported by Chief Justice Harry Fisher, of the Crimnal Court.

Eisen's action, the Kihillah said, if made in good faith will probably cancel a ban on all koshered meats, ordered by the rabbis as a protest to Eisen's domination of the fish dealers.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

SLIMMER LINES.

A really delightfully lovely dress is this patterned wool and silk crepe model in deep brown tone. The trim is greeny-gray.

It's a dress you'll find so much use for general day wear.

Style No. 538 may be had in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52 inches bust. Size 36 requires 4⅛ yards of 39-inch material with half a yard of 39-inch contrasting and 1 yard of 6-inch lace.

It's extremely fascinating in black faille crepe silk with eggshell satin trim.

Price of pattern, 15 cents. Address Fashion Department, Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, New York City.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

CHILDREN'S BAD HABITS.

IN many places it is possible for parents to take their children to a habit clinic. In some places such clinics are a part of the school system; in others, they are operated by other agencies, and in some there are several such clinics maintained by diverse agencies. This kind of clinic is not for subnormal, delinquent, and problem children. It has to do with the training of nervous children, nail biters, dirt eaters, stammerers, poor sleepers, children with enuresis, children with poor appetites, boisterous children, rowdies, fighters, timid and shy children, those who are afraid of the dark, of ghosts and who have other fears and phobias.

Many of the difficulties that children suffer call for training rather than medicine, and not many physicians' offices are equipped to take care of child training. Of course, the best place for such is in the home, but so many homes are not equipped for it.

In an investigation of the reasons for problems of this nature, as the cause is found in the home, Southard and Jarrett found that in one-third of the cases ignorance was the stumbling block. They reported not only a lack of knowledge necessary for the management of the home and family situations, but also erroneous, preconceived ideas regarding the means and methods of running the household.

Poverty and vice in the home were the other two reasons found for failure of the home as a place for habit training, in so large a measure. Since neither the home nor the physician's office furnish all the help needed in the training of so many children, the department of education has had to step into the breach. Since so many of the children who need this service are of preschool age, various other agencies have had to organize habit clinics.

A report on the subject of habit clinics made by Dr. D. A. Thom is being circulated by the children's bureau, United States Department of Labor. The report supplements statements of what has been done and what needs to be done, by retailing cases handled in habit clinics. An interesting section is devoted to temper tantrums. Cases cited show why different children were given to outbreaks of temper and how to go about training them. Another section relates to poor appetite children; another to poor sleepers; and still another to bed wetters.

GRAPEFRUIT JUICE.

J. H. S. writes: I have been told by friends that I should drink unsweetened grapefruit juice to overcome acid stomach and to avoid pyorrhea. This juice tastes acid to me. How can I overcome acid stomach? Will it aid in avoiding pyorrhea, and how should I drink it?

REPLY.

Fruit juices serve a useful purpose in the human diet, but I doubt whether overcoming acidity of the stomach is part of that purpose. Muriatic is the acid of the stomach. It is much more powerful than milac and citric acids—the usual fruit acids.

Fruit acids are burned to alkalis in the body, certain portions of them going off as carbonic acid through the lungs. The residue or ash helps to increase the alkali reserve of the body. Therefore, fruit juices are eaten to overcome tendency to acidity. At the same time, putting sour juices in the stomach does temporarily increase the local sourness.

However, so-called acidity of the stomach, nine times out of ten, is nothing more than a symptom of some condition of the gall bladder or some other remote trouble. Under these circumstances giving acid fruit juices will neither add to nor lessen the symptom to any great extent.

SHARKEY SLUGS WAY TO DECISION OVER CARNERA

Fonseca New Manager of White Sox

1st Baseman, Only 32, Succeeds Bush as Pilot.

Has Played With 4 Clubs; Known as Slugger.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (A.P.)—On the anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America, the White Sox today asked Lewis Albert Fonseca to discover a way out of baseball's wilderness.

Fonseca, a descendant of a Portuguese navigator, accepted the task of piloting the White Sox ship and was given two years to locate the route, which has been lost to the Comiskey crew since its strong caravel was foundered and wrecked by the storm of the 1919 scandal.

Seven pilots have tried and failed to accomplish the task. The latest to fail was Donie Bush, who resigned Friday after two dismal seasons during which the White Sox finished in seventh and eighth places in the American League race.

May Be Youngest Manager.

Unless other clubs who threaten a change in managers during the winter season reach down into the player ranks for new pilots, Fonseca will be the youngest manager in the majors next year. He will be 32 years old in January.

No announcement was made by the White Sox office as to the terms of the contract, but it was intimated that the new manager would continue to play on the team. Fonseca came to the Sox from Cleveland as a first baseman, but with Lu Blue playing that position satisfactorily the former was shifted to the outfield. As long as Blue goes good, Fonseca probably will do his playing in the outfield.

Fonseca, one of the best hitters in the game, got his first start in baseball on the sand lots of Oakland, Calif. His fame as a hitter attracted the scouts from San Francisco and he was given a chance with that club in 1920. He made good and was sent to the Cincinnati Reds, where he stayed for four seasons. Physical handicaps and illnesses forced him out of many games, however, and the Reds finally turned him over to the Phillies. He batted .319 with them, but was sent to Newark. He batted .331 with Newark, and again earned a chance in the majors.

"Most Valuable" Player in 1929.

Cleveland got him and he batted well over .300 for the Indians from the start, winning the American League batting championship in 1929 and receiving the "most valuable player" award through the Associated Press poll. Injuries forced him to the bench during most of the 1930 campaign. Then last May the Indians traded him to the White Sox for Third Baseman Willie Kamm in one of the outstanding deals of the year. Despite his weak legs, Fonseca made good in a big way with the White Sox, both on and off the field, and so impressed Owner Charles A. Comiskey with his knowledge of the game that he was rewarded with the managership today.

"I gave Bush everything he asked for but unfortunately he was unable to bring the team out of last place," said Comiskey today. "Of course, we had many bad breaks with injuries but I believe they could have done much better. We need a man who can inspire the players and I believe Fonseca is the man. I will give him all my cooperation and I believe he can lead the boys out of their low position."

Fonseca took charge of the managerial affairs of the club at once. He said he planned to make a few deals to strengthen the club and that he believed he could make a big fight for a first division berth next season.

CHOCOLATE BEATS SMITH.

Byrd Driving Md. U. for Kentucky

Sees Saturday Fray as Higher Hurdle Than Navy.

Stresses Air Play; Better Ball Handling Sought.

WITH the visions of a team "better than Navy" and "as good as Alabama" looming on the horizon, Maryland University's now nationally respected grid machine commences to oil up its old slingshot today prior to entertaining the University of Kentucky at College Park next Saturday afternoon. At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon Coach Curly Byrd leads his Terps on the drill field, none the worse for their association last Saturday with the Midshipmen.

In a brief blackboard drill yesterday in the gymnasium, Byrd outlined briefly the worth of the Kentucky outfit. The Colonels held Tennessee 0-0 last year, when that team went through a season highly touted. Last Saturday Kentucky ran wild against Washington and Lee at Lexington, Ky., and the Generals limped home on the less joyful end of a 45-0 score.

Kelley Not the Only Pebble.

Byrd cautioned the team yesterday against concentrating on "Shipwreck" Kelly, the most highly publicized Southern gridder, whose 90-yard dash against Washington and Lee Saturday was in keeping with the reputation he has built up for himself. Kentucky is not a one-man back field team, as shown Saturday when Capt. Bailey, Martin, Bach, Phipps, Urbaniak and Johnson joined in the scoring. Bach ran 80 yards to one touchdown and Johnson 30.

The Kentucky line is big and hard driving. It drew two 15-yard penalties in the W. and L. game for roughness.

While Maryland showed a noted improvement in handling the ball Saturday, Coach Byrd will concentrate further in attempting to rid his backs of their bad case of butter digits. The team also will devote more time this week to aerial work. It will not soon forget the manner in which it won the Navy game.

Jockey Harvey Hurt Seriously at Jamaica

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Willie Harvey, veteran jockey, was seriously injured today, when he was thrown from J. Denquelo's Rubberneck during the running of the sixth race at Jamaica. Thrown beneath the flying hoofs of several horses and kicked on the head and body, Harvey was unconscious when taken to a Jamaica hospital.

For several years he rode for W. R. Clancy, but during 1931 has been a free lance rider.

Athletics Will Hunt Along Rappahannock

Special to The Washington Post.

Tappahannock, Va., Oct. 12.—Connie Mack and nine members of the Philadelphia Athletics will hunt quail along the Rappahannock in Essex County this fall.

George Earnshaw and Jimmie Foxx were in Upper Essex today negotiating for lease for hunting privileges on the large estate of Richard Baylor. The Baylor estate offers fine advantages now for shooting. It is well stocked with partridges and is said to contain not a few deer upon which no gun has been fired.

Obscure Boxer Wins Over Bat Battalino

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Roger Bernard, of Flint, Mich., an almost unknown, tonight pounded out a ten-round decision over Bat Battalino, featherweight champion of the world, who hails from Hartford, Conn. Both fighters were overweight and the title was not at stake.

Bernard, who came by plane from his home to meet the champion, stepped away to an early lead with a steady barrage of rights to the head and body and amassed enough points to overcome Bat's late rally.

In the eighth Battalino was knocked from his feet with a hard right.

Vince Dundee, of Newark, in his first appearance since a European tour, scored a decision over Johnny Peppe, of Philadelphia, in a fast semi-final.

G. W. to Face Tricky Foe in Tulsa Eleven, Famed for 'Wide Open' Offensive Tactics

Sweeping Runs and Passes Featured by Oklahomans.

SOME of the most spectacular football of the 1931 college campaign here should be witnessed by Washingtonians Friday night when George Washington's unbeaten Colonials meet Tulsa University's Golden Hurricanes, also undefeated, under the arc lights in Griffith Stadium. It is the first of four nocturnal engagements for George Washington which holds the night football stage alone here this season.

George Washington scouts, who who have viewed the Oilers in their last two contests, bring back reports that Tulsa is a team which plays the most daring sort of football and which has the brains and the brawn to follow its attempts usually to successful conclusions.

Use "Wide Open" Tactics.

Conqueror of Texas Christian, perennial leader in Southwest ranks, Tulsa uses "wide open" tactics such as the long pass, sweeping end run and powerful smashes at the opposing tackles. The Golden Hurricane is coached by "Gloomy Gus" Henderson, who preceded Howard Jones at Southern California before signing with the richly endowed Oklahoma school.

The Oilers showed their take-a-chance spirit in the Texas Christian game when, with the contest but 4 minutes old, they passed from their own 20-yard line on fourth down, and negotiated the play for a touchdown. The logical move, or at least what T. C. U. anticipated at that stage, was a punt, but like some of the strategical efforts of baseball pitchers who are in the "hole," Tulsa worked the very play that was most dangerous to its own cause under the circumstances, and got away with it.

Mass Interferers Against Tackle.

Power is the keynote of the Tulsa attack, according to G. W.'s scouts, and to shake free the ball carrier a mass of interferers—sometimes numbering four men—concentrate on the opposing tackle. This type of running play is famous in Pacific Coast circles, where teams that oppose it often have to make frequent substitutions at the tackle positions.

Generally, the attacking formations of George Washington and Tulsa are similar, inasmuch as both use single and double wing backs and the unbalanced line. A feature of Tulsa's offense, which has no counterpart in the Colonial repertoire, is a spread formation for running plays with the linemen stretching out the entire width of the field. This formation usually is employed for forward passing, but, as Tulsa uses it, it is a great weapon on the ground.

Pilkington Chief Ball Carrier.

Tulsa's leading offensive player is "Ish" Pilkington, captain and full back, who weighs 190 pounds and stands 6 feet. This husky had much to do with the Oilers' 14-to-6 victory over the Colonials in 1930.

A capable running mate for Pilkington is Billy Boehm, a triple-threat half back, and in the line, starring on the defense, is Bill Volok, a giant Swede, whom Oklahoma critics are boosting for all-America recognition.

Other especially clever performers in the Golden Hurricane ranks are Velmon Lentz, a half back who shoulders the blocking burden to the exclusion of ball-toting forays; Ed Dubie, smart quarter back, and one Keely, a half back whose open field dashes are better known than his first name to the G. W. scouts.

Two Navy Regulars Hurt, Out for Month

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Two Navy grid regulars, injured in the Maryland game Saturday, will be out for at least a month, Coach Rip Miller said today.

Bullet Lou Kirn, back field ace, sent into the game in an effort to stave off defeat, sustained further injury to a bad ankle, and will not be available before November 7 at the earliest, Miller said. F. C. Thompson, guard, is in the Naval Hospital at Washington with torn body muscles that will keep him out of the game for at least four or five weeks.

Derringer Bruised in Automobile Mishap

Fulton, Mo., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Paul Derringer, pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, was injured in a motor car collision near Kingdom this afternoon. He suffered a severe bruise on the nose, a cut over the left eye and other injuries, none regarded as serious.

Derringer's car, driven by Edgar S. McClelland, a contractor of Springfield, Ky., and a machine driven by S. C. Smith, a promoter of Kansas City, collided on a hill on Highway No. 40. The pitcher said he escaped more serious injury because he was slumped down in the front seat, ill from swallowing a piece of cigar accidentally. McClelland was slightly injured.

Unbeaten Misty Lem Wins in Field Trials

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Misty Lem, orange and white English setter, today won the Derby Stakes at the Maryland Field Trials Association's fall meet and maintained his record of never having been defeated in competition. It was his seventh win.

The dog, owned by J. Wiley King, of Richmond, Va., topped a field of three score bird dogs.

Second place went to Annapolitan, owned by Dr. Walter H. Hopkins, of Annapolis, and third to Florndale Whit, owned by W. Tyler Smith, president of the association.

Fordham Winner Over Boston, 20-0

Penalty Nullifies a Fourth Touchdown for Rams Against Eagles.

Boston, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The Fordham Rams, with Capt. Jimmy Murphy leading a well-rounded atttack, today cashed three of their seven scoring chances to defeat the Boston College Eagles for the third successive year, 20 to 0.

Three holding penalties and a 5-yard setback for offside play prevented the Rams from piling up the score. The last 15-yard penalty nullified a fourth period 85-yard dash that Johnny Conroy, Fordham left end, made over the Boston College goal line after intercepting a Boston College pass.

Boston College, with a line that seldom opened a hole, was not able to start a sustained drive until the third period, when it reeled off three first downs. The Boston College drive was stopped at Fordham's 43-yard line.

Fordham outclassed its Jesuit rival in every department of the game, piling up nineteen first downs to eight.

D. C. Tennis Ranking Group Will Convene

A meeting of the ranking committee of the Washington Tennis Association will be held Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock at The Washington Post. The committee is made up of Clarence M. Charest, Pat Deck, William O. Shreve, Rey Gable and Bob Considine.

The ratings of the local players will be made known at the annual banquet of the Washington Tennis Association, to be held next Tuesday night at Wardman Park Hotel. The principal speaker will be Louis J. Carruthers, president of the U. S. L. T. A.

Toronto Marathoner Wins at Port Chester

Port Chester, N. Y., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Dave Komonen, of the Monarch A. C., Toronto, today won the seventh annual 26-mile Marathon race from New York to Port Chester, leading a crack field of 83 runners, which included James P. Hennigan, of the Bedford, Mass., A. C., and Clarence De Mar, last year's winner. His time was 2 hours 39 minutes 27 seconds.

Landers Dealt Beating by DeAngelo

Turns Losing Battle Into Victory With Sudden Attack.

By JACK ESPEY.

LIKE a rubber band that stretches just so far before snapping back with a sting, little Frankie De Angelo rallied after being pushed around the ring to gain a decisive ten-round decision over his old enemy, Sailor Billy Landers, of Norfolk, in their third fight of the season last night at Fort Washington.

At the end of the sixth round of this rousing scrap, which kept 2,500 shivering fans jumping and roaring, it looked as if De Angelo was due for just about the worst trimming he ever received, with the Sailor pounding him at close quarters. But Frankie suddenly snapped out of his lethargy in the seventh and let loose a flood of steaming left hooks and overhand rights that more than balanced the scales.

It was by far more decisive than the victory Landers gained in the first fight two months ago. The sailor went down on one knee for an instant under a crushing right in the ninth and was on the verge of a knockout in the tenth when Frankie nailed him in a corner with a one-two punch.

Verdict Popularly Received.

However, on paper at least, the boys are still even, for the second bout three weeks ago was declared a draw. The verdict was popularly received although a part of the crowd, in an ugly mood as the result of two questionable decisions during the preliminaries, booed mightily simply to be consistent.

Referee Charley Short and Judge Pat O'Connor voted in favor of De Angelo. The best Landers received from the officials was the draw voted by Judge George King. On The Washington Post scoresheet De Angelo was credited with winning the first, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth rounds, with Landers winning the second, third, fourth and sixth, the fifth being recorded as even.

It was in the fifth that De Angelo first showed signs of rallying, for at the outset of this session he belted his foe twice with sizzling left hooks. Then, after a round that saw Landers crowding him all over the ring, ripping home short blows to the midsection, De Angelo swarmed on top, found the range of Billy's blond head and seldom missed a punch right down to the final bell.

Staggered in Tenth By Right to Chin.

For the first time since he made his dynamic debut hereabouts early in the summer, Landers appeared hurt when Frankie caught him in the corner in the last round. A lightning left straightened him up from a crouching position and a straight right crashed flush on his chin, and he fell back into the ropes half dazed, his knees sagging.

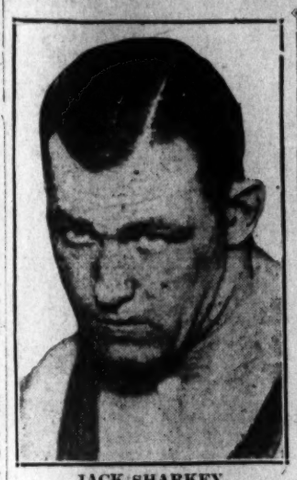
In the early rounds Landers scored frequently with body blows at close quarters and handled Frankie roughly in the clinches. De Angelo looked to be slow and lacking his characteristic fancy footwork.

The semifinal of eight rounds, which followed the main event, resulted in an easy win for Joe Finazzo, of Baltimore, over Henry Irving, local light-heavy, thus proving that Irving, though he has a real knockout punch, needs much more boxing knowledge before he can put away an experienced fighter. Irving did not win a single round.

The fans yelped and one tossed a bottle into the ring after the decision favoring Billy Hoe, Mohawk Club lightweight, at the expense of veteran Jack Cody, of Fort Myer. Cody, after taking a count of three in the first round, appeared to have the advantage the rest of the four rounds in one of the most furious slugging matches that has graced the arena this season.

Willie Eschlinger, Washington lightweight, also was the recipient of an unpopular decision, the loser being Marino Marini, of Uniontown, Pa., who delighted the crowd with his slam-bang southpaw style. Frank Vance, local 175-pounder, all but knocked out Harry Messick, of Baltimore, in four rounds, and Fred Shafer, local middleweight, outpointed Soldier Smith, of Fort Myer.

30,000 See Italian Giant, Badly Punished, on Verge Of Knockout at Final Bell



JACK SHARKEY.

PRIMO CARNERA.

Floored by Sharkey, Gets 'Long Count' in 4th Round.

Sharkey Tries to Quit Ring, Claiming Victory in Uproar.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The myth of Primo Carnera's invincibility was blasted wide tonight by Jack Sharkey, the stormy petrel of the heavyweight lists, in one of the greatest fifteen-round duels the faithful have seen since the last of the Tunney-Dempsey storm scenes in Chicago five years ago.

While 30,000 chilled spectators, muffled in overcoats, roared from the stands and benches of the National League ball yard, Sharkey came back to smash his way to a one-sided decision as he plastered the giant with every bit of fistic punishment one man can inflict on another. He floored the Italian for an uproarious count of from nine to nineteen in the fourth round, and left him wobbling, starry-eyed, a huge robot with arms frozen in the position of defense, at the final bell.

Sharkey Again Is Grim, Merciless Battler.

Sharkey again was the grim, merciless warrior of the days when his name was the most feared of all the young heavyweights. And if he hadn't been overcautious at times, too willing to hack in snarling superiority at the fading bulk of the man mountain, he might have knocked him down and out in sections in any one of a half dozen rounds.

Overshadowing Carnera's amazing agility, gameness and ability to absorb punishment as a desert soaks up raindrops, the former ace of all the heavyweight title contenders did not fail once again to provide the uproarious moment that always seems to crop up in his fights.

When the issue was still in doubt in the fourth round, and Carnera's surprising boxing ability and accurate left-hand jabbing had Sharkey still slightly baffled, the sailor suddenly uncorked a terrific left-hand smash to the head that dumped Carnera into the slag in a neutral corner.

Scrambles to Knees At Count of Six.

Wild with satisfaction as the crowd leaped to its multidinous feet with a roar of surprise, Sharkey raced to his corner and the referee, Gunboat Smith, himself a veteran of the heavyweight wars, started to toll over Carnera.

Dazed, wildly searching the ring for a face that might give him the advice he needed, Carnera scrambled to his knees, grabbed the top ropes with his hands, and at the count of about six pulled himself wavering to his feet. He scarcely straightened up before he saw his seconds gesturing wildly for him to stay down, and down he went again to the utter astonishment of the gunner, who was counting steadily over him.

As Primo resumed his kneeling pose, an infraction of the rules that calls for disqualification for going to the floor without being hit, Sharkey screamed in rage and tore across the ring.

"He went down without being hit," he shouted. "He's disqualified. Count him out."

Manager Buckley Blocks Exit.

Smith waved him aside, waved a couple of times at Carnera, and as the Italian figured the count must be near "ten" he staggered to his feet. The infuriated Sharkey made one more plea to the gunner, and when he was refused again, he raced across the ring and tried to hurl himself through the ropes. He looked like a half back trying to take out an end as his manager, Johnny Buckley, imposed his fat bulk between Sharkey and the great outside. Sharkey bounded back into the ring, found himself alone with his foe who was resting gracefully on the ropes, and immediately resumed the battle.

All in all, it was one of the wildest scenes the heavyweight arenas have seen since the uproar over the Dempsey smash that knocked Sharkey out in seven rounds in 1927, while the sailorman and his seconds screamed

Fight by Rounds

ROUND ONE—Carnera, his great bulk making Sharkey appear tiny beside him, went onto the defensive as the sailor feinted for an opening and stung Primo with three left hooks to the head. Carnera, light as a cat on his huge feet, boxed beautifully, peppering Sharkey with a neat left jab that had the American missing with both hands. In close Carnera amazed the crowd by shaking Sharkey with a half dozen clubbing rights to the head but Jack stung the giant with a left hook to the chin at bell.

ROUND TWO—Sharkey ripped into the man-mountain at the bell, catching him on the chin with a long overhand right. As they wrestled in a clinch Carnera used all his great bulk and strength to throw Sharkey around, clubbing at his head with both hands. Sharkey, puzzled by the boxing of the giant, tossed about like a tiny boat in a heavy sea at close quarters, bobbed low to evade Carnera's sharp left jabs. The Italian reached Sharkey's head with a down left before Jack nailed him full on the jaw with a thunderous right hand. The punch echoed throughout the park, the crowd roared, but Carnera shook his head and merely smiled. They were slugging in a clinch at the bell.

ROUND FOUR—Boxing with surprising agility for one his size, easily picking off Sharkey's lead, Carnera stepped gracefully around the sailor and peppered his head with jabs. Sharkey dug three booming left hooks into Carnera's body, but the vast Venetian nailed him twice on the head with hard rights, and Sharkey looked tired. He started to stall, and Carnera swept upon him like a mountain landslide, clubbing him on the head with lefts and rights. A left hook floored Carnera for a count of nine. Sharkey claimed Carnera had gone down, gotten up, and gone down again during the count. He argued with the referee before resuming fighting and tried to leap from the ring, but his manager forced him to resume fighting. Another volley of left hooks hit Carnera's chin before the bell sounded.

Harvard-Army Game Tops Saturday's Football Card

By HENRY McLEMORE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—Princeton and Yale, having been weighed and found wanting, it is up to Harvard to uphold the glorious football tradition of the once-hallowed Big Three.

Victor in two opening pushovers, the Crimson runs into trouble on Saturday when it meets Army's high-powered machine in Mitchie Stadium at West Point. You may search all night and well into the day without finding an expert who gives Harvard more than an outside chance of whipping the Soldiers in their own bailiwick.

The experts may be wrong, however, for no one knows for a fact just what Harvard has to offer. The Johnnies were not forced to show their cards in smothering first little Bates and then New Hampshire, but the experts do know that Army has one of the finest teams in its history and that nothing short of a great eleven is going to whip it.

The game is the Eastern standout for Saturday and will pack little Mitchie Stadium from the rafters to the cellar. More than 75,000 persons have made applications for tickets, and as the Army bowl seats something less than 27,000 you can figure out the confusion for yourself.

Columbia is another outfit that is in for a testing. The Lions have been bowling along at a nice clip, kicking one set-up after another, but Saturday and Dartmouth will be something else again. Columbia is not expected to win, but should give a better account of itself than in 1930 when the scorekeepers ran out of figures.

Princeton's toothless Tiger will desert his home lair for a trip to Ithaca and another licking, this time at the hands of Gil Dobie's Cornell eleven.

New York fans will have to choose between Columbia-Dartmouth, Fordham-Holy Cross and New York University-Rutgers. The Fordham game probably will offer the most football, for Holy Cross held Dartmouth to a close score and probably will do the same thing to Fordham.

The big intersectional game of the day pits Florida Gators against Syracuse. Syracuse, with its usual heavy, powerful line, is favorite.

Sharkey, Exit Blocked, Goes Back to Win Fight

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Special to The Washington Post.

EBBETTS FIELD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Jack Sharkey beat Primo Carnera and almost knocked him out in a strange spectacle and a great heavyweight fight at Ebbits Field, Brooklyn, this evening. The fighters, stripped to the conventional nominal attire of trunks and shoes, went fifteen rounds, while some 30,000 customers sat wrapped in their overcoats, chattering and trembling in the chill of a cold autumn night.

Carnera was knocked in a huge heap on his back in the fourth round and the fight almost ended there in a typical Sharkey emotional tantrum when Primo staggered up at the count of six and seeing Sharkey whirling at him again, dropped to his right knee to take another rest without being hit.

Gunboat Smith, the referee, made the best of a bad situation, allowing Primo to continue but Sharkey let out a hysterical scream, plucked the rubber guard out of his mouth and made a rush to leap through the ropes and out of the ring at his own corner, claiming the fight by a technical knockout. Johnny Buckley, his manager, bounced up on the margin of the ring and met Sharkey's rush, shoving him back into the ring, while Primo, dizzy and gasping, staggered around with a wild glare in his eyes.

It was a left swing to the jaw that sent Primo down, and his long experience with set-ups on his tours of the country had given him no idea of what to do when smacked flat. So he struggled to his feet in great excitement, and when Sharkey rushed at him with a snarl, flopped to the canvas again in sheer terror.

Smith gave Carnera a count of two as Sharkey paused in rage and amazement. Then about 20 seconds more elapsed as Sharkey tried to leave the ring, and Primo took advantage of this long rest to get his feet back under him and his gloves up.

In the first three rounds Primo had beaten Sharkey's head with left jabs and pulled him about with ease. His huge weight, 261 pounds to Sharkey's 202, and his great advantage in height seemed too much for Sharkey to deal with until Jack suddenly came out of a weaving crouch with the left swing that put Primo down with a crash in a cloud of resin dust.

In the fifth Sharkey began prod-

Black Majesty Weakens at Finish

Balko Runs Third to Pulitzer Sprinter in Feature.

Backgammon Defeats Fortunate Youth in 4th Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 12.—The large Columbus Day crowd was rewarded by a fine brand of racing and several close finishes, as well as some fancy odds. Especially was this the case in the feature, the Columbus Handicap, at 6 furlongs, in which Black Majesty and Balko, the heavily played horses, tasted defeat, and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer's colors were carried to swift victory by Repentance, H. Callahan in the saddle. The winner paid $15.50, and was timed in 1:11 3-5.

Balko, odds-on favorite, was attempting to carry 130 pounds, an undertaking to which he was equal in other years, while Black Majesty was second in impost. The latter set all the pace until the last strides, when he was beaten a nose on the wire by Repentance, coming from behind. Balko had begun wavering at the top of the stretch, and the best he could do was to hold third, a length and a half back.

It seems evident that Balko has gone back, instead of forward. His race last week in which he was second to Mr. Sponge, when the record was smashed, was better than his effort today. Repentance, with 103 pounds, caught Black Majesty tiring, and swept by him in the last stride.

Backgammon Wins Eastern by Late Spurt.

Backgammon, the fast 3-year-old of the Sagamore Stable, which has not been out of the money in any of his many races this year, won again in the Eastern Purse, the secondary feature, running 1 1-16 miles in 1:45. This was the second victory today for Bejshak. Mrs. K. E. Hitt's Sunvir was second and Rigan McKinney's Inception third. Fortunate Youth and Sunvir divided the time setting the pace, and Sunvir looked like the winner at the sixteenth, but Backgammon, making his usual strong finish, scored by a head. The winner was favorite at $3.50.

The Sagamore Stable of Mrs. Charles Amory scored a double when Rip Van Winkle, Nertney up, won the sixth race in a head-and-head finish from E. R. Bradley's Bathorse, carrying out the custom observed during the day of close finishes.

Taking the lead early in action, Rip Van Winkle struggled through the mile and a sixteenth, withstanding the rush of first one and another of the field of five. St. Francis held third. The winner, the favorite, paid $5.80. Time, 1:43 3-8, a mile and a sixteenth.

Hertz Entry Runs 1-2 in Third Race.

The Mrs. John D. Hertz entry ran one-two in the third race, the Isabella Purse for 2-year-old fillies. French Duchess being the winner and Seven Veils second, a half length separating the pair. Laughing Queen was third, carrying the W. R. Coe colors. By a kink in the mutuels, the place price was larger than the pay-off to win, being $8.30 and $8.60. Tryandagain and Delicacy, the other fillies well backed, finished out of the money. They ran the six furlongs in 1:13 1-5. Steffen broke Seven Veils on top and led all the way until the eighth pole was reached when French Duchess, Bejshak up, took command. Mrs. Hertz had declared to win with Seven Veils, top weight in the field of seven fillies which contested. At Sunrise having been scratched because of an injury this morning in a workout. French Duchess, the winner, is eligible for the $25,000 Selima Stakes for fillies the last day of the meeting.

Walter J. Salmon's Huffy won the steeplechase, with Bellhouse up. He was off the early pace, but drew away after getting in front in the last circuit of the course. John R. McCumber's Redbridge, which had assumed the lead after racing Moonstruck into submission, was no match for the winner when the final test came. The Rolling Plains Stable's Argonaut was third. Drapeau lost his rider at the fourth fence, and the horse, riderless, dogged the footsteps of Moonstruck the balance of the journey with Tammaro, leading attempting to whip him away. H. Little was uninjured in his fall from Drapeau, which was second when the spill came. The winner paid $12.30.

The Colony Stable's Sandwrack won the first race, with G. Ellis up, leading all the way and beating Sagamore Stable's Tortway home by a length.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HUFFY, $12.30, $5.50, $4.90; REDBRIDGE, $4.10, $3.80; ARGONAUT, $5.50.

HUFFY, fencing cleverly and kept close up from the start, challenged stoutly in the final half mile, wore REDBRIDGE down at the last fence and outran the latter on the flat to the finish. REDBRIDGE, forcing a good pace from the start, was bothered several times by the riderless DRAPEAU, saved ground and fought it out stubbornly after gaining command. ARGONAUT, well up throughout and jumping in good style, finished stoutly in the final drive. MOONSTRUCK tired after going the first mile. DRAPEAU lost his rider at the third fence, and BANNER DAY was pulled up going to the twelfth jump.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The Isabella. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:35. Off at 2:55. Winner, Mrs. J. D. Hertz's ch. f. (2), by Equipoise—Grey Duchess. Trained by W. Knapp. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 1-5.

Mrs. J. D. Hertz entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRENCH DUCHESS (entry), $8.30, $8.60, $6.30; SEVEN VEILS (entry), $8.60, $6.30; LAUGHING QUEEN, $5.70.

FRENCH DUCHESS, taken under stout restraint while forcing a good early pace, was shaken up slightly in the final furlong, and was winner while under stiff reserve. SEVEN VEILS, racing in smartly improved fashion, displayed good speed, but tired suddenly in the final sixteenth mile. LAUGHING QUEEN, close to the pace on the outside the entire trip, closed courageously. DELICACY finished fast after meeting with interference rounding the turn. TRYANDAGAIN was unable to improve her position. The others were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500; allowances. The Easton. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:26. Winner, Sagamore Stable's b. c. (3), by Wrack—Sandwich. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:38 2-5, 1:45.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BACKGAMMON, $3.50, $2.80, $2.10; SUNVIR, $5.30, $2.60; INCEPTION, $2.20.

BACKGAMMON, taken under steadying restraint for the first six furlongs, was taken around the leaders when entering the home stretch, closed stoutly and was up in the final twenty yards. SUNVIR, rated close to FORTUNATE YOUTH, wore the latter down when approaching the home stretch, continued stoutly under a strong drive, but faltered when he stumbled slightly in the last seventy yards. INCEPTION followed close to the leaders and finished with good courage. FORTUNATE YOUTH displayed good speed until losing command. TITUS was never dangerous.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,000. The Columbus Handicap. For all ages. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 4:00. Winner, Mrs. H. Pulitzer's b. c. (3), by Sun Flag—Follies. Trained by M. Hirsch. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $400; third, $200. Time, 0:23, 0:46 3-5, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REPENTANCE, $15.50, $5.20, $2.70; BLACK MAJESTY, $3.50, $2.30; BALKO, $2.30.

REPENTANCE, a keen factor from the start, finished full of run when placed to punishment on entering the home stretch, withstood a stout drive and was up in the concluding strides. BLACK MAJESTY, hurried to the front, was rated along until approaching the home stretch; shook off BALKO and held on stoutly. BALKO, well up from the start, weakened badly in the final drive. PRIORY was outrun. JUBILATE had no mishaps.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:35. Winner, Sagamore Stable's b. c. (3), by Traumer—Sun Polly. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:38 4-5, 1:45 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RIP VAN WINKLE, $5.80, $3.50, $2.50; BATHORSE, $3.40, $2.60; ST. FRANCIS, $3.20.

RIP VAN WINKLE took command under sufferance when moving into the back stretch, was rated in front under steadying restraint, came again after being displaced and, finishing in the firmer footing, outstayed BATHORSE. Latter, a forward factor and forcing a good pace, held on stoutly after being forced wide into the home stretch. ST. FRANCIS raced on his own courage the entire trip and finished gamely under very weak handling. TANCRED saved ground in the early stages, came through in the deeper footing by skirting through on the inside of the leaders at the stretch turn, but was in the deepest footing and weakened badly. GAY BIRD showed a flash of early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:07. Winner, T. Sullivan's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOT FREE, $10.40, $6.00, $4.70; JODPHUR, $4.50, $3.80; FIRE BRIGADE, $6.70.

SCOT FREE, sent into the thick of contention, moved up with a rush when rounding turn, disposed of the leaders without effort and finished with much in reserve. JODHPUR, slow to settle in his stride, worked his way up stoutly and closed with good courage. FIRE BRIGADE made a determined effort rounding the far turn and held on gamely.

AL HOUGHTON'S 74 WINS MIDATLANTIC PRO GOLF MEDAL

Field Shrinks To Eight at Woodmont

Mel Shorey Bows to Cliff Spencer, 1 Up, in Match Play.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE qualifying medal in the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association championship tournament on the course of the Woodmount Club yesterday was won by A. L. Houghton, Kenwood, with a card of 37—37—74. Glenn Spencer, of the Maryland Country Club, who lost out by one stroke, 40—35—75, was out of bounds on the third hole and three-putted the eighteenth green. J. Monro Hunter, Indian Spring, who also had a 75, with 36 out and 39 in, three-putted the sixteenth and seventeenth greens.

Eighteen professionals competed in the tournament, and, when Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase, with 44—41—85, failed to qualify and William Hardy, Chevy Chase, tore up his card, sixteen players were left for the first round of match play. Only two of the matches were decided on the final green. Cliff Spencer won by 1 up from Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park. They were all even at the turn, but Spencer became 1 up, when Shorey laid himself a stymie on the seventeenth green, losing the hole, and then Shorey failed to hole a 3-foot putt on the final green which would have given him a win.

Barnett Beats Thorn
On Final Green.

Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, won by 1 up from A. B. Thorn, Woodmont. Thorn was 1 down at the turn. Barnett was 1 up on the eighteenth tee and halved the final hole in 5, Thorn overapproaching the green on his second shot and failing to hole out a long putt for a 4. Barnett won the championship when the last tournament was played two years ago. All the other matches were more or less one-sided. The scores and the results of the matches yesterday were as follows:

FIRST ROUND—Al Treder, Manor, 41—40—81, defeated Warner Mather, Woodholme, 40—36—76, 4 and 3; J. Monro Hunter, Indian Spring, 36—39—75, defeated Gilbert Cunningham, Burning Tree, 38—38—76, 2 and 1; Cliff Spencer, Forest Park, 38—43—81, defeated Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park, 39—41—80, 1 up; R. Cliff McKimmie, White Flint, 42—36—78, defeated Ralph Beach, Suburban, 40—37—77, 4 and 3; George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring, 40—39—79, defeated Glenn Spencer, Maryland Country Club, 40—35—75, 3 and 2; Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, 39—37—76, defeated A. B. Thorn, Woodmont, 38—42—80, 1 up; Charles P. Betschler, Rodgers Forge, 40—40—80, defeated Claude Orendorf, Woodmont, 43—39—82, 5 and 4; A. L. Houghton, Kenwood, 37—37—74, defeated Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree, 37—40—77, 3 and 2.

Women Seek Title at Service Club Today

The women's championship of the Army and Navy Country Club will swing into action this morning at 9 o'clock when Mrs. Osborne and Mrs. Angwin tee off, followed, at five-minute intervals, by five flights of golfers vying for the five major prizes.

Paramount among the trophies at stake is the Coxe Trophy, emblematic of the champion of the first flight, which must be won three times for permanent possession.

The pairings:

First flight—Mrs. Osborne vs. Mrs. Angwin, Mrs. Holtzman vs. Mrs. Luscombe, Mrs. Shock vs. Mrs. O'Rear, Mrs. Hedrick vs. Mrs. Barrow.

Second flight—Mrs. Noyes vs. Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Upham vs. Mrs. Allan, Mrs. Keefer vs. Mrs. Denit, Mrs. Hewitt vs. Mrs. McNair.

Third flight—Mrs. White vs. Mrs. Coxe, Mrs. Batchelder vs. Mrs. O'Hara, Mrs. Boyce vs. Mrs. Garber, Mrs. Hall vs. Mrs. Moore, Mrs. McCormack vs. Mrs. Mueller, Mrs. Merchant vs. Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Andrew vs. Mrs. Grimes, Mrs. Parker vs. Mrs. Tyler.

Fourth flight—Mrs. Peals vs. Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Culver vs. Mrs. Sampson, Mrs. Booth vs. Mrs. Mahon, Mrs. Alley vs. Mrs. Blackmore.

MAY FORM BIG LEAGUE.

With a view to forming the Eastern Baseball League, the pilots of several noted Negro professional diamond teams will meet at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A. next Saturday afternoon. Representatives of teams in Baltimore, Cumberland, New York, Norfolk, Newark, Schenectady, Pittsburgh and Washington have been invited to attend.

BROOKLAND DRILLS.

The Brookland A. C. unlimited football team will brush up on the finer points of the game at a practice session to be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the field at Michigan avenue and Ferry street northeast. All members of the squad are urged to report promptly.

HAWKS IN WORKOUT.

After losing to the Palace eleven in the opening of The Post's Capital City League Sunday, the Brentwood Hawks, 150-pound grid team, feels that a little more practice is needed if a successful season is to be experienced. The drill will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock, at Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue northwest.

GRIFFS-LIST DRILLS.

The Griffith Blue Coats, formerly the Wolverines, will practice tonight, Thursday and Saturday at 7 o'clock on the Virginia Avenue Playground. The Griffs absorbed a 39-to-6 beating at the hands of the Fraters in the opening of the Capital City League Sunday and hope to make amends for this by taking the Seaman Gunners into camp when they meet next Sunday.

THE longest hole-in-one on record, a distance of 340 yards, was made in Southampton, England, in 1928, by George Kirby.

The nearest any American has come to equaling Kirby's record is the 325-yard hole-in-one recently made by Preston Meisel, of Detroit.

RANKING PAIR TO WRESTLE FRIDAY

Steele and Shikat Top Joe Turner's Card at Auditorium.

AN even ton of wrestlers will make up Friday night's mat presentation when Matchmaker Joe Turner leads his beef and gristle boys out of the ball lots and into the Washington Auditorium winter quarters. Headlining the bill is a match which bids fair to be the best ever seen here, the one which brings together Ray Steele, Curley's ranking No. 2 wrestler, and Dick Shikat, champion just before Londos, and still held by many to be the best in the business.

The two have met twice before. Shikat beat Steele during the elimination trials which earned Shikat the title in the eyes of the New York and Pennsylvania State athletic commissions. For some reason, best known to the rulers of wrestling, Shikat has not been given a chance at Londos since he lost the title to the Greek in June, 1929. Steele has challenged Londos six times and been defeated an even half dozen.

Winner May Meet
Jim Londos.

The winner of Friday's bout is in line for a crack at Londos, according to word from the wrestling front. Shikat is the better orthodox wrestler, but Steele has more of the modern tactics of speed, deception and roughness. Both men weigh around 220.

Sandor Szabo returns to the local mat as a semiwind-up feature, meeting John Katan. The remaining preliminaries, all of whom were signed yesterday, include Doc Wilson vs. Bruce Hanson; Tiger Nelson vs. George Hagan, and Mike Romano vs. Abe Kashey, who wrestled here not long ago under the name of Abad Kasah, Turkish blend.

ROBINS CHANGE NAME.

The Washington Robins, entrants in the 135-pound division of The Post's Capital City League, have changed their name and hereafter will be known as the Notre Dame Preps. Manager Louis Evry is on the lookout for new candidates. Players interested should communicate with him at Lincoln 1329.

Mrs. Haynes Winner Of Medal at Columbia

Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes yesterday won the medal for low gross score in the qualifying round of the women's club championship tournament at the Columbia Country Club yesterday with a score of 48, 40—88.

Only two other players, Mrs. Norman B. Frost, 45, 48—93, and Mrs. S. F. Colladay, 49, 46—95, were under 100. The pairings for the first round of match play which begins at 9 o'clock this morning are as follows:

First flight—Miss Elizabeth Brawner vs. Mrs. J. W. Beller; Mrs. N. B. Frost vs. Mrs. H. R. Quinter; Mrs. H. King Cornwell vs. Mrs. S. F. Colladay.

Second flight—Mrs. Herman Stabler vs. Mrs. George T. Bell; Mrs. A. S. Gardiner vs. Mrs. E. D. Krewson; Mrs. William S. Corby vs. Mrs. Charles R. White; Mrs. J. Curtis Walker, Jr., vs. Mrs. Frank Tomlinson.

CITY LEAGUE CLUBS WELL MATCHED

Scores of Opening Games Forecast Fine Season.

SUNDAY'S games in the unlimited division of The Post's Capital City League routed any doubt that any one team would walk away with the trophy with little difficulty. Two scoreless ties, one victory by a 7-point margin, and one by a lopsided score augurs well for some red-hot action when the loop begins functioning on all cylinders.

St. Stephen's furnished the lone upset of the day when Full Back Zumbo crashed through the Seaman Gunners' forward wall in the third quarter for the only score of the game. The Seamen entered the fray topheavy favorites to crush their lighter opponents, and for the first two periods it looked as though they would pile up a huge score. Grim determination, plus some excellent work on the part of "Tuck" Dalglish turned the tide in the Georgetowners' favor, however.

Fraters Compelled,
To Go Into Air.

Hard, clean football was evidenced in the other league battles which saw the Brookland and Dixie Pig and Marion and Mercury elevens battle to scoreless ties, and the Fraters pile up a big score on the Wolverines. All of the teams showed the need of more work, which they will get from now on. The vaunted Fraters did not fare as well as they had expected with the Wolverines and were forced to resort to an aerial attack to gain the decision. The Wolves' inability to cope with the long heaves prevented them from holding their opponents to a more respectable score.

District Senior Golfers In Title Tournament

The annual senior golf championship of the District, open to men above 55 years of age, will break tomorrow morning on the course at Burning Tree with a select field in the running for the trophy at stake.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Baseball Team, is among the starters, and has been drawn against J. E. Baines, of Columbia. Also in the running is W. C. Barr, local golf official.

More entries are expected to come in today, particularly from the Chevy Chase Club Senior Association's ranks.

The pairings to date follow:

11:30 o'clock—Charles R. White (Columbia) vs. George Shoup (Columbia); 1 o'clock—George E. Truett (Washington) vs. F. F. Risdale (Chevy Chase); 1:05 o'clock—M. C. List (Washington) vs. G. T. McClenahan (Washington); 1:10 o'clock—J. E. Baines (Columbia) vs. Clark Griffith (Columbia); 1:15 o'clock—R. L. Taylor vs. W. C. Barr.

VLK-COTTON LEAD C. U. DRILL

ALTHOUGH Athletic Director-Head Football Coach "Dutch" Bergman was confined to his bed with a severe cold yesterday, Catholic University's gridironers, under the joint supervision of Line Coach Forrest Cotton and End Coach George Vik, resumed practice. Unusually brisk scrimmaging between the varsity and freshmen was in order.

The first-year men, for the first time this season, carried the fight to their upper classmen and showed to advantage throughout the workout. This was the first of a series of scrimmages prior to the North Carolina State game, which is to be played under the arc lights at Raleigh October 23.

C. U. Next to N. Y. U.
On Points.

Discovery that Catholic University, based on a system of averages, seconds New York University only in national team scoring aroused considerable enthusiasm yesterday.

Although Davis Elkins and North Dakota both have eclipsed the Violets and Cardinals in total scoring, each has played four games.

The Violets, in three performances, have tallied 153 times for a grand average of 50 3-5 counters per game. C. U., in a similar number of showings, has scored 151 times. Tom Whelan, with a six-touchdown total, is the high individual scorer both of his team and the District of Columbia college field.

C. U. Frosh-Md. 'B' Game Postponed to Monday

The Catholic University Frosh-Maryland "B" squad football game, originally scheduled for Saturday, will be played at College Park next Monday.

The postponement was effected by mutual agreement.

Veterans' Bureau Golf Play Listed Saturday

The autumn handicap golf tournament of the Veterans Administration Golf Club will be held Saturday at the Annapolis Roads Country Club. Following the tournament a dinner will be held in the clubhouse.

The handicap to be used will be conducted on the flag handicap tournament basis, which is similar to tombstone play. Handicaps will be arranged by the committee in charge of affairs on the basis of club handicaps and scores recorded during he spring tournament. The winner will be awarded a silver loving cup. Suitable trophies will be presented the ober prize winners.

Entries will be received by John E. Downin until 4 p. m. Thursday at room 1069-A, Arlington Building.

NORTHERN PREPS MEET.

The Northern Preps will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Manager Otte. The Prepmen practice tomorrow and Friday nights.

30,000 WATCH DEFEAT OF CARNERA

foul. And it was almost as exciting, despite the lack of importance by comparison, as the "long count" given Gene Tunney in his second battle with Dempsey in Chicago.

Apparently Carnera, towering over Sharkey like a great tree, never recovered from that smash on the chin, for he never was able to disturb the sailorman thereafter.

Confidently cautious, sneering, disdainful, Sharkey paced himself through the next eleven rounds, weaving and rolling under Carnera's weak jabs, tying him up in clinches, feinting him this way and that for solid smashes that half a dozen times had the vast Venetian rocking on his heels.

Carnera may never be a great fighter, and he proved tonight that he has practically no punch for a man of such tremendous size, but he did amaze the crowd that paid well over $100,000 by his agility, his sound defense, his stamina and his courage.

Sharkey worried around him like a terrier snapping at a collie, outsmarted him, getting his hands down with feints to the body, lifting them with jabs to the chin. Then, when the huge Primo's hands were just where they should not have been, Sharkey promptly blasted left hooks or right crosses to the unprotected spots.

Primo Near Knockout
Several Times.

From the eighth round on, with the exception only of the thirteenth, a slow session, Carnera was on the verge of a knockout in every round. Through the later rounds Sharkey almost broke the man mountain in two with terrific left hooks to the body and by the time the fifteenth was reached the mountain was about the size of a mole hill.

Primo wobbled in the tenth as Sharkey, softening him with body belts, switched suddenly to right and left hands, blasts to the chin and when what little offensive Carnera had disappeared in the tenth the sailor man took full, if plodding, advantage. He drew blood from Primo's nose in the eleventh, wobbled him again in the twelfth, rested in the thirteenth, and then proceeded to batter the Italian so ruthlessly through the final two rounds that Primo was just a trembling, mechanical hulk at the end, held up only by his tremendous courage and the oak tree props that he uses for legs.

Carnera, scaling in at absolute rock-bottom weight at 262 pounds, had an edge in only one round, the third, the session that preceded the debacle. His left hand was working splendidly then and he used his great bulk to rough Sharkey in the clinches. The seventh, where the jabs worked again as Sharkey loafed, was even. The sailor won the rest.

It was a particularly pleasing triumph for Sharkey, scaling the highest he ever weighed for a fight—202½ pounds—for it followed his miserable showing here earlier in the summer against Mickey Walker.

him against the ropes with a wild head barrage. Sharkey boxed carefully, and Carnera bruised his cheek with a straight right. Sharkey dove in with a left hook to the body and clipped Carnera again on the chin with his left hook. Sharkey made the giant lead as much as possible, rolled away most of his left jabs and smashed back with countering lefts and rights to the body whenever openings appeared. The pace slowed sharply as Carnera failed to hit Sharkey solidly, and the sailor was content to roll away from his punches up to the bell.

ROUND EIGHT—Carnera was scarcely breathing hard as he sat in his corner and was apparently in perfect condition while Sharkey's seconds worked over him furiously. Sharkey bobbed low and drove a right and left to the body. A left hook bounced Carnera into the ropes, but he came back smiling. Again Sharkey smacked the giant on the chin with his left, but Carnera scarcely seemed to feel the blows. He popped Sharkey's head with a dozen left jabs as Jack tried to weave his way in again with a left hook to the body. In a clinch as the referee tried to break them, Sharkey bounced another left hook off Carnera's chin. He apologized for hitting on the break as the crowd booed, and they slugged with both hands to each other's heads. The pace slowed again, and they were stabbing lefts to the face at the bell.

ding Primo in the middle, a vast and very sensitive area, with left hooks, every one of which bent Primo slightly and made his mouth pop open and his eyes bulge. The hooks brought Primo's guard down, and, when it was definitely centered about his zone of least resistance, Sharkey's left regularly arched up to clout him on the jaw again.

Primo had been a bit of a mystery for a long time. Apparently a mere monstrosity, he nevertheless seemed to have some idea of fighting, and the first good man he met proved that his offensive repertoire consisted entirely of a sharp fast left jab. This jab seemed to discourage Sharkey in the first three rounds, but after Primo had gone down the Lithuanian was boss.

The seventh and eighth rounds went to Carnera as Sharkey again fell into the habit of trying to outreach Primo with jabs, but in the ninth Sharkey resumed the annoyance at Primo's equator to maintain the fire until the end. The fight ended with Primo tottering hugely like a dynamited smoke stack in the newsreels. Sharkey was weaving, crouching and crashing the left to the jaw, but he too was winded by this time and Primo reached the finish without another fall.

There was no dispute about the decision, and there was no longer any reason to suspect Primo of any fighting quality beyond the accident of his size and plenty of courage. Nothwithstanding the cold, the customers tossed in more than $100,000 this evening.

Bordeau, G. U. Full Back, One of Strongest in Game

Summer Job as Lumberjack Is Responsible for Power.

FOOTBALL fans of Washington who have an opportunity of witnessing the Georgetown eleven will see one of the hardest-hitting full backs of the country in action. He is, paradoxically enough, the mild-mannered Leroy Bordeau, young woodchopper from the Adirondack Mountains in northern New York, whose performances on the field of play alone qualify him for the nickname, "Ox."

Our hero, who could do well as a circus strong man, judging from the way he carries five or six opponents on his back in one of his irresistible smashes at the line, is 22 years of age, weighs 180 pounds, and is 5 feet, 10 inches tall.

Bordeau Colorful
Athlete.

There is a lot of color to this quiet, unassuming strong boy, and the Georgetown cheers sound loudest when his name is the subject thereof. In his three years at the Hilltop he has performed many feats associated with the word "punch," in both literal and figurative sense.

Bordeau's home is nine miles from any town. During his high school days he attended Franklin Academy of Malone, N. Y., where he starred in football and track. Often during the winter months when travel was impossible other than by foot, he was obliged to walk to school a distance of 15 miles through banks of snow 12 feet deep with the temperature at 35 degrees below zero. But during his four years at Franklin Academy he had the unique record of never being tardy or absent from school.

As a result of these long, strenuous walks, and the exercise he received as a woodchopper in a lumber camp, Bordeau's muscles were developed to such an extent that he was widely known as the "Ox of the Adirondacks."

In lumber camps, the secret ambition of all lumberjacks is to be the "king woodchopper." An ordinary number of trees for one chopper to fell in a day is fifteen. Bordeau, during his senior year in high school, reached the enviable record of 32 in one day.

"Ox" Never Failed to Go to Town.

Each Saturday afternoon in a lumber camp witnesses the suspension of work while the lumberjacks compete in a free-for-all wrestling bee. The winner is rewarded with permission to go to town for the remainder of the day—and night. "Ox," so they say, never failed to be in town on Saturday evenings during his lumberjack career.

After having conquered the woods and a high school course, Bordeau grew more ambitious. Craving an advanced education, he left the wilds of the North country one September day in 1928, to enter Georgetown University, the Capital and the center of education.

Being of a retiring nature, despite his feats of strength and daring, Bordeaux attracted little or no attention on the foootball field in his freshman year. However, during the spring practice he caught the eyes of the coaches with the manner in which he battered and hammered what little opposition he could find. At that time he was sensing an opportunity to gain a position with varsity the following term.

After the spring practice Bordeau acquired an interest in boxing, and, entering the intramural tournament held annually at the Hilltop, won the heavyweight championship with a string of four knockouts, each in the very first round. The same spring he won the South Atlantic amateur light-heavyweight championship, which honor he later relinquished by default, but which he now matches with the District of Columbia title of the same weight division.

Lost in Light-Heavy
Ring Final.

In his sophomore year Bordeau waded through the light-heavyweight competition in the intercollegiate championship at Penn State, but he lost in the final round to McAndrews of Penn State after having sustained a fractured hand in the first round.

That year also saw Bordeau secure varsity recognition in football and he performed at the full back post for Lou Little, then serving his final season as Georgetown head coach. Little rated "Ox" as the hardest-hitting back he had ever seen.

Last year again Bordeau played at full back and ignited the spirit of the crowds with his reckless, bull-like charges on attack. His performance in the Georgetown-New York U. game of 1930 was blemished only by some fumbles that followed substantial gains through the heavy and powerful Violet forward wall.

This fall Bordeau is coming to the front as a defensive player, in addition to continuing his effective work on offense. When he tackles, his opponent's groan may be heard on the sidelines, so forcibly is he brought to earth.

Bordeau plans to enter law school after concluding his course in the College of Arts and Sciences, in which he is an excellent student.

Byrne, Cannon, Coach St. Anthony Gridders

Under the direction of Coaches Byrne and Cannon, St. Anthony's High School is preparing for its season in football. The Saints have scheduled games with the "B" teams of Gonzaga, St. John's, Business and Tech high schools.

Byrne formerly attended Holy Cross College, where he starred in the Crusaders' back field. Cannon is a product of Notre Dame. He was a guard during the regime of the late Knute Rockne.

Hitting The Head Pin

THE Fountain Hams handed Convention Hall a 2-1 setback in a District League match rolled at Lucky Strike alleys last night. The losers were in miserable form in the first game and netted only 498 pins for their efforts. A decided improvement was noted in the second game, but the Hams also speeded up and won going away. In the final tilt, however, with Eddie Espey and Anderson blazing the way, Convention Hall swept through to register the high game of the evening, 622, winning with more than 60 pins to spare.

Von Dreele topped the Fountains with a set of 367, although Bradley Mandley was not far behind with a 360. Von Dreele's game of 145 was also best in this respect.

The National Pale Drys continued their triumphant march in the National Capital League by doling out a 3-0 trimming to the representatives of King's Palace at Lucky Strike last night. The department store team counted 589 pins in the first game and went into a steady decline from that point, winding up with a 523 game. The Pale Drys were no great shakes themselves, having only one game over the 600 mark. Astor Clark's 157 garnered high game honors. Rosenberg captured high set with a total pinfall of 378.

FARM TEAM WINS OVER EMERSON

Pennsylvania Lads Outclass Locals to Win, 38-0.

A GANG of roughriding young Jewish boys, carrying the strangely bright green colors of the National Farm School, of Doylestown, Pa., invaded Griffith Stadium yesterday and swept an almost unresisting Emerson Institute team under a landslide of touchdowns. The score wound up 38 to 0.

Confoundng the Emerson team like a crack college squad would a group of schoolboys, the charging, hard-working line of the winners and a quartet of twisting, hurtling backs ripped Emerson wide apart to score six times and hold Emerson to one first down. The local school never approached nearer than the 35-yard line.

Emerson Threatens
At Start.

Emerson's sole thrust came on the opening kickoff. Buscher took Vandernoot's boot on his own 20-yard line and brought it back 20 yards. Raum stepped through left tackle on the first play and was downed after five yards. Buscher hit the same side of the line for six more yards. A first down handed to them, Emerson promptly fumbled the ball and Cohn retrieved for his side in midfield. After that it was a matter of time.

Ramrodding their way in successive first downs, National Farm sent Harman across the line for the first of the procession of touchdowns.

On the first play of the second quarter Harman went around end 35 yards for a touchdown, afforded perfect interference by his fellow backs.

30-Yard Gallop Nets
Third Touchdown.

Emerson rallied ever so slightly after the touchdown and completed a short pass, Buscher to Kelso, but fell a victim to a neat end-around-end play which sent Edleman 30 yards around left wing for the third touchdown. The remaining touchdowns came twice in the third period and once in the last. Shortly after the half opened Caplin snagged a Buscher kick in midfield and outran and outwitted the entire Emerson team as he raced the 50 yards. Vandernoot came through with his first successful placement kick following the tally.

The Farmers brought along a 35-piece band and showed one of the best-drilled high school teams ever seen here. The school has only 200 boys attending, 100 of whom are on the football squad.

G. U. Eases Practice For Duquesne Game

Georgetown's preparation for the Duquesne game in Pittsburgh Friday night began yesterday with the coaches doling out comparatively easy assignments to the battered Hilltoppers, five of whom are still unable to don uniforms as a result of last Saturday's clash with the gigantic New York University eleven.

Hilltop athletic authorities dug into the records yesterday to find that the 34-0 loss received from the Violets was the worst a Georgetown eleven has suffered since 1911, when the Carlisle Indians, led by the immortal Jim Thorpe, handed out a 35-0 reverse on the old Hilltop field.

Prep Midgets Down St. Martin's, 13-2

The Georgetown Prep midgets hung a 13-to-2 defeat on the St. Martin midgets at Garrett Park yesterday. The game was well played with the Preps holding a slight advantage over the visitors.

The winners' first touchdown came in the third period, when Weller fell on a St. Martin fumble behind the latter's goal. Spaulding followed this up with a 20-yard smash off tackle that netted the second score. Kirby played well for the losers.

Detweiler, 13, Winner Of Manor Club Title

The junior championship of the Manor Club was won yesterday by William E. Detweiler, 13 years old, who defeated Maurice D. Nee in the final round on the nineteenth hole. Nee had his opponent 2 down and 4 to play, but when the fifteenth was halved and Detweiler won the sixteenth and the seventeenth, the match was all even.

The eighteenth was halved and on the nineteenth Nee, whose second shot was on the side of a trap, pitched his ball into the trap on the third shot and lost the hole and the match.

CASEYS BEAT FLASHES.

Niland's 40-yard run to touchdown, after receiving a forward pass thrown by Sugrue gave the K. of C. Boy's Club 85-pounders a 6-to-0 victory over the Petworth Flashes on the Tidal Basin Field yesterday.

FEDERALS TO PRACTICE.

The Federal 135-pound gridironers will gather at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday for a short practice at Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue northwest. All members of the team are requested to report promptly.

PIGS PRACTICE TONIGHT.

The Dixie Pigs-Unlimited grid team will drill tonight at 8 o'clock on the Seat Pleasant field.

FOREMAN PROUD DADDY.

Charles J. Foreman, the demon statistician of Baltimore, is the father of a son, born last week.

MERIDIANS DRILL.

The Meridian A. C. Football Team will drill Friday night at 7:30 o'clock at Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue northwest. All players are requested to report promptly.

DOLLARS AND SENSE FACES CAREER'S END

Banking Institute Magazine May Cease Publication With This Issue.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

What may be the last issue of Dollars and Sense, interesting publication of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, is now being distributed. Although the fate of this excellent periodical may be determined at a meeting of chapter officials to be held shortly, doubt is expressed whether the chapter's quarterly magazine will be continued.

In June, a plan was put forward to consolidate the publication with The Bulletin, monthly official organ of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, but this has not met with favorable consideration, it was learned yesterday. Under this plan, news of the chapter's activities would be carried in a section of the bankers' magazine published in pamphlet style.

The situation results from chapter officials' decision to abandon solicitation of advertisements for Dollars and Sense. This decision was prompted by the fact that numerous advertisers were either certain association member banks, placed in obvious competition in its columns through their support, or some of their important depositors, to whom the advertising benefits were questionable. In addition, the publication is not receiving the aid of all association member banks and was dependent on that of certain faithful contributors.

Alternatives Face Chapter.

Following the decision, the chapter was confronted with four alternatives —suspension of publication, continued publication in the present imposing style through support of the bankers association, in an emasculated pamphlet form by the chapter or as a section of the merged publication of the two bodies.

In presenting the case to the bankers' association, the latter's advertising committee has stated, "the matter of advertising by banks in Dollars and Sense, Washington chapter's able and attractive organ, has been the subject of friendly conference between this committee and chapter officials, with the decision that this publication is hardly a medium for competitive advertisements, but should have the direct support of the association.

"The chapter officials are in harmony with the committee and will endeavor to arrange their budget for 1931-32 to maintain the publication of Dollars and Sense without any advertising whatever. It is the sense of the committee that the publication is highly deserving of the direct assistance of the association and that the advantages arising from nonsolicitation of advertising from banks and depositors, together with the saving of time to chapter officials engaged in the work, warrants consideration by the council of administration of the extent to which such assistance should be given."

Association Takes No Action.

As yet the bankers' association has taken no action regarding the advertising committee's suggestion, and while it is believed its assistance will be forthcoming, it is doubtful that it will be to an extent permitting publication of the chapter magazine in the pretentious manner made possible by advertising revenues.

Proponents of the consolidation plan said that it would be advantageous to the chapter in that its news could be allowed practically half of the space in the bankers' magazine and be presented with a timelier value in this monthly publication. The Bulletin is three years old and is published generally in pamphlet form without advertising support.

Dollars and Sense was founded eight years ago, Norman E. Towson, assistant treasurer, Washington Loan & Trust Co., being its first editor. It has since become nationally famous among institute organs, and under the editorship of Aubrey O. Dooley, assistant trust officer, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., won first prize at institute national conventions on several occasions. Because of its national prominence, proponents of the merger plan suggested that in the event this was realized, the title of the Bulletin be supplanted by Dollars and Sense. The latest issue of Dollars and Sense, in year book form, is of the usual excellence.

Insurance Heads Study.

The life insurance managers of Washington are undertaking serious study of the new conditions in their business under the leadership of the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford, Conn.

John Marshall Holcombe, jr., manager of that bureau, will address the managers' section of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association at the Hay-Adams House at luncheon today on "Agency Building Under Present Conditions." Mr. Holcombe is probably the outstanding expert in America on life agency problems. He is the first of six experts furnished by the research bureau who will address the managers' section during the next six months on such subjects as "Training Established Agents," "Conservation Methods," "Starting New Men."

This program has been provided by the committee headed by Earl D. Krewson. H. Lawrence Choate is chairman of the managers' section.

William M. Canby, well known in financial circles, has accepted the appointment of special representative of the Bankers Life Co. of Des Moines, with offices in the Southern Building. Mr. Canby resigned from the National City Co. October 1 to enter the insurance field. He was in the service of the latter company for more than 12 years.

Austrian Bank's Cover Of Liabilities Reduced

Berlin, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A statement to be published tomorrow will say that the proportion of cover to liabilities at the Austrian National Bank decreased during the first week of October from 33 per cent to 29.7 per cent.

The decrease, according to the statement, is the result of a further outflow of $4,067,000 from the metal and foreign exchange reserves and an increase in bills discounted to $105,100,000 by new loans of $6,800,000. Last May the proportion of cover to liabilities was 84.6 per cent.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The financial markets observed the Columbus Day holiday, but will open for business tomorrow.

Inasmuch as there is no money market on Saturday, Wall street must wait until Tuesday morning to learn whether there is to be a change in the call money renewal rate which has been 1½ per cent for months. Two per cent money appeared last Friday afternoon for the first time since April, reflecting the rise in the reserve rediscount rate.

Although the steel trade is not affected directly by the administration's measures to restore confidence, it is pointed out that success of the steps already undertaken should be helpful to that industry. Banks, it is said, have been very conservative in making loans for all commodity and material purchases, including steel, and it is believed a more liberal attitude may follow, if the credit plan works out as expected.

Many Wall street brokerage firms report a rather considerable increase in odd-lot buying of investment stocks.

Leading New York City bank stocks have rallied briskly from their October 5 lows. Earnings statements for the third quarter, showing dividend requirements comfortably covered, were partly responsible, but another important factor was the appearance of firmer money rates, which mean larger operating profits.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

Paris, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Three per cent rentes, 83 francs 95 centimes; 5 per cent loan, 101 francs 75 centimes.

Exchange on London, 98 francs 87½ centimes. The dollar was quoted at 25 francs 39 centimes.

London, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Bar silver, 17½d per ounce. Money, 4 per cent. Discount rates—Short bills, 5¼@5½ per cent; three months, 5 11-16@5⅞ per cent.

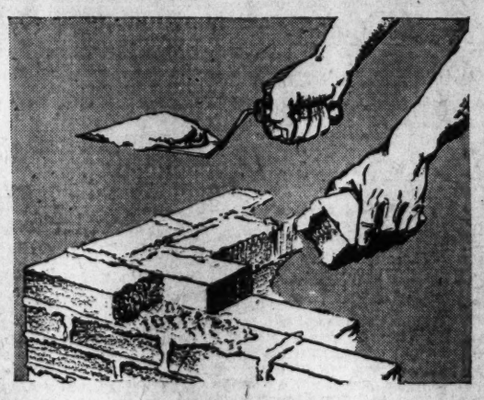
No. 2 in a series, "Promoting Recovery"

Keeping Men and Money at work



PUBLIC utilities have helped relieve business conditions by continuing construction and improvement, maintaining wages and employment.

More than 285,000 persons are now on the payroll of electric utilities, with annual wages of about $440,000,000. This is 97.1% of the workers employed in 1929—their wages 97.6% of the amount paid that year. In the manufactured gas industry employment has varied little from 91,000 during the past four years.

An important part in the utilities' program to promote prosperity is their effort to continue construction and improvement:

Expenditures for New Plant and Equipment

	1931 Budget	1930	1929
Electric light and power	$701,918,000	$919,417,000	$853,030,000
Gas	317,000,000	408,000,000	400,000,000

Revised prices of materials and costs of construction have done much to make 1931 budgets smaller than those of previous years; hence the real volume of new work approximates the average of former years more nearly than is indicated.

Associated Spends $32,000,000

The Associated System's part in this program was an expenditure of $32,000,000 for new construction during 1930. Additional facilities for service were provided in the Saluda River hydro-electric development in South Carolina and the Gilbert Station in New Jersey. The System has also just completed an important power station at Bowling Green, Ky.

Ability of the utilities to maintain employment is evidence of the stable nature of their business, so much of which comes from residential use of gas and electricity that is little affected by industrial conditions.

Achievement of the utilities in continuing construction and improvements indicates the confidence they have in their own futures. They are preparing to lead American industry through a new period of prosperity. These facts reflect favorably on the investment values of securities of sound electric and gas utility systems.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 28—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

Trustees' Sale of the Large 11-story, Centrally Located, Modern Office Building, Known as "The Woodward Building," Located at the Southeast Corner of Fifteenth and H Streets Northwest.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust, duly recorded in liber No. 6312 folio 183 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell at public auction, in front of the premises, on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY OF OCTOBER, A. D. 1931, AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being Lot 21 in S. W. Woodward's combination of lots in square 222, as per plat recorded in liber 17, folio 18, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Also part of original lot 12 in said square 222, described as follows: Beginning for the same at the northeast corner of said lot, and running thence south on H street, 31 feet to the west line of the west wall of the house on the east part of said lot; thence south on said line of the said wall 131 feet 2 inches to an alley; thence east 31 feet to the southeast corner of said lot; thence north 131 feet 2 inches to the beginning. Also part of original lot 3 in square 222, described as follows: Beginning for the same on the south line of said lot, twelve (12) distant 29 feet 4 inches from the southeast corner of said lot 12, and running thence southeasterly on an alley in said square, 17 feet; thence in a straight line north of east 24 feet 6¾ inches to a point directly south of and distant 5.59 feet from the southeast corner of said lot 12; thence north 5.59 feet to the southeast corner of said lot 12; and thence west on the south line of said lot 12, 29 feet 4 inches to the place of beginning, now known as lot 22 in said square.

TERMS OF SALE: Said property will be sold subject to an overdue first trust, recorded in liber 6214 folio 237, securing the New York Life Insurance Company in the sum of $1,500,000 with interest at 5 per cent, secured on lot 21 square 222, described above, and subject further to an overdue trust recorded in liber 6312 folio 179 securing the New York Life Insurance Company in the sum of $500,000 with interest at 5½ per cent, secured as the first trust on part of lot 3 and part of lot 12, square 222, as described above, and as a second trust on lot 21 square 222 as described above; also subject to overdue and accrued interest on both aforesaid deeds of trust and taxes to date of sale. Full particulars of said deeds of trust and the amount of unpaid and overdue interest and taxes will be stated at the time of sale.

The purchase price (over and above said trusts, and overdue and accrued interest and taxes to date of sale, as aforesaid) to be paid $50,000 as a deposit at the time of sale, and a further sum of $75,000 to be paid within thirty days from day of sale, and the remainder to be paid in two equal amounts in one and two years, with interest at 6 per cent per annum, payable semiannually, and to be secured by a purchase money deed of trust on said property. All adjustments to be made as of date of sale.

Terms to be complied with within thirty days, otherwise deposit forfeited and the property may be advertised and resold at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C. Conveyancing, recording, &c., at purchaser's cost.

GEORGE N. EVEREIT.
BRAINARD W. PARKER.
Trustees.

NOTE: The New York Life Insurance Company, owner and holder of the notes described in the deeds of trust above referred to recorded in liber 6214 folio 237 and liber 6312 folio 179, respectively, have agreed to extend for any purchaser said principal sums secured by said deeds of trust for a period of 5 years from September 1, 1931, with interest at 5 per cent, with semiannual curtails of 7½ per cent, starting at the end of 18 months, upon payment of all overdue interest and taxes.

This renewal is also subject to usual appraisal and brokerage fees.

GRAND JURY HEARS RESUME OF PROBE INTO THIRD DEGREE

ROVER WILL EXPEDITE PRESENTMENT OF CASE

Department of Justice Has Charge of Witnesses as Counts Are Unfolded.

Four cases in which Washington policemen were accused of brutality and third degree tactics toward prisoners in their custody were placed before the October grand jury yesterday and completed as the investigation reopened.

The cases were among those which were heard by the July jury, bringing five indictments by that body, against men attached to the First Precinct. About 30 witnesses were called to appear before the jury yesterday, but not all were heard.

It appeared that only key witnesses would be used to present a clear picture of the cases in an effort to speed up the work and to enable the October jury to catch up time lost.

Cases Speeded Up.

If the speed put on yesterday is an indication, the present grand jury may save some time this week. United States Attorney Leo A. Rover said yesterday that there were indications the jury would complete the entire list of police cases, involving about 20 policemen including some headquarters detectives, by Thursday.

It is probable that indictments in these cases, if any, will be returned a week from tomorrow. There are no indications that grand jury will stop its work to make a special report of police indictments.

The jury moved so rapidly yesterday that the case of James Henry Harker, leading one in the accusations against police, was completed before the jurors adjourned for lunch. About half of the witnesses under subpena yesterday were called to testify in this case, but, after the main ones were heard, the rest were excused "until further notice."

When the jury again started its deliberations shortly after 1 o'clock, it heard the other three cases and completed them before adjourning at 3:45 p. m.

About 30 witnesses are under subpena to appear tomorrow as the investigation continues.

As in the first ill-starred inquiry, the October jury began its work in the police investigation by first hearing a brief of the evidence worked up by the Department of Justice presented by Mr. Rover, who is again leading the presentation of cases in person.

The Harker case was the first one worked out. Harker, his attorney, S. McCaemas Hawken, and members of Harker's family, including his mother and sister, were among the first to enter the grand jury room.

Involves Four Policemen.

The group of witnesses in this case led the first grand jury to indict First Precinct Detective James A. Mostyn and Privates William R. Laflin, William T. Burroughs, and William C. Grooms, on charges of felonious assault with a piece of rubber hose and their fists after he was arrested on a housebreaking count on August 22.

Harker told a story of the beating and it is believed his tale was supported before both grand juries by an exclusive photograph which appeared in The Post, showing injuries he received in the alleged assault.

Dr. H. Watson Moffitt, the physician who examined Harker immediately after his release from the First Precinct Station, was the last witness called in the case. Dr. Moffitt is believed to have told the jury that Harker bore a series of welts across his back, a badly blacked eye, scars on his shins and other injuries, when he was examined at the doctor's office.

When Dr. Moffitt was called into the jury room, a number of corroborating witnesses were excused, and shortly afterwards the jury adjourned for lunch.

After lunch the jury took up the other three cases, all of which were charges of negroes that they were beaten at the First Precinct Station about the same time Harker was allegedly given the "third degree."

Perry Faces New Case.

One of these was the instance in which John F. Miller, colored, alleges he was beaten with a wooden club August 21, by Policeman George E. Perry.

Mr. Perry, of the First Precinct, was indicted at the same time the other four policemen were, on charges of felonious assault. As in the other cases, the indictment was voided by the irregularity in the July grand jury.

The case of Walter W. Johnson, also colored, was heard after the Miller inquiry. He was brought to the Courthouse yesterday from the District Jail, where he is held on a burglary charge, preferred after he testified before the first grand jury. That jury indicted Mostyn and Laflin for a fist assault on Johnson.

In the last case heard yesterday Mostyn was previously indicted for an alleged assault with his fists on Preston Brooks, another colored man.

The Department of Justice again yesterday took charge of witnesses called in the case and saw to it that they were not "approached" and that they talked to no one, particularly to newspapermen. However, the Department of Justice agents did not take the extra precaution of confining the witnesses to one room, as was done during the first jury hearing.

The witnesses yesterday were allowed to sit on benches in the corridors of the third floor at the Courthouse. Attempts of newspapermen to talk with them were discouraged, however.

Traction Company Sued For $35,000 by Woman

The Capital Traction Co. was sued for $35,000 yesterday by Winifred I. Tinsley, 1445 Park road northwest, for injuries she allegedly sustained July 13 when a street car struck her while she was crossing the tracks on Pennsylvania avenue near Twelfth street northwest.

The complaint recites the allegation that she has a permanent scar on her face because of the accident. Attorneys Fred B. and Cooper B. Rhodes filed the suit.

COURT CLEARS WAY FOR WARDMAN SALE

Justice Holds Bondholders Are Now Entitled to Foreclosure Suit.

Way was cleared in District Supreme Court for foreclosure on ten properties of the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., yesterday when Justice Jesse C. Adkins handed down a memorandum opinion in which he said "the bondholders are entitled to a sale at the present time."

Properties mentioned in the suit, alleged to be in default in interest payments, are the Carlton Hotel, Wardman Park Hotel, Wardman Park Annex, North and Center Cathedral Mansions, Davenport Terrace, Chasleton, Stoneleigh Court, a building at 2700 Connecticut avenue, the Department of Justice Building and the Boulevard Apartments.

On those buildings and one or two others which were later taken over under prior trusts $11,000,000 in bonds were sold. Interest on these bonds is now in default and a group of bondholders representing 86 per cent of the bonds have formed a protective committee and asked the sanction of the courts for foreclosure.

The properties will first be offered for sale as a unit and then as separate parts. Whichever way the most money can be gotten will be taken by the trustees. Sale can not take place for four weeks because of necessity of advertising the properties according to the terms of the trust.

Justice Adkins did not comment on the reorganization plan, for it was never officially placed before him. Receivers are Thomas D. Carson, Julius I. Peyser and Joseph P. Tumulty.

"Polite" Bandit Still Missing With $22.31

Police last night were still searching for the "polite bandit" who, Sunday night, courteously held up and robbed a gasoline filling station at Rhode Island avenue and Eighth street northeast, and fled with $22.31.

The bandit walked into the station, greeted its two attendants, Rudolph O'Meara, of Cherrydale, Va., and Charles W. Malcolm, of Hyattsville, Md., with "good evening, gentlemen," pulled out a revolver, and asked for the contents of the cash register which amounted to $15.31. The additional $7 was donated by O'Meara.

BRIDGE SHAFT PLAN TO GET NEW STUDY

Hoover Asks Reconsideration of Tall Columns Opposed by Aviators.

A restudy of plans for erection of twin tall columns on Columbia Island as part of the Memorial Bridge development program will be undertaken at the instance of President Hoover, acting in his capacity as chairman of the Arlington Memorial Bridge Commission.

Plans for the columns have been protested vigorously by aviation interests on the grounds that they would be a menace to air traffic at the Washington Airport. The President is understood to have asked for a restudy of the plans, however, after conferring with aviation experts.

The staff of the Arlington Bridge Commission, in conjunction with McKim, Mead & White, of New York, architects for the bridge; W. L. Douglas, of New York, consulting engineer, and the Fine Arts Commission will undertake the new study and advise on the artistic merits of the new plan.

One of the columns would be symbolic of the South and another of the North. They were planned originally to provide a frame for the Lincoln Memorial as seen from Arlington National Cemetery.

Under preliminary plans the columns would have cost $500,000 each, and the foundations $100,000.

NORTHEAST CITIZENS AGAIN ELECT TUCKER

President Retained for 38th Year; Playground Site to Be Asked.

Evan H. Tucker, of 720 A street northeast, was elected for his thirty-eighth consecutive term as president of the Northeast Washington Citizens Association last night at a meeting in the Ludlow School.

Other officers elected are Bruce Casteel, 600 Fourteenth street, first vice president; Roscoe Jenkins, 639 Eighth street, second vice president; John F. Callan, 108 Eighth street, financial secretary; Joseph Notes, 1104 H street, secretary, and Edwin C. Worden, 1000 Ninth street, treasurer.

A resolution was adopted requesting the librarian of the new branch library at Seventh street and Maryland avenue northeast to designate certain rooms that might be used for meetings of the association in the future.

One of a pair of related resolutions joined the petition of several other Northeast groups in requesting a playground to be located preferably between Fourth and Eleventh streets and East Capitol and K streets. The other motion asks the District Commissioners not to consider the Union Station Plaza property as a possible playground site.

The group also requested that the driveway of Anacostia Parkway be lighted by electric street lamps between Pennsylvania avenue and the Eleventh Street Bridge.

Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, was commended for recent improvements in Stanton and Lincoln Parks. Various other petitions requested lights, stop signs and other traffic regulations.

4 Injured in Crash Ask $70,000 Salve

Plaintiffs, Guests of Driver, Charge Excessive Rate of Speed.

An automobile accident on the road to North Beach, Md., July 7 resulted in the filing of four suits in District Supreme Court yesterday against Charles Charushas and Peter Charushas, of 5208 Colorado avenue northwest, for $70,000.

Anastasia Mandes, 5718 Sixteenth street northwest, asked for $50,000 damages; Paul George, of 1705 P street northwest, $10,000, and Lola George and Byron George, an infant, $5,000 each.

The suit charges that the car driven by Charles Charushas was being operated at an excessive rate of speed, and the plaintiffs, all of whom were guests of the Charushas family, were badly injured when the car struck an oncoming machine, and the following car piled into the wreckage before it could be stopped. The suit was filed by Attorneys D. Edward Clarke and Achilles Catsonis.

13th Precinct Defies Myth To Adopt Black Kitten

Thirteenth Precinct police, despite the eerie number of their stationhouse, have made a mascot of Ignatz, the black kitten which they found yesterday, half starved, in the impounded automobile of a man arrested almost 48 hours earlier after an accident.

A policeman discovered Ignatz shortly after midnight yesterday in the machine, which was being held at the precinct station. She—the name may be Ignatz, but she's a lady—was too weak to meow, accounting for her inability to make her presence known earlier.

Ignatz has lapped up much milk since, and her friendliness is winning over even the more superstitious of her protectors. The cat's owner, William Williams, colored, is in jail charged with drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

PINEY BRANCH BODY CONTINUES FIGHT ON BALLOU SELECTIONS

Bringing of Teachers From Other Cities Scored by Citizens Group.

EXPLANATORY LETTER TO GET FORMAL REPLY

Characterizing selections of an out-of-town teacher as supervising principal of the Third Division as "demoralizing in the extreme," the Piney Branch Citizens Association last night charged Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, with committing "a great error" in making the appointment.

Edgar B. Henderson, president of the association, declared that Washington teachers are constrained to protest against importation of out-of-town men and women into the District public school system out of fear of the superintendent.

At a meeting of the assoication last month Mr. Henderson expressed criticism on appointment of Miss Julia Hahn, of San Francisco, as supervising principal of the Third Division because he believed there were teachers in Washington qualified to fill the position. A published account of the protest evoked a letter from Dr. Ballou explaining why the appointment had been made.

Ballou Letter Is Read.

In this letter, made public at last night's meeting, Dr. Ballou called attention to a policy of the Board of Education which gives preference to persons in the local school service when their qualifications are at least equal to those of persons outside. When the qualifications of persons outside are superior to those of persons in the system, the superintendent is expected to recommend the outside applicant, this policy provides, Dr. Ballou said in his letter.

The association is making a formal reply to Dr. Ballou in a letter which includes the following response to his explanation:

"What stands out like a flag on a flag staff is the fact that you do not mention any reason why an evidently competent person like she (Miss Hahn) must be should not have been selected in preference to all the dozens of evidently qualified teachers that were already in the school system, and who, as matters ordinarily move, are entitled to the first consideration before the authorities of the school system should go afield to find a person to fill a vacancy such as occurred in this case."

"Great Error" Is Seen.

The letter continues: "This association is still of the opinion that the teachers in the public school system who have been qualifying themselves, after many years of experience, for promotion to vacant places that may from time to time occur in the school system, should be given first choice. This association feels that a very great error has been made in making such a selection because it is convinced the schools contain a large number of apparently qualified teachers to step into the vacancy when it occurred."

Dr. Ballou said that between July 1, 1920, and July 1, 1928 107 out of 119 teachers appointed in the local school system have been local men and women.

The association instructed its school committee to submit a report at the next meeting on advisability of asking for a wading pool and other improvements at the Hamilton Street Playground. W. M. Matthewson was eslected to represent the association at a hearing by the Public Utilities Commission on taxicab rates.

Death of Woman Held to Be Suicide

Coroner Says Losses on Market of $300,000 Caused Action.

A coroner's jury yesterday reached a verdict of suicide in the case of Mrs. Adaline Greenleaf, whose body was found hanging from a pajama cord in a closet at 1026 Sixteenth street northwest Saturday morning.

According to her physician, Dr. George M. Ruffin, Mrs. Greenleaf had attempted suicide several times during the last decade, her most recent unsuccessful attempt being about two weeks ago when she leaped off the M street bridge and only slightly injured herself.

Dr. Ruffin also testified that her suicidal intentions were due to financial troubles, she having lost $300,000 in the stock market.

Woman Hurt by Awning Asks $10,000 Damages

Margaret R. Post, of 2320 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, yesterday filed suit against Charles W. Guest, trading as the Charles W. Guest Awning Co., 1339 H street northeast, for injuries sustained August 8 when an awning installed by the company fell on her while she was "cranking" it. The suit mentions $10,000 as damages.

Attached to the suit is another matter of claims. The awning was taken away by the awning company, she says, after the fall, and never has been replaced, and for that she asks $215.

ANTEATER BORN ON WAY HERE

Unusual photograph of the new Tamadua anteater with her young one which rides about on her back. This anteater is one of the gems of the collection brought back from British Guiana by Dr. William M. Mann, director of the local zoo, after two months in the jungles. The baby was born on the return voyage and members of the expedition were not aware of this until yesterday morning when they uncrated the animals. The Tamandua anteater does not fare so well in captivity and one with her young is a sight seldom witnessed.

KENILWORTH PUPILS GO TO ELIOT JUNIOR

Parents' Delegation Accepts Temporary Plan; to Build Portables.

Temporary settlement of the Kenilworth School problem arising out of condemnation of the school building because of cracked walls was reached by school officials yesterday afternoon after a delegation of parents visited the Franklin Administration building.

The agreement was reached to send pupils of the seventh and eighth grades to the Eliot Junior High School, Eighteenth and B streets northeast, and to accommodate the other children in three portables to be erected on the grounds of Kenilworth School.

Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools, said that all the parents in the delegation favored sending the higher-grade children to the junior high school where they will have better advantages than at a crowded elementary school. If any parents of seventh and eighth grade pupils prefer having their children go to the Benning School, they may do so, Mr. Haycock said.

The two higher grades are made up of 81 pupils. This means that 122 children, composing the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth grades will be housed in the three portables, which will be ready late this week. Meanwhile, fifth and sixth grade children are attending the Benning School. The other lower-grade children will remain out of school until the portables are erected.

The delegation that visited school officials, headed by John S. Driggers, president of the Kenilworth Citizens' Association, pressed the need for a new school building. School officials probably will ask for an appropriation for this new school when they appear before the Bureau of the Budget this week.

Thieves Get $150 Novelties.

A quantity of jewelry, revolvers, and novelties valued at $150 was reported stolen yesterday from the store of S. Lachman & Sons, at 709 D street northwest. Emil Lachman, proprietor, told police that when he opened for business yesterday morning he found one of the rear windows broken open and the entire store ransacked.

STREAM LINED PARK IS URGED AT BRIDGE

Citizens Group Recommends That Trees and Shrubs Be Trimmed at Taft Span.

Miss Winifred Mallon, of the Washington Bureau of the New York Times, strongly urged the members of the Kaloramo Citizens Association to oppose the removal of the island parkway at the south end of Taft Bridge, at a meeting of that association last night at the John Quincy Adams School.

J. Roland Bibbins, traffic expert, sponsored a resolution, which was indorsed by the association, to stream line the north end and keep all shrubbery and trees trimmed on the island and to have the Park and Planning Commission notified that the association is strongly opposed to its removal and for the commission to notify it before any further action is taken on the matter.

The association indorsed a resolution to have the attention of the Police Department called to the fact that the regulation requiring automobiles parking on an incline to have the front or real wheels of the car against the curb is not being enforced.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, a delegate of the Federation of Citizens Associations, gave a short talk advocating the new market being built on Water street southwest. She also spoke in favor of the Women's Bureau of the Police Department being established by law. Twenty-five new members were admitted to the association.

Commander Bryson Bruce, U. S. N., will give an illustrated lecture on his travels through China at the next meeting of the association, to be held the second Monday of November.

Two Men Are Arrested In Bookmaking Raid

Detectives H. Rinke and E. L. Baker arrested two men yesterday afternoon in a quiet raid on an alleged bookmaking establishment at 1527 Fourteenth street northwest. Alfred M. Smith, 39, was booked for illegal possession of a small quantity of liquor, and Joseph M. Essex, 34, was charged with permitting gaming.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PASS THE PASTRY.

This is Doughnut month!

* * * *

* * * *

Send a doughnut home to mother!

* * * *

Wear one in your buttonhole! Mail a bag of doughnuts to your sweetheart!

* * * *

ARE you a wallflower? Eat more doughnuts! Are you nervous, bashful, easily embarrassed? "Donk" a doughnut and be nonchalant.

* * * *

Do you lack poise? Does the boss pass you over when he is making selections for the better job? Do young women avoid you as a dance partner? Are you, in short, a failure in life?

* * * *

Then try doughnuts!

* * * *

All October has been set aside for the American public as National Doughnut Month. The bakers of the country feel that the importance of the doughnut in American life has never been properly emphasized.

* * * *

THE doughnut is an American institution. Without it the bakery windows would look bleak, the pantry cake box would seem desolate and the dinner table forlorn.

* * * *

Without the doughnut the lives of little children would seem empty, the lunch pail of the workingman would lose its luster, the schoolboy's noon lunch would be a mockery and the New England dinner a sham.

* * * *

Without the doughnut what would become of the Nation's "donkers"? You may "donk" a cracker, a cookie or cornpone, but the ancient art of "donking" is inevitably tied up with the doughnut.

* * * *

Without the doughnut where would be the joy of the New England breakfast and the Vermont cider season? Without the doughnut what would infants do for sugar in their ears and what would become of the old-time custom known as "crumbling"?

* * * *

ONLY 250,000,000 dozen doughnuts were consumed in America last year, which is a new low for the decade. It means that only three dozen doughnuts were "donked" per capita. It means that the country is full of doughnut slackers.

* * * *

Something must be done to glorify the American doughnut and restore it to its prestige and respect. President Hoover could have organized a doughnut pool, but this, too, had its drawbacks and so the bakers decided on October as National Do-Right-by-the-Doughnut Month.

* * * *

The idea is taking hold. The country is in the throes of a doughnut orgy. The splashing of the "donkers!" echoes across the country like the beating of surf on the shore.

* * * *

Once more the doughnut is taking its place in the sun, dragging the cruller with it. Are you doing your bit? Are you doughnut conscious? If not, why not?

* * * *

* * * *

* * * *

* * * *

Elmer Twitchell says that he approves of President Hoover's Big Banking Pool, but that before he dives into it he wants to know which is the shallow end.

REAL ESTATE BOARD ELECTS J. M. BOWIE AS NEW PRESIDENT

DIRECTORS ARE NAMED TO SERVE FOR 2 YEARS

Arthur Carr Is Presented With Engraved Gavel on Retirement.

J. M. M. Bowie, vice president of H. L. Rust Co., was elected president of the Washington Real Estate Board at its annual meeting last night at the Willard Hotel. Claud Livingston, president of William H. Saunders & Co., was elected first vice president and William J. Flather, jr., of Glover & Flather, second vice president.

Directors elected to serve for two years are F. Eliot Middleton, John T. Meany, president Stone & Fairfax; Medford P. Canby, of Phillips & Canby; Earl M. Mackintosh, Weaver Bros., Inc.; Percy H. Russell and P. L. Sandoz. Charles S. Muir was elected for a one-year term.

Gavel Presented to Carr.

Arthur Carr, retiring president, was presented by Past President W. C. Miller with a gavel engraved with his name and record of service. Chairman H. L. Rust, jr., reported for the appraisal committee and Chairman Alfred H. Lawson for the legislative committee. The financial report was made by John A. Petty, executive secretary and treasurer of the board, who also outlined its activities during the past administrative year.

In commenting on the unusual amount of publicity and notoriety occasioned by certain real estate disclosures, Mr. Petty explained that there were seven cases which formed the basis for this publicity and enumerated them as those of a discredited lot promoter, four financial houses, most of which were styled investment bankers; one involving the stock of a finance corporation and only one that could properly be classed as a real estate broker.

Real Estate Dealers Hit Unfairly.

In connection with these disclosures, most of which affected financial houses, Mr. Petty said that the real estate brokerage business in Washington had been unjustly associated with difficulties discussed in the public press, while as a matter of fact the real estate brokerage business as such has been the subject of no serious criticism.

In referring to certain prominent failures in the mortgage investment field, Mr. Petty stated that he had noted no failure of any important mortgage brokerage house which confined its activities and operations exclusively to its home city.
